Vote Early Today— And Beat the Snow

Greater Victoria voters may have to slog through snow today to get to the polls for municipal elections.

According to the forecast Friday night from the Victoria weather office, it should be cloudy and cold this morning, with two to four inches of snow falling in the afternoon, easing off to flurries overnight, so the voter's best bet is to visit the polls early.

Sunday's outlook is for cloudy periods and continuing cold.

East Pakistan Collapse Widely Rumored at UN

Dacca Expected To Fall in Days

From CP, AP, Reuter

The foreign minister of Pakistan arrived in New York Friday and was immediately reported ill and unable to keep appointments as rumors flew at the UN concerning surrender of Pakistani forces in East Pakistan.

Zulifakar Ali Bhutto, the new deputy prime minister and foreign minister of Pakistan, arrived late Friday and was supposed to have appointments with Secretary-General Thant and U.S. Ambassador George Bush.

But he cancelled both appointments, pleading illness. He did talk to Thant on the telephone and to Chiaco Kuan-hua, Chinese deputy foreign minister who visited him at his hotel room.

Rumors were rife at the UN as Indian forces closed in on Dacca in East Pakistan.

The rumors said the commander-in-chief of the Pakistani forces in Dacca had offered to surrender. The offer had been sent through UN officials in Dacca.

However, Pakistani ambassador Agha Shahi is said to have told Thant to disregard this message and that a communication would be received from President Yahya Khan.

There were also reports that Pakistan had expressed willingness to negotiate with the leaders of the Bangla Desh government which is located in New Delhi and which says it represents the people of East Pakistan.

Bhutto is reported to have told UN officials that his illness is not serious and that he will be able to resume his schedule today.

Meanwhile, Foreign Minister Saran Singh of India was to arrive in New York Friday night, meaning that both countries in the sub-continent will be represented by big guns if and when the UN takes up the war again.

It was not known whether

Fireman Liked Sirens, So Started Own Fires

HOUSTON (UPI) — Nine volunteer firemen have been charged with starting fires in the south-east sections of the city allegedly to relieve their boredom.

G. L. Caldwell, an arson investigator with the Houston fire department, said one of the men said he set the blazes for "kicks."

Student Council Provides Holiday Lesson

In past years, the schools involved in the Inter-High Students' Council have collected toys, food and money for the needy from the students only.

This year, members of the council decided to use the schools as collection depots for their neighborhoods.

Both junior and senior high schools are involved in this special Christmas project, which started Monday and will end Dec. 17.

Those included are Arbutus, Central, Colquitz, Lansdowne, Oak Bay, Reynolds, S. J. Willis and Shoreline junior highs, and Esquimalt, Mount View, Oak Bay, Victoria and Mount Douglas senior highs.

There will be large boxes for donations of food and toys in the school offices, says Cathy Woods of the Inter-High Students' Council, which will go to the Salvation Army and Kiwanis Club.

All the money received by the schools, which can also be donated in the school offices, will go to the Colonist 500 Fund.

A project like this takes a great deal of work on the part of the students. They've done the organizing. They're the ones who'll be spending their time asking friends, neighbors and relatives for donations, at a time of year when they're pretty busy studying for exams.

They're anxious to help those less fortunate than themselves, and, says Cathy Woods, they hope to give bigger donations this year because of the new way they've set up the project.

It's generosity like this that has made the Colonist 500 Fund a success for so many years, and has given destitute families a happier Christmas than they would have had normally.

Weary Firemen Douse Day-Old Subway Blaze

MONTREAL (CP) — Weary but determined firefighters extinguished an underground fire Friday night after it had destroyed 36 subway cars in a 24-hour searing holocaust.

Millions of gallons of water were poured into the tunnel at the northern terminus of Montreal's five-year-old Metro system, before the blaze was brought under control.

Gerard Maccarone, 40, subway motorman, apparently died in the flames and smoke but his body was still pinned in the train cab under eight feet of water, Montreal transit officials said.

Fire department officials announced that the fire was out just eight minutes short of burning for a full 24 hours. The "all out" came at 10:25 p.m.

Dense smoke, noxious fumes, deadly gas from spilled sulphuric acid and searing heat repeatedly drove firemen back from the source of the fire.

It broke out Thursday night after a nine-car subway train, empty of passengers, smashed into a parked train in a storage and switching tunnel north of the Henri Bourassa station. Two other nine-car trains were sitting in the area at the time.

Baxter Acquitted of Fraud

Horse-Swap Case: Not-Guilty Verdict

By BARBARA McLINTOCK
Colonist Reporter

A Victoria County Court jury Friday night found Vancouver horse-owner David Robert Baxter not guilty of fraud by substituting one horse for another in a race at Sandown Park last summer.

The jury of nine men and three women deliberated for about 5½ hours before reaching a verdict.

Baxter, 40, had been charged with fraud in connection with the seventh race Aug. 21, the final day of last summer's race meet at Sandown. He entered the three-year-old filly Last Note in the race, but the crown had contended he actually ran another three-year-old filly, Music Melody, under the name of Last Note.

Prosecutor Brian Smith said he did not think it likely the crown would appeal the verdict.

Baxter, whose wife was present in the courtroom, smiled broadly as the jury foreman told Judge M. L. T. Drake the jury found Baxter not guilty.

Earlier during the day he had cried quietly after he finished giving testimony on his own behalf.

On the witness stand, he denied that he had brought two horses over to Sandown Park from Vancouver on Aug. 21. He had, he said, sent Last Note to Sandown with another trainer, Walter Gilker, because he was afraid the driver of the trailer he had arranged to borrow for the day would be late.

The driver brought the trailer soon after, he said, and he was on the same ferry as Gilker. He told court he took the empty trailer to Sandown so he could bring Last Note back to Vancouver if he did not manage to sell her in Victoria.

Baxter said that after he got to Sandown, he settled his horse and asked a groom, Lloyd Cairns, to bridle it and bring it to the paddock for its race.

He did not see Last Note again until she was running her race, he said. He spent most of the intervening hours looking for a buyer for the

Pickup Truck No Bargain

RED DEER, Alta. (CP) — Doris Sutherland was called to the telephone Thursday by her son who said there was a man "talking funny" on the line.

Mrs. Sutherland was asked if she had a pickup truck for sale. When she replied "no" the man asked what number her phone was.

She told him it was 347-1200, and that was the right one as far as the man was concerned.

"The ad has a half-ton truck for sale at that number," said the man. "You're sure you haven't got one for sale?"

"No," she said.

The man persisted, asking where she lived.

"Red Deer," she said, to which he replied: "Is that in Virginia?"

No, Mrs. Sutherland said, "It's in Alberta, Canada."

"Canada? Oh, my God, this will cost me a fortune. I'm trying to get Warrington, West Virginia."

Freighter Finds 12 Survivors Of Ship-Sinking

HONOLULU (AP) — A Norwegian freighter reported rescuing six men and six women Friday, who had spent almost 22 hours in a life raft after abandoning a Danish ship Wednesday.

The U.S. Coast Guard said messages relayed from the rescue vessel, the Puna, indicated that the survivors were in generally good condition. The survivors did not know whether any of the rest of the 36-member crew got off the stricken vessel, the Heering Kirse, a 500-foot-long merchant ship owned by Dommanditselskabet AF of Copenhagen.

A coast guard spokesman said the survivors reported they went over the side Wednesday afternoon after the ship took water into its No. 1 hold and began listing 45 degrees to starboard.

They said they could see the lights of the ship at midnight, eight hours after they abandoned it.

The coast guard said earlier reports that the survivors included 10 men and two women were in error due to poor communications from the scene, about 1,300 miles northwest of Honolulu.

Lambert Charges Senate Bribe

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson was accused of bribing the Senate Friday with promises to bring in amendments to his tax change bill after it has been passed by Parliament.

Benson gave the Commons a list of areas in the bill in which he said he hopes to make alterations in the next year or so.

The government will apply the guillotine rule for the second time to cut off Commons debate on the tax bill next week, informed sources said Friday.

Privy Council President Allan MacEachen, government House leader, will give notice Monday of use of the guillotine rule, already employed to choke off debate on the bill in committee stage.

There will be a two-hour debate Tuesday on the motion to shut off debate and debate on the bill itself will end Friday. If will go to the Senate late that same day.

Conservative finance critic Marcel Lambert described it as "a cheap bribe to the Senate" to get the upper chamber to act in haste.

Benson gave the opening speech on Commons third-reading debate on the bill. The debate is expected to last until next Friday, when the government has said it intends to close it off by means of a debate-limiting motion if will introduce three days earlier.

Included in Benson's list were sections dealing with gifts to charitable organizations, roll-overs and corporate reorganizations, taxpayers leaving Canada and disposing of capital assets, foreign investment and profit-sharing plans.

The bill's provisions in all these areas were criticized during November in two reports from the Senate banking committee.

After debate closes, the bill will go to the Senate, from which the government hopes it will emerge quickly so it can be given royal assent before Christmas, so it will be the basis of the country's tax law Jan. 1.

However, several Senators declared this week that it is unfair to aks them to be cooperative when the government intends to give them only a few days to deal with the bill and wants them to avoid tinkering with it.

After Benson had read his list, Lambert said the government was "tossing the Senate a few crumbs," but he hoped the Senate would take a stand and proceed with integrity on the bill.

Benson said there would undoubtedly be a number of important amendments introduced to the bill next year, and he was just being fair in letting people know the general direction of the government's planning.

On gifts or bequests of property other than cash to tax-exempt organizations such as charities or museums, the bill as it now reads would demand that capital gains tax be paid on the accrued increase in value of the property from the time it was purchased or evaluated.

Benson said he was concerned and sympathetic to representations that this be changed, but there were problems that he hoped the government would soon find answers to.

One was that charities have often been used to abuse the tax system. The second was a question of equity — the person who donated cash had already paid tax on it, while a person could avoid paying tax on a property if he weren't hit with capital gains when he gave it up.

On corporate rollovers — where public companies are involved in mergers, takeovers, amalgamations and transfers of stock between related companies — there have been complaints that the bill would not allow the purchasing company enough scope to defer payment of tax on accumulated capital gains acquired from the other company.

The minister said the area was complex, but he had instructed his department to carefully review the proposed rules to see if they could be extended without undue prejudice to the system as a whole.

East-Pak Surrender Rumored

the Security Council will be called into session during the weekend as a result of Pakistan's acceptance of a call for a ceasefire and withdrawal of troops issued by the General Assembly Wednesday.

Shahi delivered a government note to Thant Thursday saying that Pakistan accepted the ceasefire but that it wanted supervision by the UN and the establishment of UN personnel on both sides of the India-Pakistan border.

India has given no indication that it will accept the ceasefire.

Indications are the U.S. feels a new council meeting would be as fruitless as meetings last weekend. At those meetings, no actions could be taken because of vetoes by the Soviet Union.

Because the Security Council could not act, the Indian-Pakistan war was sent to the assembly which agreed by a 104-to-11 vote to call for a ceasefire.

Meanwhile, Indian troops hurdled their last barrier to Dacca Friday, an army spokesman claimed, and officers suggested they might be in the East Pakistan capital within a few days.

The army spokesman said troops carved out a sizable bridgehead on the west bank of the Meghna River, 36 miles from the city. A pooled dispatch by reporters in Dacca said other Indian forces had reached Daudkandi, 22 miles southeast of the city, but still had rivers to cross.

Radio Pakistan insisted that "in East Pakistan, all important towns are under our control." The radio quoted a Pakistan army spokesman, and did not mention India's claim of crossing the Meghna River or the reported Indian advance from the southeast.

The Indian forces at Daudkandi must cross three arms of the Meghna River before reaching Narayanganj, a river port which is the last major town on the way to Dacca, the pool dispatch from there said.

It reported that Pakistani troops were falling back to defend Dacca and that diplomatic sources close to the East Pakistan high command said officials were in a "low mood."

The main threat to India's hopes of total victory in the East comes from Pakistani forces who are putting intense pressure on the Indians along the western front, more than 1,200 miles away.

Reuter news agency reported that the Pakistanis launched another massive attack Friday in the area of Chhamb, Kashmir.

The Pakistanis threw four infantry battalions, with support from tanks and planes, into the battle.

Before all communications were cut off with Dacca, news reports said thousands of civilians were fleeing the city, fearful that they might be caught in battle if the Pakistanis make a stand there.

The Indian army estimated 30,000 Pakistani troops are in the area, but said they are subjected to a relentless pounding by unchallenged air power.

In Calcutta, it was reported that the Bangla Desh government is expected to establish a provisional capital in Jessore today. Bangla Desh is the name the secessionists have given East Pakistan.

On the western front, an Indian spokesman said heavy fighting flared again in the Chhamb region in southwestern Kashmir.

PRIME MINISTER Indira Gandhi addresses a mass rally at Delhi University in New Delhi, India, Friday. She said India rejected the UN call for immediate ceasefire in the India-Pakistani war and would "take all steps" to achieve independence of East Pakistan. Meanwhile on the war front, Indian forces were reported to be approaching provincial capital of Dacca.—(AP)

Yeast, Wine Usage

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You mentioned yeast extracts as contributing to high blood pressure. I take brewer's yeast in tablets along with my regular vitamins. Can I use it?

Is the use of an ounce or two of a dry wine permissible for one with high blood pressure? Some doctors claim that a little wine may even be beneficial for high blood pressure. — J. M.

My answer to you will be an answer to other readers who are concerned over their blood pressure. My reference to yeast extracts, by which I primarily meant brewer's yeast, was in relation to use at the same time, of certain tranquilizers that are commonly used to lower blood pressure.

In other words, I wasn't — and am not — saying that the yeast is going to cause high blood pressure, or the other items I mentioned (aged cheeses, too much wine) in a person whose pressure is within reasonable brackets to start with.

No, I mentioned them when taken by a person already under medication for high blood pressure. Whether the exact action is interference with the tranquilizer, I cannot say. Perhaps that's it.

But when being medicated for high blood pressure, I would avoid those items.

So far as the brewer's yeast is concerned, I'd say it is hardly necessary, anyway, in addition to your regular vitamins.

Wine in large quantities also can bring the wrong kind of results if you are on blood pressure medication, but an ounce or two of dry wine would be quite permissible. It would do no appreciable harm; rather, its relaxant effect would be helpful.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What could you recommend for eczema around the eyes, ears, and on the neck? — R.H.P.

Nothing — except seeing a dermatologist or your doctor. "Eczema" is such a broad term that it can cover any number of conditions. The first thing is to find out exactly what it is. Cosmetics could be a factor.

filly and drinking with friends.

He saw the horse bumped during the race, he said, and agreed with the jockey Kevin Furlong that a foul claim should be lodged. However, the stewards disallowed the claim.

Later the same day he sold Last Note, he said, and then caught the 7 p.m. ferry back to Vancouver.

(Baxter testified he had not bet any money on the race.)

In the defence summation, Vancouver lawyer Paul Delaney noted that since Baxter said he had not bet, he had nothing to gain by running a ringer — a substitute horse.

He told the jury that four defence witnesses had testified that Music Melody was in her Vancouver-area barn the day of Aug. 21, and asked them if Baxter would have wanted to claim a foul, knowing it would mean the race would be carefully scrutinized by the stewards, if he had run Music Melody instead of Last Note.

Delaney questioned the testimony of a crown witness, Alec Green, chief tester at the Sandown meet. Green, he said, testified he could remember the horse's tattoo number clearly, but at the same time had made errors in remembering the color and sex of hhe horse.

In the crown's summation, Smith told the jury that there had been photographs entered into evidence which showed a white star on the forehead of the horse running as Last Note.

It had not been disputed, he said, that Last Note did not have such a star and Music Melody did.

Smith said that Green had admitted honestly he had made a mistake with the horse's sex and color, but he remembered the tattoo number clearly because it was very much like his former regimental number.

Both Last Note and Music Melody were three-year-old fillies owned by Baxter, but Music Melody had the much better racing record.

In his final charge to the jury, Drake said that under the law the substitution of one horse for another would be fraud, and a main aspect of the case was the credibility of the 26 witnesses who had appeared during the five-day trial.

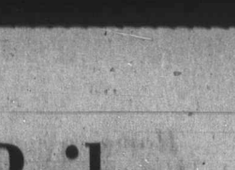

The first problem they should consider, he said, was whether the alibi for Music Melody (that she was in Vancouver) would stand up.

The jury came back after about 4½ hours of deliberation and asked for instructions as to whether in order to convict Baxter, they had to be certain it was Music Melody he substituted for Last Note.

Drake said he believed it was, as this was a key part of the crown's case against Baxter.

Findings Praised

Ottawa Scientist Gets Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Praised for research theory and findings that have influenced progress in virtually all chemistry fields, Canada's Prof. Gerhard Herzberg Friday received his 1971 Nobel prize for chemistry.

Herzberg, 67-year-old professor affiliated with the National Research Council in Ottawa, was among four scientists and one poet sharing in a total of $450,000 in award prizes in formal presentation Friday.

The Nobel diploma and prize checks were presented to Dr. Herzberg, Dr. Earl W. Sutherland of Nashville, Tenn. (medicine), Prof. Simon S. Kuznets of Harvard University (economics), Prof. Dennis Gabor of Britain (physics) and Pablo Neruda, Chile's ambassador to France (literature).

Herzberg, 67, won his Nobel insignia for his "extremely elegant work" in experimental spectroscopy. Prof. Stig Claesson of Uppsala University said in his speech to Herzberg, that the Canadian's ideas and results have influenced scientific progress in almost all branches of chemistry.

A few hours earlier, West German Chancellor Willy Brandt received his Nobel peace prize in Oslo.

Gabor, 71, was the first laureate to step up to King Gustaf Adolf to receive the leather-bound diploma and his Nobel medal. As he returned to his chair on the stage, trumpeteers of the Stockholm Philharmonic Orchestra sounded a fanfare.

Dr. Sutherland, 55, a keen fisherman in his spare time, won his medicine prize for finding the substance cyclic Amp, the link between hormones and control mechanisms in the human body.

"You have discovered one of the fundamental principles involved in the regulation of essentially all life processes," Prof. Peter Reichard of the Swedish Caroline Institute told him before Sutherland was given his medal and diploma by the 89-year-old king.

No speeches were made by the laureates during the ceremony which was held in a Pentecostal church this year, as the Stockhold Concert Hall, traditional site for the event, is being rebuilt.

After the prizes in natural sciences had been distributed, Karl Ragnar Gierow of the Swedish Academy of Letters said "Bienvenido, Neruda!" (welcome, Neruda) to Pablo Neruda, the literature prize winner.

Neruda, 67, looking every inch a diplomat in full evening dress like the other laureates, listened while Gierow described his poetry to the 2,700 guests.

But Gierow said it is impossible to describe Neruda's poetry in a brief speech.

"To catch the essence of Neruda in a few words is like chasing condors with a butterfly net. Neruda in a nutshell is simply not feasible: The kernel bursts the shell," he said.

Canadian Market Threatened

European Trade Revisions Needed

BRUSSELS, Belgium (CP) — Canada thinks it will be necessary to set up new machinery for consultations on trade with the European Common Market as the result of Britain's prospective entry, External Affairs Minister Sharp said Friday.

At a news conference following the annual meeting of NATO foreign ministers, Sharp spoke of Canadian concern over what might happen to Canadian trade as the result of Common Market developments. He has been conferring with Common Market officials on the question.

Sharp protested the Common Market extending "preferential areas" to such regions as the East African community, as it did last year.

"We don't want any preferential arrangements for Canada with the European Community, but we want to be able to discuss problems that arise in trade in such a vast arrangement," he added.

The minister said he did not think his talks here on trade will settle anything immediately.

He talked Friday with Franco Malfatti, president of the Common Market executive committee and today he is to confer with market commissioners responsible for agriculture, external policy and trade.

Friday, he also met with French Foreign Minister Schmann and said at his news conference that the meeting largely concerned Franco-Canadian co-operation in communications.

Also, Sharp added, he and Schumann got together on improving Canadian-French relations, which have been strained in recent years.

In an address to the NATO ministers Friday, Sharp warned of problems to the alliance that could arise from "deterioration in the world trade and monetary situation and the increased danger of trade polarization."

The NATO officials went along with the Canadian suggestion to the extent of keeping the problem "under continuing review."

Allies Close Ranks To Confront Buildup

The 15 members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization set about patching up old differences with a series of new compromises covering political, economic and military issues that have nagged them for years.

At the centre of NATO's re-emerging unity was a political agreement to delay the start of talks with the Communist countries on a European system of security. These exchanges will begin, the allies said in a communique, only after the Soviet Union signs and seals a Big Four accord on divided Berlin.

"Until there is a signing of the Berlin protocol," U.S. State Secretary William P. Rogers told reporters, "no one can be sure if there is going to be a security conference or not."

These other compromises were concluded, or shaped up, during four days of deliberation among NATO's defence and foreign ministerss who had assembled for their regular year-end conference:

- The United States signed a two-year agreement with West Germany setting off 2.034 billion of the cost of keeping U.S. troops in Germany. Rogers called it "an example of burden-sharing;"
- Iceland announced it is not seeking now to force the U.S. to quit the Keflavik air base, which allows planes to track the Soviet Atlantic fleet. The Icelanders had said last summer they intended to cancel U.S. rights;
- Ten European member nations have pledged to spend more than a billion dollars more in 1972 on modernizing their defence systems.

The U.S. won praise for undertaking to deploy its Poseidon weapon system for the defence of the NATO area. Poseidon is a missle carried by a nuclear-powered submarine.

The allies noted with concern that the Soviet Union "continues to strengthen both its strategic nuclear and conventional forces, especially naval forces."

Their communique added: "They recognized the global nature of the Soviet maritime capability and in particular the deployments and activities of the Soviet fleets in the Atlantic and in the Mediterranean."

The curator of Marineland of the Pacific, John Prescott, said the migration is late this year. It usually begins by late November.

A Call for Stiff Control

A COMMITTEE COMPRISING high-ranking government scientists and distinguished medical men has discovered a "rapid escalation" in the number of narcotics addicts in this country — a fact well known to sociologists, doctors and policemen in this province for a long time.

In 1950, Vancouver's Chief Constable John Fisk reported last July, there were 500 known heroin addicts in that city, but "at this time there are an estimated 4,000," and the rate of increase beyond the control of the police.

Other equally reliable authorities place the total of addicts at a very much higher figure. But whatever it is it constitutes a problem demanding remedial action of wide-ranging and generous proportions.

"The distribution of hard drugs in Vancouver," said Chief Fisk six months ago, "is controlled by several highly organized groups . . . We must look to our sociologists and medical people and others in related fields to take the kind of action necessary to combat the causes and effects of this major social problem."

If the situation was urgent last summer it is certainly no less so today.

The committee that announced the rapid escalation of addiction also found what it considered "an alarming rise" in the legal importation of methadone, an addictive drug used in the treatment of heroin users. It urged stiffer controls and implied some laxity among professional men in the treatment of large groups.

A small number of physicians may be responsible for excessive or permissive prescribing of methadone, the committee reported.

As a result the Canadian Medical Association will make recommendations to its provincial divisions in the regulation of the use of this drug.

The committee was provided with federal statistics showing a 22 per cent increase in narcotics addiction in one year, with 60 per cent of the 4,943 total in B.C.

This figure is so far off the mark generally accepted by authorities in this province as to render the committee's conclusions suspect.

It is not to be inferred that the members were deliberately misled, but there is some reason to doubt that the statistics provided were accurate or up to date.

The committee's concern for greater control of methadone prescription is certainly warranted, but the pity of it is that it did not couple with its warning a recommendation in the strongest terms for the immediate expansion of the treatment facilities for heroin addiction in this province.

It will do no harm to repeat what the Narcotic Addiction Foundation of British Columbia has known for a long time, that there is not a community of any size in this province which has not a narcotics problem and where a foundation branch for its systematic treatment is not required.

It will be interesting to see the final recommendations of the LeDain royal commission currently studying the whole problem of drug abuse, including the so-called soft drugs, like marijuana and hashish. It was expected these findings would be known this month but latest word from Ottawa is that they may not be made known — except by cabinet leak — until the new year.

The West's Guilt

THOUGH THE GOVERNMENTS of the West continue to express their pious dismay over the Indo-Pakistan war, they cannot escape their own culpability in the tragic affair.

While the innocents lay dying in cities and villages laid waste by the scourge of battle let it be remembered that it was happening because the statesmen and politicians who now so self-righteously preach against the horrors of war did nothing to prevent it.

And it is the West, including Canada, upon which the major part of the blame must fall, for it is the Western nations which claim no political or economic involvement in the Indian sub-continent and it is the West which possessed the facilities and the ability to provide assistance when it was needed.

Had the Western nations made an all-out move to cope with the massive Bengali refugee problem instead of making a few pitiful gestures and being satisfied to let the Indian government with its meagre resources bear the brunt of the responsibility of attempting to save 10,000,000 men, women and children, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi may well have been dissuaded from taking up arms against Pakistan.

Had the nations of the West brought their full economic and diplomatic weight to bear over the rebellious state of East Pakistan, both sides might have been persuaded to seek a peaceful solution.

Had the Western governments been willing to risk the wrath of the Soviet Union or China in the interests of saving lives by acting in unison to prevent war, they could have succeeded.

However, this was not the course that was chosen and we Canadians, along with other citizens of other Western democracies, must learn to live with our consciences. Our political leaders, however, should know now that the words they preach are just as cheap as the life of the Karachi urchin whose broken body lies at the side of the road.

The Olympus of Democracy

Capital Comment

The Poisoned Economy

By LUBOR J. ZINK

THE Economic Council of Canada has put a price tag on the Trudeau regime's mismanagement of the economy. It's three billion dollars a year.

The staggering figure appears in the council's latest report, "performance in perspective." It represents the difference between the potential and the actual performance of the economy.

By potential performance, the economic council means the output and income that would be achieved under a sensible management of available material and manpower resources.

"The Canadian economy," the council says, "recently has been operating at a level 3 to 4 per cent below its potential. In other words, there was a shortfall of about $3 billion on an annual basis, from levels of output and income that might have been achieved with reasonably full use of Canada's labor force and other productive resources."

While the council does not say so in so many words, it makes it abundantly clear that the huge shortfall (or "GNP gap") resulted primarily from the government's misconceived "war on inflation."

The GNP gap, which emerged in 1970, was "partly a delayed reaction to the building-up in Canada in 1969 of a vigorously restraining combination of monetary and fiscal policies."

These policies, which slowed down production and created large-scale unemployment, were imposed on the assumption that the economy was straining its capacity under "demand inflation" pressures.

That assumption was entirely unfounded.

Demand inflation describes a situation in which too much money chases too few goods and the economy, running at full capacity, cannot produce more. Scarcity of goods and labor pushes prices and wages up.

When Trudeau took office in 1968, there was no demand inflation. There was no shortage of goods and the economy, far from being overheated, was beginning to develop a slack. But costs and prices were soaring. Not because of any strain on production capacity but as a result of accumulation of unrealistic wage settlements and drops in productivity. In other words, the economy was suffering from cost-price inflation entirely unrelated to production capacity and actual performance.

The Trudeaucrats mistook this new phenomenon for a symptom of demand inflation and used orthodox deflationary fiscal and monetary measures to attack the wrongly diagnosed malaise.

It was, no doubt, an honest mistake, for no government would deliberately aggravate its economic problems.

Having made that error the Trudeaucrats should have, however, set out to correct it as soon as it became apparent that far from doing any good, the prescribed medicine was making matters considerably worse.

This became obvious fairly soon in the combination of rising unemployment and rising costs and prices. Instead of tracing the trouble to the wrong diagnosis, the Trudeaucrats, convinced of the infallibility of their theories, increased the anti-inflation dosage which was poisoning the economy.

This clinging to the increasingly untenable premise of Trudeau's anti-inflation war has caused most of the damage the economic council assesses at around $3 billion a year.

As a direct result of the Trudeau regime's mismanagement of the economy, we now have close to half a million unemployed, many of whom are sliding into the welfare category. Soaring welfare costs are siphoning off funds which would otherwise be available for job-creating expansion of production.

The size of this burden cannot be expressed in a neat figure, for no one can put a price tag on human anguish and suffering. But the purely economic size of it can be gleaned from the council's estimate that a sustained growth rate of 6 per cent in real terms would be necessary for at least four years to reduce unemployment to around 4 per cent of the labor force.

Last year, the GNP growth rate was 3.3 per cent. This year, after the government was finally forced to ease its strangling grip and start pump-priming the economy with borrowed funds, the growth rate is expected to come close to 5 per cent. Even this advance, achieved with deficit financing, cannot keep pace with the growth rate of the labor force, although that rate (2.8 per cent), contrary to Trudeau-Benson claims, is lower than it was during the second half of the 1960s (3.2 per cent).

So the prospect is more unemployment and another round of cost-price inflation, fueled by staggering deficit budgeting.

It's a hell of a price to pay for an electoral misjudgment. Hopefully, the painful lesson will not be lost on the voter next time around.

I Beg to Differ

Battle of the Thermostat

By FRANK LOWE

IT is about this time of year that the annual Battle of the Thermostat is joined.

You know what I mean — the warfare that exists all winter long between those members of the family who think the thermostat should be at 75 degrees, and those who opt for 65 degrees.

Marriage experts, when they talk about the reasons for family dissension, usually talk about such irritants as lack of money, lack of love or lack of understanding.

They never seem to get to one real cause of family donnybrooks — differing concepts of how warm a house should be. And in my modest opinion, this is a leading cause.

Particularly during the bracing Canadian winter.

One family I knew, for instance, had as its alleged head a male who loved to wear thick sweaters and woolly sox. So one year he decided that he and his family would live in their seashore establishment through the winter.

He thoroughly enjoyed tramping along the freezing beach picking up chunks of driftwood to burn in the fireplace, which, aside from the kitchen stove, was the sole source of heat in the cottage.

One night when I was there he pointed to the fire and commented lyrically on the pretty blaze the salt-soaked driftwood made. His wife's comments were hard to follow because it is difficult to articulate clearly when one has a blanket over one's head.

In about half an hour I was looking for a blanket, too, but the kids had got there ahead of me. So I tried to assume the lotus position on my chair — at least it got my feet up off the floor — and kept looking in the mirror to check the first signs of frostbite.

Then my friend, in his best lord-of-the-manor tone, ordered his wife to throw another chunk of wood on the fire. She untangled herself from her blankets, picked up a chunk of driftwood — and hurled it at him.

When my friend regained consciousness, he did the only thing he could do under the circumstances. He promised to find the family a heated apartment as soon as possible.

Now, I am not saying that the ordinary Battle of the Thermostat takes on such violent overtones. But I do feel it does play an important role in many marriages.

Some husbands try to win the battle by appealing to a wife's sense of thrift. Each time the furnace is heard turning on, the husband lets out a shriek of anguish and gives a lecture on the high price of fuel oil.

This may work in part. The wife, for instance, may agree to turn the thermostat down while her husband is at home.

But the minute he leaves the house up it goes again, and the wife sheds her sweater and woollies to luxuriate in all that expensive warmth.

But most wives, or so I have found, won't accept even this rather sneaky compromise. It is their home, too, and they know what temperature is best for it.

Turn down the thermostat? Over my dead body you'll turn down that thermostat. You may have grown up in an igloo, but I didn't, and our children won't either.

So the scene is set for the classic confrontation. Each time the husband passes the thermostat he quietly turns it down. His wife then just as quietly turns it back up.

Furnaces have been known to develop a bad case of nerves because of such actions, and blow their stacks.

Naturally, no such bickering goes on in my home. No, sir. After all, when it is three women pitted against one mere male, I know who is going to win.

And it is not going to be me.

Well, sometimes I do crack. Usually this is at night when the family is asleep and I am laying awake listening to the furnace gulping oil the way a thirsty St. Bernard gulps water.

Then I will tip-toe down the stairs and give that old thermostat a sensible adjustment. It not only allows the place to cool off to a proper sleeping temperature, it also helps my blood pressure.

It is the coward's way out, admitted. But it does keep my home intact.

Today in History

King Edward VIII abdicated 35 years ago today — in 1936 — after only 11 months of a reign that had aroused high expectations. Edward, since then the Duke of Windsor, gave up the throne to marry "the woman I love," the American divorcee Wallis Warfield Simpson.

1944—The Finnish Army was demobilized under Russian armistice terms.

1941—The United States declared war on Germany and Italy.

1864—Florence was designated as the temporary capital of Italy.

1620—The Mayflower arrived at Plymouth Rock.

Technology Advances Force Government Reorganization

By OTTO VON HABSBURG

RECENTLY President Nixon submitted to Congress a plan to reorganize the U.S. government. It is unlikely that it will be accepted before the 1972 elections. Politicians are much too busy with issues likely to make headlines. Nevertheless it is probable, that, after the battle is over, the proposal will be discussed and accepted.

The problem is politically significant well beyond America's borders.

Our governmental machines, almost without exception, come from the 19th century. At that time, technical conditions were different. Reports were written with the pen, telephones were rare, the available information scant. The rhythm of life was slow. These realities molded the structures of governments.

Especially since the Second World War we had the explosion of the means of information and the electronic machinery. The computers, especially, become the most important instrument in politics and in the economy. During this decade, 10 per cent of all industrial investments will be made in electronic data machines. The governments will have to follow.

Industrial reconversion to modern techniques demands that the enterprise must be completely reorganized. The same applies to politics. What has been done so far is inadequate. Wherever machines were purchased, they were simply dumped into the existing structures, which are obviously not fit for their use. According to expert estimations, computers purchased by Western European governments operate at less than 20 per cent of their capacity — in other words uneconomically. If a private enterprise was run like our states, it would be bankrupt in a few weeks.

Nixon's plan should align the U.S. government on the computers. The structure would be hierarchical, with information at its centre. Collection, evaluation and distribution of news becomes the main function of government. This leads to widespread simplification. Thus, the number of cabinet posts will be reduced from 12 to eight. More than 100 agencies will be consolidated or their tasks transferred to the states and the municipalities. Modernization hence leads to decentralization. Federalism obviously is not obsolete.

These simplifications have a rough road ahead. Nobody should underestimate the strength of bureaucratic resistance. The defence of a long-redundant desk leads to feats of cunning and courage worthy of a better cause. Nevertheless these will be rear-guard actions. It is unlikely that organizations whose continued existence could gradually prevent the functioning of government can survive very long.

Enforcement Through a Minority

By ALAN DEAN
from Rome

WHILE Communist parties in the West fight for power and increased membership — though not necessarily in that order — the Communists who rule 14 of the world's countries enforce their law through a minority within a minority.

In the Soviet Union, an issue pointing to potential conflict at this year's 24th Party Congress was marked up by the decision to revoke current party membership cards throughout Russia and require members to apply for new ones.

This move lays the groundwork for an administrative purge of party membership and may also indicate growing concern within the top caucus over the party's numerical growth.

Power is exercised by a tightly knit group of Central Committee members in each country. This gives lie to the democratic tag on many Communist parties. At one time, the Kremlin Politburo, comprised of a fraction of the Soviet Union's Central Committee, controlled all of the world's Communist parties.

The Kremlin's supremacy began to wane following Yugoslavia's break with Moscow in 1948. The erosion continued with the emergence of Peking as a contender for control of international communism while the Soviet-led invasion of liberalized Czechoslovakia in 1968 hampered Moscow's attempt to create a new image.

The "Brezhnev Doctrine" of limited sovereignty for socialist countries did little to enhance the Kremlin in the eyes of many Communists in the West.

The Soviet Union, with a population of 240 million, presently claims to have 14¼ million members in its CPSU. Party membership in Russia's ideological adversary, China, is estimated to be 17 million out of a population that is approaching 800 million.

In the Soviet bloc, Poland has the second largest Communist Party — known as the United Workers' Party — with a 2¼ million membership out of a population of over 32 million. Czechoslovakia, with a population of almost 14½ million, claimed to have 1,200,000 Communist Party members at the end of 1970. Prior to the 1968 invasion, party membership was 500,000 higher. The decline reflects purges, resignations and members who fled the country in the post invasion period.

Josef Smrkovsky, one of the foremost leaders during the short-lived Czech liberal period of 1968, recently told Giorni-Vie Nuove, an Italian magazine close to the Italian Communist Party, that barely 10 per cent of the Czechoslovak people were backing the present pro-Soviet regime.

In an interview that pointed up the fate of those involved in the liberal administration of Alexander Dubcek, Smrkovsky said he learned of his expulsion from the Communist Party through the official Czech party paper, Rude Pravo.

He added that many highly educated officials of the former Dubcek government are today employed as non-skilled laborers, mostly in building projects outside Prague. Others, such as professors, ambassadors, physicians and newsmen who backed Dubcek are today janitors and porters.

This is not only the case in Czechoslovakia. Any Communist official in Eastern Europe who falls foul of the Central Committee for "deviation" is relegated to the bottom of the social ladder. Many find themselves in labor camps in the Soviet Union.

Jackie's Aunt Faces Eviction

By KNUT ROYCE
Colonist-Newsday Service

EAST HAMPTON, L.I. — The Suffolk County health department has ordered the aunt and cousin of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis to leave their once majestic but now badly-dilapidated house here next week or face formal eviction proceedings.

The order, in a letter to the two elderly women Friday, followed an inspection of the 28-room house Tuesday by county health officials. They said they had found that sanitary conditions had deteriorated since the last inspection, on Nov. 24. The two women, Mrs. Edith Bouvier Beale, the sister of John Vernon (Black Jack) Bouvier III, the father of Mrs. Onassis, and her daughter, Miss Edith Bouvier Beale, have been living since 1923 in the house they call Grey Gardens.

Sidney Beckwith, head of the health department's housing and sanitation division, said he had sent copies of the letter to three of the Beales' relatives, including Mrs. Onassis, asking for family cooperation in relocating the women. Told of the county's request for help, Nancy Tuckerman, a spokesman for Mrs. Onassis, remarked: "I don't know why Mrs. Onassis. I would assume that Mrs. Beale's son (attorney Bouvier lony, Glen Cove) is the one they should see." Beale, who last month said, "I don't know anything about it," also was notified by the department. He was unavailable for comment. The third relative, John H. Davis, a cousin of Mrs. Beale, also was unavailable.

Beckwith said that the inspection Tuesday by a public health sanitarian and a nurse "showed that conditions in the dwelling are still extremely unsanitary." He said the two women "are just not able to cope with the existing problem and therefore it's become imperative that they move out."

The two women, who were reported home Friday night, did not respond to several telephone calls.

Beckwith said that 12 cats had been found in the home, all of them ill, and that the Beales themselves "said they were not feeling good. They had been sick and called it a virus."

Headaches for Canada

Nixon Cuts U.S. Tax

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon signed into law Friday a mammoth tax bill that includes $45.8 billion in reductions for American taxpayers and a number of headaches for Canada and other trading partners of the United States.

Eliminated during the House of Representatives-Senate conference was the threat of a seven-per-cent excise tax on cars imported from Canada and elsewhere. In addition, the dreaded "buy-American" clause of the seven-per-cent tax credit on new equipment and machinery was considerably modified.

Remaining, however, is the scheme to give U.S. firms in the export business a potentially hefty advantage over other countries, a plan Canada has opposed since it was first proposed in Congress more than a year ago.

Under the so-called DISC amendment, a company could form all its export business into a domestic international sales corporation and defer taxes an 50 per cent of its earnings. A similar plan, as part of the 1970 trade bill, died with the termination of the 91st Congress last January and was revived as part of the present tax legislation.

Although the Nixon administration had asked a 100-per-cent tax deferral, even the modified DISC plan has caused great concern in Canada. Finance Minister E. J. Benson said this week Canada has made contingency plans to cope with problems created under DISC.

In keeping with the over-all purpose of the tax legislation, DISC is designed to increase U.S. employment, industrial expansion and trade. It would have the effect of attracting U.S. subsidiaries abroad to relocate home, give the U.S. an edge in markets where Canada and the U.S. compete and stimulate American sales in Canada.

Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin of Canada has said DISC probably would be countered effectively by Canadian measures. Although he did not elaborate, he said, for instance, Canada could put corporations establishing themselves in Canada in the same position as those in the U.S. It could be done in a number of ways.

In the Senate version, the legislation would have provided close to $40 billion in tax relief over three years. The White House termed as "budget busting" this massive loss of tax revenue and the House-Senate conference pared the figure to $15.8 billion.

Under the administration's "buy-American" clause, the seven-per-cent tax credit on new equipment and machinery would have applied only to items bought in the U.S. As finally passed, a U.S. firm can receive the seven-per-cent tax credit on new equipment and machinery bought anywhere with an important reservation

A potential headache for Canada remains in that, under the compromise arrived at, the president would be permitted to deny the credit on such machinery and equipment when it is purchased from a country discriminating against U.S. trade, as defined by U.S. trade law.

It is estimated that Canada now sells about $1 billion worth of such equipment annually to the U.S. About one-third of this total is subject to the 10-per-cent additional levy on dutiable imports imposed by Nixon Aug. 15 as a temporary measure to help the U.S. right its balance-of-payments position.

Bill Clears Mass Attack On Cancer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. senate gave final congressional approval Friday to a compromise bill aimed at mobilizing scientific talent in a search for a breakthrough against cancer, which claims 300,000 American lives a year.

The 85-0 vote sent the bill to President Nixon, whose signature was assured. Actual appropriations to provide $1.6 billion for the cancer attack must come later but that posed no problem.

Most of the money will be spent on cancer research although the bill establishes 15 new clinical centers, with $5 million for each, where patients will be treated as part of the research effort.

Arthur Laing Left Mark on Capital

Liberal 'Old Pro' To Retire

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Arthur Laing, the "old pro" of the Liberal cabinet, retiring at the end of this Parliament, leaves his mark on the national capital, like no other works minster.

In his nearly four years as public works minister, he managed to ram a new bridge down the throats of city council and the provincial governments of Ontario and Quebec. They didn't want it — but Laing made them take it.

Only in Ottawa could a thing like this happen — local and provincial governments fighting against acceptance, without charge, of a new $14,000,000 bridge — with federal authorities having to force it on them.

"Mules," Art Laing called them.

He leaves his stamp, too, on the capital in, as he put it at the time, "scaring hell out of the big developers."

The works minister warned two years ago that the days of "easy living" for builders, off what had been almost automatic government rentals and long-term leases of high-rise office space were over.

These rentals were worth multi-millions to the developers, as much as $25,000,000 to one builder alone.

But of course the heady days of rich rentals were far from over, with the government continuing to move into new towers.

While Laing concedes the builders "didn't stay scared for long," he likes to believe he pressured them into a better type of construction.

It was his idea that the builders were "chiselling," as it was phrased, and detracting from what should have been a far better mid-town appearance by "crowding" the structures right up against the sidewalks.

Since then, construction style has changed with new towers being set back from the sidewalks with space for lawns, flowers, fountains and arcaded pedestrian walks.

It was more than a week ago, at a meeting of his South Vancouver constituency association that Laing announced his coming retirement.

"But nobody was listening," he said today, expressing surprise that the news had reached the Commons seven days late.

Friday, there was some cross-floor kidding by the opposition in addressing him as "Senator Laing," the assumption being that the British Columbia vacancy in the senate would be his.

"Who in hell said that?" he asked. "I've got no plans, although I have a hankering to spend some time in the Yukon."

Why, after 14 years in the Commons, was he getting out?

"Who in damnation wants to be around Parliament Hill when you're 72?" he asked. "I'm 68 now, and if I ran again, I'd sure as hell be re-elected — I'd see to that, believe me — and that would put me into my seventies and still stuck here."

He makes light of the mark he is leaving on the capital — "Hell, it wasn't much," as he puts it — but he does like to think he will be remembered in the Arctic.

The achievement there that gives him his greatest satisfaction is the putting together of Panarctic Oils, a consortium of private and public enterprise to find and ultimately pipe out gas and oil.

Laing was the last of the Liberal "old guard" in the cabinet, its sole survivor after the recent resignation of Solicitor-General George McIlraith.

The works minister first came to the Commons in 1949 for a four-year term after which he returned to B.C. to lead the provincial Liberals. He returned to Parliament Hill again in 1962.

Alone now among the Liberals, except for Paul Martin, now a senator but still a member of the cabinet, Laing was the only minister who knew what it was like before the days of prime ministers Pearson and Diefenbaker.

Long in parliamentary experience, wise in the ways of politics, he has been in the right wing of the Trudeau cabinet.

A prodigious worker, he was a fiend for the "clean desk," going to work at it at around 8 a.m. and not leaving the office until it was bare with both "in" and "out" baskets empty.

Friday, as he chatted with the Colonist, he was lunching with Gordon Gibson, a senior aide in the prime minister's office, and the hottest bet to succeed Laing in Vancouver South.

Works Minister Elected in 1949

Arthur Laing, born in Eburne, B.C., and a graduate of the University of British Columbia, entered federal politics in 1949 as a Liberal MP for Vancouver South.

He switched to Provincial politics in 1953, winning the Vancouver Point Grey seat and the B.C. Liberal leadership.

Back to federal politics in 1962, he represented Vancouver South again, and was re-elected to the same seat in 1963 and 1965.

In 1963, he was appointed minister of northern affairs and in 1966, he was named minister of Indian affairs and Northern Development and became works minister in 1968.

Laing earned his B.Sc in agriculture at UBC in 1925 and before entering politics was manager of agricultural chemicals division of Buckerfields Ltd. of Vancouver.

He is a member of the Agricultural Institute of Canada, Phi Kappa Pi and Sigma Tau Upsilon.

A member of the United Church of Canada, Laing married E. Geraldine Hyland of Windsor, Ont. on July 17, 1938. They have one daughter, Mrs. David Billingsley (Linda).

Their home address in Vancouver is 5037 Angus Drive.

that is approaching 800 million.

ure, for no one can put a price tag on human anguish and suffering. But the purely economic size of it can be gleaned from the council's estimate that a sustained growth rate of 6 per cent in real terms would be necessary for at least four years to reduce unemployment to around 4 per cent of the labor force.

Last year, the GNP growth rate was 3.3 per cent. This year, after the government was finally forced to ease its strangling grip and start pump-priming the economy with borrowed funds, the growth rate is expected to come close to 5 per cent. Even this advance, achieved with deficit financing, cannot keep pace with the growth rate of the labor force, although that rate (2.8 per cent), contrary to Trudeau-Benson claims, is lower than it was during the second half of the 1960s (3.2 per cent).

So the prospect is more unemployment and another round of cost-price inflation, fueled by staggering deficit budgeting.

It's a hell of a price to pay for an electoral misjudgment. Hopefully, the painful lesson will not be lost on the voter next time around.

Report Outlines Economy Control

THUNDER BAY (CP) — The Committee for an Independent Canada was told Friday it should address itself to specific issues in the fields of economics, communications, education and the arts to counteract United States influence in Canada.

A report of the research and long-term planning committee of the CIC said there is a risk the organization's efforts "would be spread thinly" if specific issues are not recognized as "deserving immediate national priority."

Research committee chairman, Abraham Rotstein of Toronto, read the report to delegates attending the CIC's first national convention. He said the report deliberately drew no conclusions but instead offered suggestions for discussion at the weekend convention.

Many of the recommendations reaffirmed policies adopted earlier by the nationalistic organization.

In the area of economics, the report said there should be a gradual transfer of control of Canadian companies and resources to domestic from foreign hands as well as close supervision of employment policies of multi-national corporations.

Economic development programs should be formulated, particularly through the proposed Canada Development Corp., which would strengthen Canadian manufacturing activities.

The report, which said the extent of U.S. economic takeover in Canada exceeds that of any other industrialized country, recommended "continued opposition to a continental energy policy and continued support for Canadian trade union autonomy.

In the field of communications, the report supports "the revocation of tax privileges for Time and Reader's Digest," two United States magazines in which Canadian firms are allowed tax exemption on advertising because of their Canadian editions. It also advocates the creation of a Canadian news weekly.

As well, "further financial assistance will be required for Canadian book publishing and we should respond to policies that emerge from the Ontario royal commission on book publishing . . ."

In education, more Canadian courses should be supported in universities and more Canadian texts should be used in elementary and high schools.

In the arts, "consideration should be given to a more substantial and long-term program of support for the arts in Canada both at the federal and local levels."

This program could take the form of "a cultural policy for Canada under the sponsorship of the secretary of state's department."

Under discussion of strategy and political action, the report said the CIC must move from its initial position of creating awareness of the extent of U.S. influence to a position of producing solutions to problems.

Pontiac on Occupant Protection
The driver and passengers in the 1972 Pontiacs mentioned on this page are literally surrounded by features designed for their protection. The padded instrument panel is energy-absorbing. As is the steering column. And the front seat back tops. There's a steel Cargo-guard between the trunk and the passenger compartment. And steel Side-guard beams in all doors for added side impact security. Further impact security is provided in such areas as the fuel tank. Nothing has knowingly been left to chance. Some features, however, require action on your part if they are to do their jobs. Seat belts must be buckled up at all times. Same with the shoulder belts. But all the occupant protection features in your car aren't near as important as the way you drive. When driving, be careful, be defensive, be sober.

All It Takes

Ten Minutes In Bethlehem

BETHLEHEM, Israeli-occupied Jordan (UPI) — This hilltop town, famous as the birthplace of Jesus Christ, is, in the eyes of one of its citizens, "A 10 minute town."

"It takes the average tourist about 10 minutes to see all there is to see here and then they are off," said Jacob Michel, 70. His family has lived in Bethlehem 800 years. They have been in the tourist trade as long as anyone can remember.

See Grotto

"All they come to see here is the grotto where the holy book says the infant Jesus was born in a manger. That takes about 10 minutes. Then they hurry back to Jerusalem (15 miles north) which has everything — the holy sepulchre, the way of the cross, the Omar and Aksa mosques sacred to the Moslems, the wailing wall sacred to the Jews."

Jacob Michel, with his brother Salah, runs the oriental bazaar on Manger Square, as his father and grandfather and their fathers and grandfathers did before him.

Parents Rule

The Michels arrived in the holy land, either from France or Italy, with the crusaders in the 12th century. They took root in Bethlehem but now their mother tongue is Arabic. English and French are their business languages.

One of the next in the Michel line is Salah's son Salim. He is 22, single, and said Bethlehem is a traditional town, where parents still rule the roost and the permissive society of the West is unknown.

"I respect and honor my parents. I spend most of my time with them. I would not disobey them," Salim said. That will include accepting the girl they choose as his wife. In traditional Bethlehem families, marriages still are arranged.

Salim and Saaid Sawalha, 26, the manager of one of the two hotels in town, are a world apart. Sawalha, modishly dressed in a maxi overcoat to keep out the bone-chilling wind whipping across the Judean hills, recently returned from two years in Switzerland and England studying hotel management.

Don't Come

"I don't really know why I bothered," he said in accentless English, "I will never get to use what I learned there."

"We average three or four bookings a week," he said, "Most of our 20 rooms are never in use. Once Arabs used to come to Bethlehem from all over the Middle East. Now they don't come. This year we will be full at Christmas because one of the choirs singing at the celebrations is booked with us."

Swalha also was bitter that the high wages offered laborers in Israel siphoned labor away from Bethlehem.

Swalha said: "If I called five doctors right now they would all come running. If I wanted an electrician I could not get one."

Master electrician Antonion Kattan said:

"Bethlehem has made no progress for the last five years. Now all the workers go to Israel because the wages there are twice as high as we can afford to pay here. So I have to go out of town to find business too."

New Position For Y Worker

Present Outreach director for the Victoria YM-YWCA, John Durkin, has been appointed director of the Y's boys' program and camp, it was announced Thursday.

Durkin first worked for the YMCA when he helped organize the 1968 York conference and annual meeting of the National Council of YMCAs, and joined the staff of Victoria YM-YWCA in June of that year.

The Outreach program of the Y provides activities for youth from camping to summer day camp programs to drug research and gym programs for young offenders in juvenile detention homes.

B.C.'s Holiday Order Retreats from Confusion

A B.C. cabinet order declaring Dec. 27 a holiday this year has been withdrawn by the provincial government in an effort to straighten out the mess the order would've created for many workers in B.C.

The order, passed Nov. 2, created confusion in cases where union contracts provided that employees could be given Monday off in lieu of Christmas Day which falls on a Saturday this year.

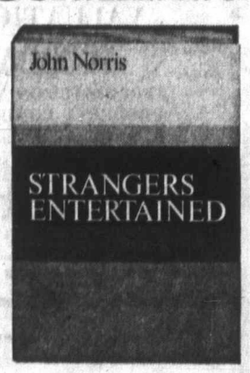

Some employers felt this was ruled out by the government's action in making Dec. 27 a statutory holiday.

Labor Minister James Chabot first said the order would stand because any further action on the government's part would probably only add to the general confusion. Then a further order made public Friday said "it is deemed advisable to rescind the aforesaid order in council and revoke the proclamation dated Nov. 2, 1971."

The latest move appears to leave it up to individual employers to decide whether or not to grant employees Monday off in lieu of Christmas Day. The provincial government has already announced it will give civil servants both Friday and Monday off, making it a four-day Christmas weekend.

Say, did you hear that Bob and Ruth ran into Jim and Betty after the cocktail party?

Tonight there will be many parties like this, and afterwards, many cars on the road being driven by men and women risking their lives and the lives of others because they drank too much.

They think they can drink and drive safely. They justify it by saying to themselves: "It can't happen to me."

If they're told that over half of all traffic fatalities in British Columbia are caused by drinking drivers, they shrug it off as if it didn't concern them.

If they're told that experiments by the world's largest car company show that not one driver who could pass a road safety test when sober could pass it when slightly intoxicated, they cry, "Prove it!"

They only stop and listen when they can't brake or swerve in time to miss hitting someone. And all too often it's too late to listen because at last it has happened to them and they've died in shock and agony.

Lumber Mill Closes

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — The M. B. King Lumber Company mill in North Vancouver, which employs about 200 persons, is to shut down. A spokesman for the firm, a division of Fullerton Lumber Company, said Friday that the closure is caused by economic conditions.

The spokesman said the company hopes to find other jobs for most of the displaced workers through Fullerton Lumber. The shutdown is expected to take place in stages extending into the first few months of the new year.

Domans Declares Common Dividend

DUNCAN — Doman Industries Ltd. Friday announced its first dividend for holders of common shares. The amount is 10 cents annually. First payment is 2½ cents quarterly, payable Jan. 17 for shareholders of record on Dec. 20. Ex-dividend date is Dec. 16.

The new dividend policy, appoved by directors Friday, punctuates the strong growth position of the lumber and transportation company that has its roots in the Cowichan Valley.

Friday's statement covers the fiscal year ending Oct. 31. It shows earnings per common share almost tripled (from .39 to $1.02), an almost 50 per cent increase in sales and net income rising from $524,000 in 1970 to $1,361,000 in 1971.

Domans, the only Island company listed on both the Vancouver and Toronto stock exchanges, also saw its operating profit zoom from $1,228,000 to $3,197,000.

Working capital went from $1,603,000 to $3,057,000. A new issue of first mortgage bonds was created in the past year under which $2,500,000 was borrowed and is repayable over five years, beginning in 1978.

The dividend policy was established now that the working capital and supporting financial positions are at proper levels, said a company spokesman.

Among capital expansion steps taken in the past fiscal year were the following:

Acquisition of U.S. freight hauling rights in Washington and Oregon, purchase of 17 acres of industrial land in Richmond upon which construction of a new freight terminal has started, purchase of additional timber quota and logging assets, expansions in the truck fleet, additions to the residential land bank, new equipment in the Ladysmith and Nanoose sawmills and paving at the latter.

Late in the fiscal year a contract was entered into by Domans with Pacific Logging, a subsidiary of Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd, to form Saltair Lumber Company Ltd., owned 80 per cent by Pacific and 20 per cent by Domans.

Saltair has begun construction of a sawmill at Ladysmith and when completed next summer will have an initial annual production capacity of 60 million board feet.

Doman Industries will be the sales agent for the new venture.

Stanfield Answered

Revaluation Not in Deal

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada does not want to have its dollar revalued upward "in exchange for anything," Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday in the Commons.

Replying to Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, he added that the U.S. apparently is not committed to not asking Canada for an upward revision.

Stanfield had asked whether the government has received assurances from the U.S. that it will not insist on an upward valuation of the Canadian dollar in relation to the American collar as part of a world currencies adjustment expected this month or next.

International representatives will meet in Washington Dec. 17 to discuss adjustments in world currencies. If no conclusions are reached, the group will meet again in late January.

Stanfield also asked whether countries other than the U.S. have accepted the Canadian view that a higher valuation on the Canadian dollar is not required.

Trudeau said he hopes the other countries understand the Canadian argument and will not press Canada to put a higher value on its dollar.

Some of these countries are more sympathetic to the Canadian position than others, the prime minister added.

Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin repeated that there is no connection between the exchange rate on the Canadian and American dollars and any modifications in the auto pact and other bilateral trade matters.

He was referring to U.S. economist Pierre Rinfret's assertion that Canada will get a favorable 2-per-cent devaluation against the U.S. dollar in exchange for auto pact concessions.

Pepin described Rinfret as "very imaginative" and said the economist "happened" to be at the Trudeau-Nixon dinner in Washington last Monday night.

Ford in U.S.

Toyota Up Again

TORONTO (CP) — A second price increase for 1972 Toyota vehicles was announced Friday, making the total increase so-l to 10 per cent compared to 1971 prices. The company blamed an upward revaluation of the Japanese yen.

The latest increases, effective Jan. 3, average 2.7 per cent. The earlier increase, averaging 7.1 per cent, was effective Sept. 29.

The company gave this example of the increases: A Corolla 1600 coupe with four-speed shift, which carried a suggested retail price of $2,299 last summer, was increased $166 to $2,465 Sept. 29 and will be increased $65 Jan. 3, making the new price $2,530 — an increase of $231 or 10 per cent over last summer.

The increase would average $90 a car, M. S. McLaughlin, Ford vice-president-sales said.

Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. has not increased its 1972 model prices but is expected to do so shortly, following the rest of the industry.

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. announced Friday it has increased the manufacturer's suggested retail prices of its cars and trucks in the United States by an average of 2.6 per cent.

Apple a Day Helps Needy

Colonist 500 Fund entered the school curriculum this week at Fairburn elementary school in Saanich's Gordon Head area of children in Grades One and Two.

One of the students' projects is selling apples during recess periods and also during lunch hour to people in the neighborhood, with help from their parents and teachers.

The project is designed to teach the youngsters not only to count money but also make change, a teacher at the school explained.

The children are also enthused that the proceeds from their project will be directed to those less fortunate than themselves this Christmas, which is the objective of the 500 Fund.

The fund will also benefit from a special folk-music concert at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at the Newcombe Auditorium. The music will feature performers Jack Day, Ted Bath, Jim Bates, Buckey Mitchell, Rob Anderson and Ray Luxemburg.

The doors open at 7 p.m. and the admission is $1 with all proceeds going to the 500 Fund.

Shop Safely for Christmas

An 82-year-old Oak Bay woman was reported in serious condition late Friday in Royal Jubilee Hospital following an unusual traffic accident earlier in the day.

Miss Mary Ashworth, 1712 Beach, suffered shoulder and wrist fractures when struck by a car at Monterey and Beach, Oak Bay police said Miss Ashworth had just left the car and a companion was parking it when she was hit.

An unusual series of accidents also kept Saanich police busy during the day Friday. Police said there were eight to 10 minor accidents in the daytime hours, far more than normal, and speculated Christmas shopping was partly to blame.

Police warned drivers to use extra caution on the roads during the hectic pre-Christmas period, especially when stores are open.

PROVINCIAL COURT

A 19-year-old Saanich youth admitted Friday in Victoria Provincial Court he uttered 21 bad cheques to get money for heroin — but wrote his own name on them so police would pick him up and he could "break the habit" in jail.

The youth, William Edward White of 1660 Cedar, confirmed to Judge William Ostler that the statement, given by a Victoria detective, was true.

White pleaded guilty Dec. 1 to a seven-count charge of uttering or attempting to utter worthless cheques, then pleaded guilty Friday to a charge containing 14 similar counts. The 21 cheques were cashed between Nov. 22 and 20 in various Greater Victoria stores for a total of $494.63.

Ostler told White he realized the offences were a sort of "cry for help from you" because, like some many young people, White was so addicted to heroin he couldn't stop committing crimes.

He sentenced White to one year definite and one year indeterminate and indicated the time will be spent in an outdoors detention centre.

Port Alberni railroad worker Joseph McKenna, 43, was remanded eight days for further hearing on a charge of attempted murder laid after a shooting incident Dec. 2 in the Colwood area in which fellow workman Leslie Edward Walsh was wounded in the neck.

Defence lawyer Ted Pollard said he was hopeful of raising McKenna's $20,000 bail in the next week. A date for a preliminary hearing, mandatory for such a charge, may be set at the next appearance.

Richard David Moyes, 18, of 235 Ontario, was remanded to Dec. 20 for a pre-sentence report and sentence following his plea of guilty to a charge of trafficking in MDA Dec. 3 in Victoria, a charge which a Victoria policeman said involved the sale of three capsules to an unidentified person.

Prosecutor Norman Prelypchan said Moyes was sentenced last Saturday by another juige to three months in jail after admitting possession of marijuana at the same time, his second such offence in three months.

Darryl John Slack, 18, of 1450 Myrtle, was sentenced to two months in jail and put on probation for 18 months. He pleaded guilty Dec. 1 to a charge of theft involving less than $50 — the shoplifting of two packages of cigarettes Nov. 30 from the Safeway store at 1670 Hillside.

A suspended sentence and 18-month probationary term were given to Darelene Mary Wasylechi, 17, address not known, who was raised Nov. 29 to adult court from juvenile court and pleaded guilty the next day to a Saanich charge of breaking and entering and theft. The charge followed the theft of items worth a total of $340 from another part of her former residence.

Bruce Irvine Wardhaugh, 43, of 230 Richmond, stopped Nov. 26 in Victoria, was fined $400 and given a partial four-month driving ban. Andrew Benko, 27, of 487 Tribune, stopped Nov. 13 in Esquimalt, and Clarence Daniel Lander, 22, of 879 Esquimalt, stopped Nov. 11 in Esquimalt, each was fined $350 and given a partial four-month driving ban.

Park Harmed By Fluorides

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — A two-year forest service study of pollution near and in Glacier National Park indicates considerable fluoride damage to more than 69,000 acres of federal, state and private lands. The report, released Friday, said fluorides emitted from the Anaconda Aluminum Co. plant near Columbia Falls "were determined to be the primary cause."

Fund Drive Planned For Cultural Centre

Community Arts Council president Allan Purdy said Friday his organization plans to launch a drive for funds in 1972 to be used for the establishment of a cultural centre.

Purdy said he is pleased that four local musicians, Victoria symphony conductor, Laszlo Gati, Robin Wood, George Corwin and Philip Young started the drive with personal donations of $100 each.

The CAC will hold a Congress of the Arts Feb. 5 at Newcombe Auditorium when anyone interested in the arts and the building of a cultural centre will be able to hear proposals for the building of a cultural centre.

Those attending will be asked to endorse a plan and the CAC will then launch a major drive for public and private money.

Purdy said there are no preconceptions about what kind of a centre should be built; only a desire to get something going.

Idea of a cultural centre has been discussed since 1958, said Purdy.

Top Soccer Goalkeeper Would Prefer To Be Forward

By IAIN MacLEOD

LONDON (CP) — No goalkeeper in the history of British soccer can claim to match Gordon Banks' domination of a single position in the England squad, but, surprisingly, Banks himself would much prefer to be up among the forwards.

"I got stuck in goal when I was a kid because I was good at it but a brilliant save never gets the same applause as a brilliant goal; it's something you have to accept."

It's not the only disadvantage that Gordon Banks has to live with as the target for some of the world's most aggressive forwards. Banks, who has stood between the England goal posts for more than five seasons, is the living proof that life is at its most dangerous in the goal-keeping area.

He first ran into trouble in his early days with Leicester City when a broken right wrist put him out of action for eight weeks.

The missing knuckle — from the little finger on his left hand — "is a complete mystery," 32-year-old Banks says.

"It must have been caused by a collision or a kick. But unless the injury is bad you tend to forget about it and with knocks coming all the time, bones never get a chance to heal properly."

In his most impressive saves Banks has never received any injury. During the 1970 World cup in Mexico, Brazil's ace player Pele fired a cannonball between the England posts and even shouted "goal!" But Banks got the lower part of his right hand to it and nudged the ball up over the goal bar.

"When I see it repeated on TV I look at myself and say it's impossible to save a shot like that. I don't know how I did it."

He also stopped a George Best thunderbolt during a League game, playing for Stoke City against Manchester United. Banks has kept goal for Stoke City since he left Leicester six years ago. In this encounter, Best had broken clean through Stoke's defence and Banks, advancing from the goal mouth, saved the low hard shot.

Any soccer enthusiast will tell you that the secret of a good goalkeeper is to have nerves of steel and a steady hand. Banks certainly qualifies.

"I was once at an exhibition of priceless glassware," he recalls, "and without realizing it I picked up some of the pieces to examine them while other visitors bent down, too nervous to touch anything."

Blues, Seals Tie, Catch Penguins

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Mike Murphy's third-period goal, his second of the game, earned St. Louis Blues a 4-4 tie with California Golden Seals in the only National Hockey League game Friday night.

The deadlock boosted both clubs into a third-place tie with idle Pittsburgh Penguins in the western division.

St. Louis took a 2-0 lead in the first period on Garry Unger's 15th goal of the season at 7:43 and Murphy's first goal of the game at 11:32.

The Seals, who were outshot 21-5 in the first period, evened the game after three minutes in the second on goals by Gerry Pinder, his ninth of the season, and Walt McKechnie's fourth of the year.

The Blues moved in front, 3-2 at 17:12 of the second period when Seals' defenceman Carol Vadnais shot the puck into his own net while trying to escape two opponents. Barclay Plager was credited with the goal.

California's Bobby Sheehan got his 15th of the season one minute and 12 seconds later to tie the game, 3-3, and the Seals went ahead at 6:16 of the third period on Craig Patrick's rebound shot.

Tonight's game between Boston and Vancouver will be telecast on Channels 2 and 6 and broadcast on radio station CKNW (980) starting at 5 p.m.

Faltering Wheat Kings Here To Play Cougars

Cougars, last in the Western Division and caught in a nine-game losing streak, host the faltering Wheat Kings tonight at 8:30 in Memorial Arena.

Brandon, making its first appearance in Victoria, will be greeted by a Cougar lineup shuffled in the past two days by a trade with Flin Flon Bombers.

Forward Rod Loynachan and defenceman George Pesut will make their Victoria debut along with Junior "B" product, Mel Bridgeman, a 16-year-old centre called up from the Victoria Junior Cubs.

Wheat Kings, the Eastern Division leaders for most of the season, went down to their fourth successive defeat Friday in Vancouver when the fowly Nats unleashed a 41-shot attack to bury the Wheat Kings, 12-2.

Since defeating Victoria, 6-4, in a Dec. 2 home game, Brandon has dropped decisions in Winnipeg, Edmonton and New Westminster before Friday's meeting with the Nats.

The Rudy Pilous-coached Wheat Kings dropped to third place behind Saskatoon Blades and Regina Pats, both winners on Friday.

Winger Bill Ennos scored three goals in the first period to pace the Nats to their fifth straight home victory and a four-point lead over the Cougars. Nats had been winless in five games.

Nats, who lead 4-1 after one period, scored five consecutive goals in the second period to wrap up the win.

Blades thumped Flin Flon, 9-1, before 2654 hometown fans and Regina edged visiting Calgary Centennials, 4-3, in sudden-death overtime. In another game, the Jets downed Medicine Hat Tigers, 8-6, in a free-wheeling affair at Winnipeg.

Doug Manchak, Bill Laing and Tom Pinder paced the Blades with two goals each and Harvey Schmidt, traded this week to Flin Flon by Victoria, scored the only Bomber goal midway through the third period.

Rookie sensation Dennis Sobchuk scored the winning goal and assisted on the other three Pat markers. Randy Knight scored three goals to lead the Jets past the Tigers.

Two of last season's Island finalists were among the first-round winners Friday night as play started in the south Vancouver Island mixed curling playdowns at the Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Keith Dagg of the Victoria Curling Club, who went on to reach the Pacific Coast Curling Association finals, started with a 9-7 extra-end win over clubmate Norm Richardson while Tom Dickson, also of the VCC bested Jim Sawyer of Esquimalt, 12-5.

Glen Harper of Duncan was on Friday's late draw while Harry Gulka of Playland, the fourth skip to reach the Island final last year, is not entered.

In the closest thing to an upset in Friday's first two draws, Mike Falkins and his Racquet Club rink downed Gary Merrett of Duncan, 9-4. A four on the eighth end broke open a tight game and a steal of two on the ninth end clinched it.

Twenty-nine rinks are entered in the double-knockout bonspiel-type competition which will send four rinks to the Island finals. Play resumes at 9 this morning and the four survivors will be known by Sunday.

Doug Manchak, Bill Laing and Tom Pinder paced the Blades with two goals each and Harvey Schmidt, traded this week to Flin Flon by Victoria, scored the only Bomber goal midway through the third period.

Rookie sensation Dennis Sobchuk scored the winning goal and assisted on the other three Pat markers. Randy Knight scored three goals to lead the Jets past the Tigers.

Oliva Now Member Of Select Company

BOSTON (AP) — Veteran outfielder Tony Oliva of Minnesota Twins moved into select company in winning the 1971 American League batting championship with a .337 average.

Official averages announced by AL president Joe Cronin showed that Oliva became only the sixth player in league history to win the batting crown three or more times.

Other members of the distinguished group are Ty Cobb with 12 titles, Ted Williams with six, Harry Heilmann with four, and Nap Lajoie and Carl Yastrzemski with three each.

Oliva, 30, who won the batting championship as a rookie in 1964 and again in 1965, was plagued by knee trouble last season, appearing in only 126 games, but finished with the highest average since Norm Cash of the Detroit Tigers hit .361 in 1961.

Bobby Murcer of New York Yankees was second with .331, and Merv Rettenmund of Baltimore Orioles third with .318. Cesar Tovar of Minnesota was fourth with .311 and teammate Rod Carew fifth with .307. Amos Otis of Kansas City Royals was the only other player over .300, batting .301.

Bill Melton became the first Chicago White Sox player to win the league home-run championship, hitting three in his final two games to finish with 33, one more than Cash and Reggie Jackson of Oakland Athletics.

Harmon Killebrew of the Twins won his third runs-batted-in championship, driving home 119. It marked the ninth time the veteran slugger has topped the 100-mark in RBI.

LED IN HITS

Tovar led the league in hits with 204, while Baltimore's Don Buford scored the most runs with 99.

Boston Red Sox' Reggie Smith and California Angels' Sandy Alomar led the league in two departments each. Smith was tops in total bases with 302 and in doubles with 33. Alomar played the most games, all 162, and appeared at bat 689 times.

Baltimore's champion Orioles led the league in batting with a .261 average, one point higher than Minnesota's mark.

Archer Scrambles Into Lead In Final Event of Season

FREEPORT, (AP) — George Archer had to do some scrambling to salvage a four-under-par 67 Friday but established a two-stroke lead in the second round of the $130,000 Bahama Island Open golf tournament, the last event on the long professional schedule this year.

The six-foot-six Archer, winner of two events already this year, had a 36-hole total of 133, nine under par for two trips over the sunsplashed Lucayan Country Club course, a 6805-yard layout that features dense tropical brush along the fairways.

"You've got to keep it in the fairways and out of that Tarzan and Jane stuff," said the 32-year-old Archer, who had to save par from traps three times in a four-hole stretch coming home.

The former Masters champion, fourth on the money winning list this year behind the absent Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer, held a two-stroke margin over first-round leader Grier Jones.

Jones, trying to fight his way out of a season-long slump, slipped to a 70 for 135. Bert Yancey was alone at 136 after a 69.

THREE AT 137

Herb Hooper and Rod Funseth, each with a 68, and J. C. Snead, with a 71, were next at 137.

George Knudson of Toronto who shot a 74 in the opening round, came in with a 69 for a two-round total of 143 but three other Canadians, Ben Kern, Gary Bowerman and Gary Pitchford missed the cutoff of 145.

Doug Sanders, the defending champion in this national championship, failed to make the cut for the final two rounds today and Sunday and lost his exempt status for the 1972 tour events.

Sanders had a 72 for 147 and failed to make the top 60 money winners this season, the determining factor for next year's exemptions.

Archer, an eight-year tour veteran who has been one of the more consistent players, took the titles in the Andy Williams-San Diego Open and the Hartford Open earlier this season and now has almost $133,000 in earnings this year.

Archer, generally considered one of the best putters on the tour, rolled in a 20-footer for a birdie on the first hole and made it from the same distance on the third hole.

He chipped to within five feet for a birdie four on the eighth hole, then made a two on the 13th hole.

Hope Cup Soccer Starts in Week

Victoria West-United and Victoria Gorge Molsons will clash for the second time this season at 2 p.m. next Saturday at Royal Athletic Park — but this time it has nothing to do with the Pacific Coast Soccer League.

The match will be the first in a three-way round-robin playoff for the Tony Hope Cup.

The final corner of the triangle will be filled by the Victoria and District Soccer All-Stars, who will play United on Dec. 26 and will meet Gorge Jan. 2.

In previous seasons, the memorial trophy has been played for between the District League All-Stars and United. It has been won for the last three seasons by United.

United and Gorge battled to a 1-1 tie in a mudbath at Royal Athletic Park when they met for the first time in the Coast League on Nov. 27.

Copts Cope with Islam

By WILLIAM TUOHY

CAIRO — One day next month a 12-year-old boy will ascend the steps of St. Mark's Cathedral and select one of three sealed envelopes lying on the altar.

Inside the envelope will be the name of a clergyman who, at that moment, becomes the new pope-designate of the Coptic Orthodox church.

Two weeks later, he will be officially invested amid ceremonial pomp as Pope of Alexandria and Patriarch of the See of St. Mark's, succeeding Kyrillos VI, who died last March after 12 years as spiritual head of Egypt's estimated five million Copts.

While Islam is the state religion of Egypt, the Coptic Orthodox Church continues to prosper as the largest Christian denomination in the Arab world.

Most of the various Christian churches in the Arab world—ranging from the Roman Catholic to the Eastern Orthodox to the Protestant — are barely holding their own against the flood tide of Islam.

As one Vatican expert on Oriental rites puts it: "We are up against the undeniable fact that Islam has a magnetic hold on many of the peoples of the Arab world."

But the Copts of Egypt seem to be thriving, partly because they trace their heritage back to the original Egyptians, and partly because their leadership has avoided the bitter factional fighting and quarrelling that has rent so many Christian denominations in the Middle East.

The lively interest in the papal election is a reflection of this fact, as is, in a way, the brand new campanile for St. Mark's Cathedral — that is as high as any minaret in Cairo.

Currently, there are nine candidates for the papacy: All Coptic bishops or senior monks.

Later this month, a committee of 19 members — composed of the nine papal candidates, nine other theologians and church officials, along with the acting pope, Bishop Antonious, who is not a candidate — will meet to winnow the field to between five and seven.

Those selected then will be presented to an electrorate of 700 religious and lay leaders who in a secret ballot in Cairo will vote for three finalists.

The names of the three final contenders are placed on St. Mark's altar sometime in October, and a young acolyte selected at random picks the winning envelope.

As to whether the final selection is not relying too much on chance, a Coptic elder says: "In the days of Christ and the apostles, many selections were made by lot. We believe that God's will surely will be done."

One out of every seven of the 34 million Egyptians is a Copt.

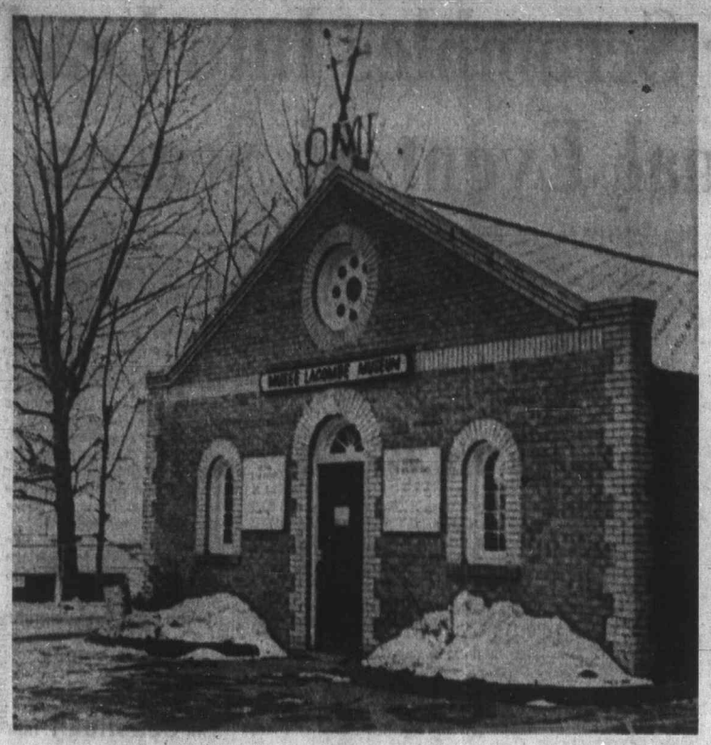

Though the Copts are a minority religious group, they have always held powerful and influential positions in Egypt's economic, cultural and professional — if not political — life.

Some Moslems charge that the Copts over the years have been too ready to accommodate to colonial masters—from the Greeks to the Mamelukes to the British.

But the Copts, in turn, argue that they have only learned through the centuries to bend with the prevailing winds, and concentrate on preserving their faith, which, indeed, has remained intact.

Bishop Samuel, who wears the clergy's black cassock and hat, adds: "We have about 1,500 priests for our 1,200 churches. Our laity is active and dedicated and our women are participating fully in church affairs.

"We believe that the Copts are the true Egyptians and we trace our heritage directly back to the pharoahs. We Copts are lineal descendants of a magnificent civilization."

Legend Of West

Rev. Albert Lacombe, an Oblate priest who became a legend during the taming of Canadian West, was assigned the task of building the mission of St. Albert near Edmonton in 1861, and today his original church is a museum surrounded by another church, home for aged, rectory-retreat house, hospital and a home for retired priests. Today, St. Albert parish is not led by one man, but by 10-member team of clergy using tape recorders, slide projectors and folk masses. Team believes in total involvement with all people no matter what their beliefs. Museum is shown above, while at left is statue of Father Lacombe as it stands outside St. Albert mission church today. Among Father Lacombe's achievements during his 67 years as frontier missionary — he brought religion and civilization to the plains, and peace to Indians and white men.—(CP)

Voice of One

Individual Most Valuable

By FRANK MORLEY

Samuel Barnett, warden of Toynbee Hall, observed one day that a number of people had come down at different times from the West End with large blueprint plans for the transformation of the slums and did little or no good. The only real, lasting good was done in the East end by people who were willing to take time and trouble with individuals.

Yet the whole meaning of life centers down to individuals. When Bishop Asbury ordained deacons he used to pray, "Oh Lord, grant that these brethren may never want to be like other people." Asbury thought that the desire for social conformity was a moral weakness, though it is decidedly more comfortable as a way of life.

All the public utilities like the electric lights, waterworks, schools, highways, and the post office are collectivist and now welfare, health, medicine, and the care of the poor and aged are all being taken over by the government. Even the Community Chest is a collectivist matter. There seems to be a decreasing area for the operation of the individual. Further, what can an individual do against the organized evil and suffering of the times? Can he stop the oppression of Czechoslovakia, the Viet Nam war, the horror of East Pakistan, or the conflict in the Middle East?

The trouble with working with individuals is that it is unspectacular and requires a great deal of painstaking. Often also one is bitterly disappointed, especially if he looks for gratitude. Moreover this is a collectivist age when the individual does not seem to amount to very much.

One could continue this list indefinitely because it has been individuals who have created the creeds, founded institutions, and originated the battle for causes which continue long after they are dead.

This certainly is not spectacular, but of such people as Ida Scudder and Kathryn Lawes one can say, "Of such is the Kingdom of God." An Indian saint once said that the highest goodness is like water, for water seeks the lowest places which men abhor. There are a great many things that can only be done by governments and on a collectivist scale. It is a sad thing however when people come to think that large organizations alone are important and that the individual doesn't matter. Jesus said few more valuable things then that nothing is more valuable in the sight of God than the individual.

Everyone knows about the famous Warden of Sing Sing Prison, Lewis E. Lawes, whose battle for saner and more humane prisons was terminated by a tragic accident. His wife Kathryn Lawes is not as well known though equally heroic, after her husband's death she continued in the prison going about like Jesus Christ doing good. For seventeen years she did not let one day go by without going through the prisons, into the prison hospital and the workshops, brightening the lives of despairing men. When she found the man was distressed over his family outside the prison in need, she took food and clothes, or if she found one lonely she brought friendship, or if someone wanted letters sent, she sent them. Men who were freed from prison went out with a few dollars from her meagre purse to make a new start in life.

When you think of it, however, all the people we admire have been real individuals. Take Ida Scudder whose father was the son of a missionary in India, and who himself was a medical missionary. Ida told how she used to pray that she might never be a missionary. Then when she was a young woman a Brahmin came and asked her to help his wife in childbirth. He refused to allow Ida's father, the doctor, to touch his wife. The same night a Mohammedan and a high-caste Hindu came for the same purpose, that Ida might assist in childbirth.

So she went back to the Women's Medical College in Philadelphia and became a doctor that she might undertake midwifery in India. At the Medical College in Vellore she trained others in midwifery and also graduated hundreds of medical practitioners while she founded and established roadside dispensaries.

The individual is not at the mercy of a world-process which made history a recurrence of meaningless cycles and the crushed good, the true, and the beautiful. Such thinking leads to disillusionment and destroys the soul by which alone great collectivist achievements are possible. Without great, magnanimous individuals no high society is possible.

Protection Always At Hand

Divine protection is always at hand. This is the theme of a Bible lesson-sermon, entitled God the Preserver of Man at Christian Science church services Sunday.

"The Lord shall preserve thee from all evil; He shall preserve thy soul. The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth, and even for evermore," a scriptural promise states.

Readings from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy explain why this is so. One citation says: "The divine mind that made man maintains His own image and likeness."

Nearing Century Mark

Nearing its 100th year overlooking waters of Saanich Inlet at Brentwood is Our Lady of the Assumption Roman Catholic Church, above. Church was built under guidance of Rev. J. M. Mandart, who came to region in 1865 to care for spiritual needs of Indian reservations and settlements on San Juan Island. Bishop Charles Seghers dedicated church in 1876.

'To Preserve Purity'

U.S. Senate Extends Church's Copyright

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate completed congressional action Friday on a 75-year extension of the Christian Science Church's copyright protection on the basic writings of its founder, Mary Baker Eddy.

The measure, which now goes to the White House, had been branded by the New York Bar Association an unconstitutional violation of the First Amendment's separation of church and state.

The bill would extend the copyrights on the various editions including translations of Mrs. Eddy's Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, published originally between 1875 and 1906. All copyrights except one on the last edition had expired and that one runs out Dec. 31.

The Christian Science church is reported to earn gross annual profits of $200,000 on sale of the books but reports by the Senate and House judiciary committee said the prupose of the legislation was "to preserve and maintain the purity and integrity of the statement of the religious teachings of this denomination" rather than to protect its financial profits.

Normal copyrights run 28 years with a 28-year extension.

The last regular one on Mrs. Eddy's book expired in 1962 but has been extended on a year-to-year basis since then.

Door Still Open On Marriage

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI repeated his opposition this week to a proposal allowing married men to become priests but he did not reject outright a recommendation by the third international synod of bishops to relax the church law.

The synod, which ended Nov. 6, came up with two proposals — one forbidding married men from becoming priests under any circumstances and one which would allow the practice in special cases.

The pope, in making public documents approved by the group, said he alone would decide when and if any of its recommendations would be converted to church law.

Vatican secretary of state Jean Villot said the pope repeated to him his opposition to allowing married men into the priesthood but the recommendation was not publicly rejected outright.

The pope already had confirmed he would not relax the church law forbidding priests to marry and Villot said the pope reiterated this again.

The pope is not obliged to accept any of the recommendations of the bishops, who spent 38 days in Rome deliberating subjects touching on the lives of all the world's 614 million Roman Catholics.

The pope himself earlier agreed reluctantly to consider allowing some elderly married men to become priests under special circumstances. That is, in places where there is a desperate shortage of priests.

Other recommendations covered a vast range of subjects, from pollution to the arms race, from church wealth to abortion and birth control.

Yuletide Dinner At First United

A congregational Christmas dinner will be a highlight of the holiday season for members of First United Church. Members, adherents, friends and visitors of all ages are invited to join in this affair, to be held at 6 p.m. Wednesday in the Fellowship Hall.

Other special events of the Christmas season at First United include a concert at 7:30 p.m. today by the B.C. Telephone choir; another by the Newcombe Glee Club at 2:30 p.m. Sunday at Metropolitan United Church, sponsored by the United Church Women.

Canadian Girls Hold Services

Our several worlds, symbolized in the "Circles of Christmas," will be the focus of Christmas Vesper Services to be held by Canadian Girls in Training throughout Canada this month.

In the Greater Victoria area these Vesper Services will be held at 10 a.m. Dec. 12 in Oak Bay United; at 7:30 p.m. the same day at St. Aiden's and First United; at 7 p.m. Dec. 19 in Centennial, Belmont Avenue and Esquimalt United; at 8 p.m. Dec. 25 in Fairfield United, and at 11 a.m. Dec. 26 in First Baptist.

Box Office Booming

Billy Graham Agrees Christ Superstar

By WAYNE WARGA
Colonist - Los Angeles Times Service

UNIVERSAL CITY, Calif. — Billy Graham, a populist if ever there was one, went on television recently to announce that "Jesus was indeed a superstar." It was a two-sided pronouncement, for Graham was being religious on the one hand and acknowledging a showbusiness phenomenon on the other.

The Jesus Christ Superstar boom is perhaps the oddest event yet. It comes at a time when organized religion is generally unpopular with young people and defiantly unpopular at the box office. No producer worth his percentage would make a biblical epic these days. Not the Charlton Heston-pontificating-on-the-mount sort, to be sure.

But set it to music, make it a rock opera? With organized religion in such disrepair, the box office a disaster, it wouldn't seem to have a chance. The odds against such an undertaking are so long they only make the giant success of Jesus Christ superstar — the two-record album, the two touring concert versions and the Broadway show which begins previews Monday — all the more remarkable.

The album (at $10) has sold three million copies and shows no signs of slowing down. The first concert tour was such a success it's being repeated; second and third concert tour groups are being assembled and a fourth is being planned. The Broadway show, with no spoken dialogue, directed by Tom O'Horgan, opened at the Mark Hellinger Oct. 12. The film version, directed by Norman Jewison, will begin shooting next spring.

"There is apparently a huge audience for this sort of thing," understates Ned Tanen, the 40-year-old vice-president of the group who is the major logistician and inventive head of the whole unlikely enterprise.

"We weren't going into concerts, we were going with Broadway only at first. I suggested the concerts. It didn't take a genius to see what was happening. We were in the right place at the right time and we had the sense to realize it and capitalize on it. But don't ask me to explain it. I can't."

It hasn't been all that easy. There is, for instance, a giant schism between rock and religion and, Tanen says, "There have been moments with this when I've felt I was a character in a Lenny Bruce album."

"We're trying to handle this whole thing delicately. You've got to when you're handling Jesus and religion. That's sensitive ground, to put it mildly. You wouldn't believe some of the things that have gone on."

To prove his point, Tanen moves quickly through the elegant antiques in his office to the enterprise's tower at Universal and starts looking through a box hidden behind the drapes. He rummages for a moment and pulls out a T-shirt with a distorted Jesus and the title of the show printed on it.

"We're doing everything we can to stop the merchandising of this. There have also been pirate companies of the concert tour. We've gotten injunctions against 15 of them, but we've missed others. The only city we didn't completely sell out — and we've been to nearly every major city in North America — was Toronto. We didn't sell out because there had been two pirated versions of the opera in town ahead of us and the people weren't about to get had again and didn't know we were the real show."

When the whole thing started Tanen was beset with dozens of scolding and angry church groups who claimed Jesus Christ was anti-religious and possibly blasphemous. As the album succeeded and the realization slowly dawned on the church groups that Jesus was, after all, getting to the kids, the complaints dropped off somewhat.

Dutch Treat

Pope Talks to Bishop On Catechism Clash

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI received in audience recently a Dutch bishop who is one of two replates responsible for a controversial high school catechism now under investigation by the Vatican.

The bishop, Msgr. Johannes W. M. Bluyssen of Hertogenbosch, and his colleague, bishop Hubertus C. A. Ernst of Breda, came to the Vatican to explain the catechism.

The Pope received Ernst Nov. 25.

Both bishops are holding meetings with cardinal John J. Wright former bishop of Pittsburgh and now, as head of the Vatican clergy department, the man in charge of catechisms. Also taking part in the meetings is Yugoslav Cardinal Franjo Seper, head of the Vatican Congregation for the Doctrine of Faith, the former holy office.

The catechism is a course of religion lessons taught to Roman Catholic high school students in the dioceses of the two bishops.

No details were given on the private conversation between the pope and Bluyssen, although Vatican sources said it was obvious the Dutch bishop wished to explain what he was trying to do with the new catechism.

According to the Vatican sources, the catechism is criticized here for not making it clear that Jesus was God, and for skirting around such dogmas as the virgin birth and divine origin of the bible.

The sources said holy office theologians consider the controversial course of lessons to be more radical that the "Dutch catechism" which was in hot water at the Vatican four years ago. That book was eventually given the Vatican's green light only provided that every copy contained the findings of a commission of cardinals appointed to examine the catechism, and which disagreed with its teaching on several points.

The two Dutch bishops decided to come to Rome, after receiving a letter from Wright and Seper to explain the new catechism personally.

The course was written by a staff of 20, assisted by five professors of the Nijmegen Catholic University and a guidance committee which included representatives of both bishops.

Churches Eligible For Job Program

OTTAWA (CP) — Manpower Minister Otto Lang said Tuesday that church organizations are eligible for funds under the government's job-creating program announced last month.

"There is nothing in the criteria which excludes them," Lang told former prime minister John Diefenbaker in the Commons.

Attempts were made under the local initiative program, funded by Ottawa but administered by the provinces, to prefer projects "which have as broad a community betterment in them as possible but that is only a matter of preference, not of rigid eligibility," said Mr. Lang.

Diefenbaker said church organizations should be eligible for the program "because they have a lot of work . . . for those who are unemployed."

Kidnappers Demand $2.1 Million

ESSEN, Germany — Police revealed Friday the abduction of a millionaire West German chain-store owner 12 days ago and said the kidnappers had demanded $2.1 million for his release.

— Theo Albrecht, 49, was last seen as he left his giant Aldi-Market chain's main offices at nearby Herten Nov. 29 at the end of the workday. His abandoned car was found 25 miles from Herten, a town 18 miles northeast of Essen.

It was the fourth kidnapping this year of members of rich West German business families.

Prosecutor Gerd Lindenburg said the Albrechts did not call the police immediately because of a warning note from the kidnappers they would kill Theo if police appeared. Mrs. Albrecht relented, however, because the kidnappers demanded that she and a son accompany an attorney to the payoff rendezvous, and because the kidnappers were going to hold the hostage for 24 hours after the payment.

RED DEER — The Advocate says Robert Thompson, the former national Social Credit leader who has sat in the commons as a Conservative since 1968, is expected to announce today that he will not seek re-election in Red Deer constituency.

Thompson, 57, has purchased a home in the Fraser Valley and is expected to move there, the paper says.

FOLSOM, Calif. — Old Fitz, the crusty 83-year-old dean of Folsom Prison who was locked up more than half a century for two murders, walked out a free man Friday, vowing to mind his own business.

"If I had a friend out there, I might have got out sooner," Charles Fitzgerald told a group of newsmen waiting at the gate.

Fitzgerald, who killed a policeman in San Gabriel, Calif., and a sheriff's deputy in Montana, was the oldest convict in California's prison system and is believed to have put in the longest stretch ever served at Folsom — 45 years. His prison career started in 1908.

TAIPEI — A military court Friday sentenced Li "Johnson" Ching-Sun, former board chairman of the Great China Evening News, to life imprisonment for being a Chinese Communist Party member and working for the Peking government.

The court, at the end of a day-long trial, also sentenced Yu Chi, former chief editorial writer of the China Daily News southern edition and a co-defendant in the same case, to five years.

BROWNWOOD, Tex. — Candy Barr, a stripper of the 1950s who later served a prison term for possession of marijuana, says she has written a book of poems to be release this wek, entitled, A Gentle Mind Confused.

SAN FRANCISCO — Carol Doda, queen of the city's topless, has insured her breasts with Lloyds of London for $1 million — roughly $22,500 per inch.

Miss Doda, who opens tonight at the Condor nightclub, grew from a 34-inch B-cup to 44-inch D-cup with the help of the then-new silicone process in 1965.

WINDSOR, Ont. — A former Windsor welfare inspector who stole money, a car and furniture from a 71-year-old invalid, was jailed Thursday to two years less a day.

In sentencing Ewdard Ouellette, 39, of Tecumseh, Ont., Provincial Judge John Wheelton said that he had used his position of trust with the department of social services to "take most of the life goods from a helpless old woman."

PORTLAND — Roger Hannagan, the 22-year-old Canby pilot whose antics enlivened the British Columbia Centennial London-to-Victoria air race last summer, will be grounded for a least another seven months.

MONTREAL — Mr. Justice Andre Ouimet declared a mistrial Friday when Francois Lanctot, 23, charge with possession of weapons and explosives, failed to appear in court for the second consecutive day.

A bench warrant for the arrest of Lanctot was issued Thursday morning.

Regina Lawyer Elected

SASKATOON (CP) — The Liberal Party of Saskatchewan Friday elected Garry Wilson, a 39-year-old Regina lawyer, as its president for a one-year term.

The election, on second ballot in the four-way contest, filled a post left vacant earlier this year following the accidental death of R. W. (Bobby) Thompson.

It was the first of two important tasks facing delegates attending the Liberal leadership convention, which has attracted more than 1,200 persons, including 824 registered delegates.

Leadership candidates are acting leader D. G. Steuart, 55, MLA Prince Albert West, Milestone MLA Cy MacDonald, 43, and former Elrose MLA George Leith, 48.

Wilson defeated three other men for the party presidency. Wilbert McIvor, a farmer, was dropped after the first ballot and Jim Weber withdrew his name at the same time after getting just 150 votes.

Socialist Increases Vote Total

ROME (AP) — Socialist Deputy Premier Francesco de Martino picked up six more votes in the third ballot of the Italian presidential election Friday for a total of 404, but still fell far short of the required two-thirds majority.

Senate President Amintore Fanfani, the Christian Democratic candidate, again ran second in the electoral college voting with 384. Other candidates trailed far behind.

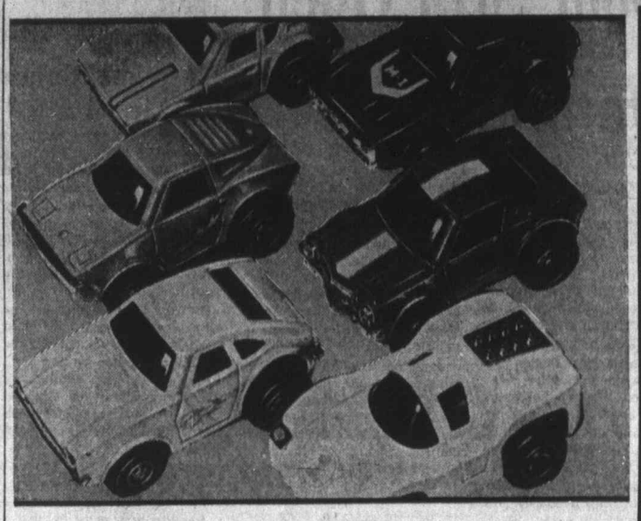

The parties plunged into negotiations in an effort to break the deadlock before the fourth ballot this afternoon, when only a simple majority of 505 votes will be required for election. But there was no expectation that a winner would emerge then.

Empress Painting Clicks Into Place

The Picture Hangup Of Mr. City Desk

"We're turning the stolen Empress Hotel painting over to the Colonist."

It is 10:25 p.m., Friday, Dec. 10. In the Colonist newsroom, the city desk telephone has just rung and a young man's voice has said: "Hello, Mr. City Desk?"

Then the voice talks about the painting.

"It was just a prank; you know, one of those things. We asked the hotel to give the Colonist 500 Fund $150 in return for their painting. They wouldn't do it. So you can have the painting.

"I'll phone you in about half an hour and tell you where to pick it up."

(Background: At 4 a.m. on Dec. 4, an employee of the Empress Hotel discovered that one of the paintings in the hotel's collection of the wives of governors-general was missing from its usual hanging place in the Georgian Lounge on the basement level.

(The painting was that of Countess Marie Adelaide of Willingdon, whose husband Viscount Willingdon was Canada's governor-general from 1926 to 1931. It was one of 21 paintings in the hotel's collection spanning an era going back to 1838.

(Loss of the painting has been described by hotel authorities as a "disaster" because there was no way the painting could be replaced.)

10:45 p.m.: The city desk telephone rings again. "OK, here it is. You will find the painting wrapped up in some papers beside a large garbage disposal bin in a lot beside the Colonist building."

Fine, but who belongs to the voice?

"Well, we can't tell you that." Another voice breaks in, another young man, apparently on an extension phone.

"We're just some guys. You can't trace this, can you?"

The phone goes dead.

10:47 p.m.: Colonist photographer Ian McKain and reporter George Inglis are despatched by Mr. City Desk to look for the package.

11 p.m.: Another telephone call to the city desk. "Did you find it?" asks the voice. Who knows? The photographer and reporter are still out. Meanwhile, how was the theft engineered?

Inglis makes recovery . . .

. . . then Owen unwraps painting

"Aw, nothing to it," says voice No. 2. "It was easy. We just walked in, took it and walked out again. And we'll get some more things. It's just simple, just so simple. We'll call later and see how it went."

Meanwhile, photographer McKain and reporter Inglis check behind a television store, next door to the newspaper building on Douglas, and find the bulky picture, wrapped in old Colonists.

11:05 p.m.: The Colonist team takes the picture, still wrapped, back to the Empress Hotel, and is greeted by broad grins from the bellmen, and a silent scrutiny from a man who identifies himself as Hugh Owen, assistant manager.

Owen says he has orders to receive the picture without unwrapping it, but reporter Inglis suggests the least reward the newspaper could expect is a picture of its return.

11:10 p.m.: A large gentleman who identifies himself as V. J. Lawley, security officer, seizes the picture from the reporter and disappears into a dark office with it.

The security officer still holds out against unwrapping, and Owen has to put his foot down.

11:15 p.m.: When unveiled, there is a scrawly printed note on the face of the picture: "To whom it may concern:

"Our apologies for the inconvenience we have caused you, but it didn't blend with our decore (sic).

Sincerely (sic) yours,

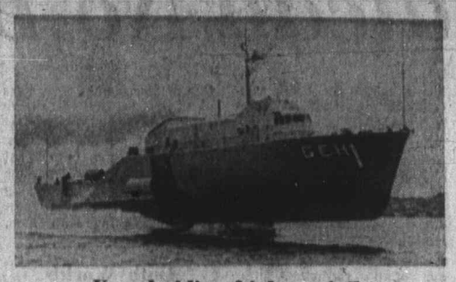

Al Mundy and the boys."

There is a postscript: "Excuse the spelling, but thieves don't have to know how to write."

11:20 p.m.: Manager Finamore conveys his thanks to the Colonist staffers, and Owen says the paper will be hearing from the hotel.

12:15 a.m.: Back at the city desk, the phone rings again. "Everything OK?" asks voice No. 1. We didn't damage it or anything. Anyway, I hope someone gets some good out of it. Otherwise, it's all humbug."

Vessel riding high on foils

'Plainview Achieves Smoother Ride, With Greater Stability'

World's Largest

Hydrofoil Off-Limits

The world's largest hydrofoil vessel, the U.S. Navy's Plainview, will be in Esquimalt Harbor this weekend for its first visit to a Canadian port following a series of technical tests taken Thursday and Friday from CFB Esquimalt.

An official on the fleet experimental vessel — capable of more than 40 knots — said the public would not be invited to visit the ship this trip.

Based in Bremerton, Wash. and commanded by Lt. William Erickson, of South Pasadena, Calif., the Plainview was built in Seattle by Lockheed Shipbuilding and Construction Company as a test vessel.

Tests such as those taken off Vancouver Island are being used to determine the potential of large hydrofoil craft, in unrestricted operations on the high seas.

Manned by a navy crew of four officers and 21 men, the ship is being evaluated by the U.S. Naval Ship Research and Development Centre, under the auspices of the Naval Ship Systems Command.

Plainview is driven by two 14,500 horsepower jet engines, powering two titanium propellers positioned on pods, from which the hydrofoils project. A third foil and strut at the stern serve as rudder and stabilizer.

At a speed determined by an automatic pilot, the ship lifts on the submerged foil system, a type of foil said to provide greater stability than the surface-piercing foil system, and the Plainview achieves a smoother ride with less interference from the waves that earlier styles of hydrofoil craft, a U.S. Navy release said.

When the foils are raised, the ship is driven by two 500 horsepower diesel engines which provide power to two outboard-type propeller units, which swivel for steering control.

For stability, Plainview has height sensors on either side of the bow and roll-pitch gyros and accelerometers, all feeding into an automatic device in the pilot house, which resembles the cockpit of an airplane rather than the bridge of a ship.

Plainview is scheduled to return to Bremerton Monday.

New Medical Rules

Private Labs Feel Effects

By JOHN MATTERS
Colonist Reporter

Effects of new provincial regulations that apply to private medical laboratories are just starting to be felt in B.C.

First deletion from services that may be given in private laboratories is the echogram — the read-out of an electronic device that is useful in diagnosing such abnormalities as tumors.

A committee composed of representatives of the Medical Services Commission, the government agency that administers medicare, and the medical profession has decided that all echograms should be done in hospital laboratories.

The result is that patients whose doctors want an echogram are being sent to hospitals. Hospitals recover the cost of such out-patient care from medicare.

It was learned Friday that MSC has approved for medicare payments to most of the private laboratories that applied for such approvals. Laboratories are defined by law as centres that do biochemical and bacteriological examinations, X-rays or such tests as electrocardiograms.

However, approval for payment does not mean the private laboratory has been fully approved by MSC. The commission has given temporary approval to some laboratories.

Laboratories that have been granted only temporary approval will undergo continuing scrutiny by MSC on such issues as ownership.

There also have been reports that electroencephalograms will be deleted next spring from the list of approved services available in private medical laboratories.

(EEG's are measurements of certain electrical activities of the brain.)

However, a spokesman for the B.C. Medical Association said Friday he has not heard whether the plans are to have all EEGs done in hospitals at a future date.

The supervision of private medical laboratories is being carried out under a cabinet order approved last summer.

Although the government has not said so, sources say the purpose of the order was to control the proliferation and utilization of private laboratories which have been the source of one of the most rapidly escalating costs of medicine during the past five years.

The long-term idea, according to the sources, is to divert as many patients as possible from privately-owned laboratories to those operated by hospitals, which are run on public funds.

The first cabinet order affecting laboratories was strongly protested by doctors, who argued that hospitals did not have enough staff or equipment to handle the avalanche of patients that would ensue.

The order was subsequently rewritten. Almost every clause was altered except that which gave the government the power to investigate the books and ownership of private laboratories.

Victoria-Colwood

Doorstep Service By Bus Company

A special bus service not tied to a rigid schedule will be introduced by Sooke Stages Ltd. starting Monday.

Company president James Golightly said Friday the last bus leaving Victoria for Colwood Corners at 5:45 p.m. will deliver patrons beyond Colwood Corners to whatever bus stop is nearest their homes.

The service, to run Monday to Saturday, will not pick up passengers en route. The Glen Lake and Colwood service leaving Victoria at 9:30 p.m. will offer a similiar service.

The program is part of a plan to improve service to the Colwood-Langford area and to curtail service to Happy Valley and Metchosin.

Trustees Claim Success in Involving Public

More involvement of students and the public at large in all aspects and phases of education was urged Friday by Greater Victoria school board.

A number of specific recommendations was aired during the first evening of public hearings held in Victoria city hall by B.C. Commission on the Public's Role in Education.

These were among the recommendations submitted to the commission in a brief prepared by the school board:

● All school boards should encourage the involvement of students in the planning and evaluation of curriculum development and course planning.

● All school boards should be encouraged to develop policies and procedures that will provide the public with easy access to information on educational matters. Such policies should be aimed at the broad spectrum of the public and should help shape the educational system.

About 18 persons attended the first evening of hearings. Victoria is the travelling commission's last stop. For the past month, the commission has visited 20 B.C. centres and received 100 briefs from school boards, parent-teacher groups and private individuals.

The commission was initiated by the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation, and has support from the education department and the Educational Research Institute of B.C.

The Greater Victoria school board, in its brief, pointed out it has had good success in attempts to involve the public at large in educational matters.

Project Learning, a program designed in 1969 and carried out during the past two years, the brief said, had aroused great interest among the public. A greater awareness of educational problems had resulted from this program.

"Promoting (public) involvement will result in better learning conditions for the students of the area and taxpayers will be in a better position to assess educational requirements," the brief stated.

A second brief was submitted by the Margaret Jenkins Elementary School Parent-Teacher Association.

The brief's conclusion said: "It is not only a right, but an obligation of each member of a society to play a conscious role in the establishment of a public education system. A means must be established whereby it is possible for every individual to contribute if he so desires."

The brief points out that both the public and educators must be willing to establish good lines of communication between each other.

"There must be a willingness on the part of the administrator or teacher to listen and discuss, rather than flaunt position, professional jargon, and statistics," the brief stated.

On the other hand, it said, there must be "a willingness on the part of the participating public to assist and discuss, rather than confront and demand."

During a brief question-and-answer period, an Esquimalt school principal outlined how parents of his pupils had responded to his attempts to establish two-way channels of communication.

The principal, Hector Sutherland of Macaulay elementary school, explained to the commission how he sent a questionnaire to all parents, and what some of the results were.

"We sent out 375 questionnaires; 101 were returned. One of the questions asked parents whether they would like to form a parent-teacher association," Sutherland said.

He said most parents "had something against PTA," but as a direct result of the questionnaire, there now are regular informal meetings between teachers and parents once a week.

"There is always a good turnout; nobody is afraid he'll be appointed to some committee; we discuss specific problems: parents can talk to individual teachers, or just discuss something that concerns them in general," Sutherland said.

The commission consists of three regular commissioners who have travelled throughout B.C. since hearings began. In each city or town where hearings are held, they are joined by regional commissioners to help evaluate submissions and briefs.

Cerebral Palsy, Femininity

Dual Handicap No Block

By JEAN VAP
Copley News Service

SACRAMENTO — "There is a way to do everything in medicine. I just plain don't do it that way. Like checking for lymph nodes — most doctors use two hands. I do better with one. Sometimes I even have the patient help me in his own physical."

In her third year of medical school at the University of California at Davis, Marci Hays has a reason for using "unorthodox" methods — cerebral palsy.

Her speech is slightly impaired; she walks with a bit of a shuffle. But Marci did not let her handicap stop her from attending a public high school, graduating from Mills College and embarking on one of the most demanding careers of all — medicine.

"When it comes time to do a procedure, you just DO it," she said. "You don't worry about dexterity."

'Own Way'

Marci views her situation objectively. "I don't have a model to follow. I have to figure out my own way to do things.

"Sometimes the patients assume that I have had polio. Usually, I explain what my problem is the minute I walk in the room. I've found it saves time. How can I find out what is wrong with the patient if he is lying there wondering what is wrong with me?"

Marci looks more like Julie Eisenhower than Dr. Kildare, with shiny brown hair delicate features and a floral print dress under her white lab jacket. "It's hard to say which is the biggest handicap — having cerebral palsy or being a woman," she said. "They are BOTH handicaps in this profession."

She hesitates to describe ~~any instances of sex discrimi~~nation. "It's just that I feel like I'm walking on eggs. I'm the only spastic around here."

One of four women in a class of 52 men, (at first there were seven), she recalled her first day in the administration building. "Some of us sat down at a table, and I was the only girl there — it suddenly hit me I had never thought about competing with men. Now I do."

Both Worlds

She enjoys the camaraderie of her classmates without being one-of-the-boys. "If it comes to that point, I've lost something very important to me," she said. "I guess I'm hoping for the best of both worlds.

"There are times a girl has to know when to make herself scarce. I can usually tell, when I'm approaching a group of classmates, what they are talking about. If necessary, I walk on by.

"We (girls) got kidded a lot about physicals. But when the time came to practice on each other in class, we were strictly segregated by sex.

The daughter of an Oregon dentist, Marci "started out wanting to become a nurse — which is fairly common among little girls. Then I thought, well, why not a doctor? But in junior high I began to look at other professions more appropriate for a woman. I wasn't particularly intrigued with any of the things that girls are supposed to do. Everybody tried to discourage me, especially high school counsellors. 'You'll be happier having babies and going to PTA.' A girl has to ignore what people around her say, and make up her mind that she's going to enjoy what she's going to do.

"It's a little unnerving when I see my former college friends," she admitted. "We have nothing in common. I can't describe the feeling. It's just weird. I'm not one of the group. My friends are married, some of them are on their second or third baby — and here I am with my medical books."

Marci is frank about her own "romantic history." She has told the story before — to medical school admissions officers. "There was a decision point in college.

"I was engaged at the time. My fiance wasn't exactly intrigued with having a doctor in the family. He couldn't tolerate the idea of having an ambitious wife, I guess. I had to decide whether I wanted marriage — or medicine."

Marci made her choice. "I didn't feel like I was making a lifelong commitment to a monastic order. There is a certain sequence of events. For me, medical school comes first.

Quality of Care

"Men always assume that you are going to be a part-time doctor. If I had a child I would certainly want to be there (at home) for the first few years. However, a woman doctor has an unwritten commitment to those who have trained her. I see it in terms of quality of care rather than quantity."

For the present though, in terms of both hours and energy, Marci invests a lot. She puts aside her 20 cookbooks and a kitchen equipped with "every gadget and appliance available" for extra time in the library. "By the time you shop, cook a full-scale meal and clean up afterwards, you have missed 50 pages of reading.

"I'm the only girl on my surgical team. Whenever you are the ONLY girl, that's when you notice it. On this service, we spend every third night at the hospital. I usually end up sleeping in a chair in the lounge. There are only two rooms for sleeping on the eighth floor — I've never even been up there."

Marci wasn't complaining. "I like being at the hospital at night. It's quiet and I can learn more. But around 3 a.m. the men start giving you sympathetic looks. They wonder why you're not home about then.

Clothes Care, Gas Rating

U.S. Consumers To Have Help

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rules designed to better inform consumers about the power of gasoline and the problems of washing and cleaning clothes have been issued by the U.S. Federal Trade Commission (FTC).

The FTC ordered service stations to begin posting gasoline octane ratings starting March 15. Clothing manufacturers were told that, beginning July 3, they must affix a permanent label advising the consumer how to wash or clean the item.

William Dixon, assistant director of the FTC's bureau of consumer protection, said there is going to be some confusion about the octane ratings because the FTC adopted a formula different from that used by the few gasoline firms that now post octane, and by car manufacturers in owner's manuals.

Dixon told a news conference that the differing fromula was adopted because it was more precise. Octane ratings under the FTC formula run about two points below those under the more familiar system he said.

"Americans generally overbuy octane in their gasoline, and this will give them an opportunity to match octane against the needs of their car," said Robert Pitofsky, director of the bureau of consumer protection.

The octane rating of a gasoline is a guide to its anti-knock characteristics. The proper octane content combined with the proper engine produce no knocks, and thereby the most efficient use of gasoline.

Pitofsky said a typical label required under the clothing rule might read, "Machine wash in sudsy water at medium temperature, rinse well, tumble dry thoroughly, hang immediately. Garment may be drip dried and steam pressed."

"Consumers quite frequently ruin garments because they don't have adequate information on how to care for them," Pitofsky said. "This problem is getting worse because of the tremendous proliferation of synthetic fibers and combinations."

The FTC said it would allow disposable paper labels on clothing that might be impaired by a permanent label, such as a see-through blouse. The agency said no labels would be required on items, such as diapers, socks and undershirts that cost $3 or less and are "completely washable under all normal circumstances."

The clothing label proposal has been under consideration for more than five years. The octane rule initially was issued 11 months ago, then postponed while the FTC considered Texaco's request that a different octane formula be adopted. Pitofsky said Texaco proved the new octane formula was more precise, and the FTC adopted it.

A federal court is considering a suit filed by the National Petroleum Refiners Association, which contends the octane rule should be killed on grounds the FTC had no authority to issue it.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I've grown up reading your column and have accepted your basic ideas as guidelines. I wouldn't say I have never disagreed with you, but when I follow your advice things turn out better. Now a problem has come up and I need to know what to do.

My husband and I have been notified by a n adoption agency that we will be getting our baby within the month. You have stated in your column repeatedly that it's best to tell the adopted child he was "chosen" so he will grow up with that knowledge.

A close friend says there is a new and better approach by a psychiatrist in Chicago. He has written a book on the subject — the central theme being that the child need NOT be told he is adopted. Such information, according to the doctor, could cause serious trauma and emotional upheaval.

Do you know of the new approach? Has it altered your previous stand? Pease let us know.—Ready to Listen.

Dear Ready: I do know of the "new approach" but I do not agree with it. The chances for an adopted child to grow into adulthood and not learn the truth about his parentage are small and the risk is large. The trauma caused by an outsider who passes the word can be infinitely more damaging than if the parents had told the child, in a loving way, that he is special to them because they chose him.

The child who hears from someone other than his parents that he is adopted often feels betrayed. This feeling of betrayal can create a wound which never heals. This is not theoretical. I have seen it happen — and the results are devastating.

Dear Ann Landers: Four years ago I fell in love and let the man move into my home. He was a bachelor, 38 years old, and I was divorcee four years older. Of course I wanted to get married but he said we must live together on a trial basis to learn if we were suited for one another. He said he'd marry me in a year or so if we were compatible.

Now I have learned that he is seeing a much younger woman behind my back. I consider this man my husband even though we do not have that piece of paper which makes it legal. Should I go to the woman and tell her about us? Or should I sit quietly and hope he comes to his senses and realizes he has a moral obligation to me? Please advise.—Biding My Time.

Dear Bi: You aren't biding your time, you're wasting it. If this man is cheating on you NOW, what makes you think he'd behave any better if you were married to him? Invite Romeo to pack up and leave. A woman who wants marriage should not settle for a light-housekeeping arrangement for openers.

Dear Ann Landers: Everyone in my card cub disagreed with the wife who wanted her husband to be buried with his glasses OFF because she said death is like sleep, and people don't sleep with their glasses on.

If her reasoning is to be taken seriously, people should also be buried in their pyjamas and nightgowns. Please print this for the benefit of those who might have taken her seriously. Thank you. — Ashes To Ashes.

Homemaker of Tomorrow Won't Be Male

By GERRI SHANAHAN and JIM SCOVEL
Colonist - Los Angeles Times Service

WEST BABYLON, L.I. — The next Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow could be a 200-pound blonde from Iowa or a six-foot brunette from Alaska.

But it will not be Mozelle Thompson of West Babylon, nor his brother or any one of their seven male friends. Nor, for that matter, any male, in or out of the continental confines of the U.S.

The powers that be in General Mills made that absolutely clear this week after the brothers Thompson and their seven friends took the qualifying examination scholarship at high school here along with 600,000 girls at schools across the nation.

"Boys are not eligible to win," said Louis Champlin, who runs the contest for General Mills, of which Betty Crocker is a subsidiary. "None of the boys," he said.

"I am in sympathy with the boys," their principal Paul O'Brien said.

"I have the same point of view as women's lib," said Mozelle Thompson. "It's only fair for every student to have an equal test."

The scholarship examination covers home economics in general. Lists in each school qualify for at least a handsome heart charm and letter of commendation. For the national winners, there are fat grants ranging from $1,000 to $5,000 for college studies.

It was, frankly, the money that attracted the nine youths. "It was a chance to help my father pay for college," Mozelle, 16, said. He and his 17-year-old brother, Quaries, are seniors.

The two brothers and seven other youths presented themselves at the classroom where the test was to be given, unaware, they said, that boys were ruled out. About 70 girls were there, and a teacher, whom school officials would not identify, "Boys aren't allowed to take the test," Mozelle quoted the teacher as saying.

The youths left. Six, including the Thompsons, went to O'Brien's office. These "very bright, scholarly boys came to me," O'Brien said, "and asked if they could take the test. I said no, it was restricted to girls. One boy argued the point that this was discriminatory."

O'Brien phoned school board attorney Humbert Martin. He said that Martin had told him that he believed that General Mills, as a private institution, could call its own shots. But "I was still in sympathy with the boys," O'Brien said, "so I allowed them to take it (the test)."

The nine youths sat down in a separate room. While they puzzled over such questions as "the use of double knit fabric has eliminated what?" O'Brien made another call, this time to Washington.

Officials of the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP), which oversees the test, told him that while a minority of the group's advisory board was unhappy with the distinction, the majority felt that General Mills was within its right.

As for any male who did take the test, Champlin suggested that "I think anyone who takes it will get a broader view of homemaking." As for the legal issues involved, Champlin said: "I don't pretend to be a constitutional lawyer."

A lawyer is just what Mozelle Thompson wants to be. "I think it's very disappointing," he said when told of the position. "If there were an auto mechanics scholarship test for boys, and if a girl took it and scored well, she should be as eligible as boys.

"I don't see any justification for what General Mills did. What makes a girl so

White-Knuckle Flyer Learns Lessons

Old Ace Takes to Wild Blue Yonder

By KAY BARTLETT

AUGUSTA, Kan. (AP) — You can call me Ace.

Not too long ago, my sole criterion for pilots was how quickly they switched off the "No Smoking" light after takeoff, that showed they were confident they weren't going back down. Each safe landing was a simple case of cheating death once again.

And then the boss said: "Why don't you take a few flying lessons and write a story about it?"

"You've got the wrong person," I explained. "I'm an advanced white-knuckle flyer."

"Good," said the boss with a strange sense of humor. "That will make a better story."

And so there I was in Kansas.

The day was perfect. Bright sunshine, blue skies, no clouds, time for my introductory plane flight.

I met Joyce Case. We chatted for a while and I didn't mention my fear. She showed me the ailerons of the single-engine Cessna 150 aircraft, the rudders, the trim tab. Hmm, very interesting.

We taxi to the runway.

"Take off?" I shudder. "Okay."

Off we start down the runway. My palms are already soaked. I glue my eyes to the runway. I don't watch anything inside. Joyce tells me when to pull up a bit on the elevator control — that's the half-wheel looking thing right in front. Off we go.

"Very good," she says. "That was wonderful."

It was to be much later that I figure out that sneaky Joyce was not only eyeing some of those clocks closely, but she also was applying a little right rudder pressure to neutralize the torque factor.

We take off and land three times.

Now, it was off to flight school where I met Keith Hershberger, 27.

I got a plastic computer, a study book that weighed four pounds, a workbook with more than 100 questions or problems per chapter and a tape recorder. That was the ground part of what they call the Cessna integrated flight training system.

Keith spent one hour and 12 minutes in the air with me Thursday teaching me straight and level flight and medium turns.

"Bring her up to about 3,000 feet," says Gaylon, offering suggestions on the way.

"Now, I'm going to show you slow speed; that's when we slow the airplane down approaching stall speed," he casually explains as we're cruising way up there.

Gaylon sees I'm petrified.

"We won't fall out of the air if we stall," he says.

"Put on your carburetor heat and cut the RPMs to 1700," Gaylon says. Normal cruising is 2500 RPMs.

"Bring your nose up to cut the airspeed," he orders.

Down to 80, to 70, to 60 — the stall horn that's conveniently placed next to my left ear already is starting to squeak. Down to 50 and it's blowing, and we are over a thousand feet above Kansas.

The next morning I'm back with Fearless Keith, my instructor. He gives me another chance at slow speed and this time it's easier.

That afternoon we go up again and Keith casually announces we will do our power-off stall.

Power out, nose held up. Squeak. And then just a tiny little jolt as the plane pitches downward a bit, and ever so smoothly Keith puts on the power and we're flying smoothly again and we can look down at the miniature world below.

I'm eager. It does work, just like everybody said it would. It's fun.

Meanwhile Fearless Keith, Cautious Keith, Patient Keith, Keith who could probably fly the airplane without gas, kept teaching.

The next crisis was learning to land. About four o'clock the next morning I go out and give the plane a pre-flight check.

Keith finally arrives and we do five. Or as we aces say, we "shoot" five takeoffs and landings.

We taxi over to the parking area. "Would you like to take it alone?" asks Keith.

"No," I shout.

"I think you're ready. I wouldn't let you go unless I thought you could do it." And Fearless Keith is also very definitely Cautious Keith. But I don't like the word "think."

"I'll do it tomorrow," I say. "Tomorrow."

The first takeoff goes smartly, if I say so myself.

I'm flying an airplane. All by myself. Fear is overtaken by an enormous sense of pride.

Completing the required three takeoffs and landings, I taxi back.

The mechanic is there first with congratulations. Then Keith and Gaylon shake my hand.

Dear Ann Landers: Four years ago I fell in love and let the man move into my home. He was a bachelor, 38 years old, and I was divorcee four years older. Of course I wanted to get married but he said we must live together on a trial basis to learn if we were suited for one another. He said he'd marry me in a year or so if we were compatible.

Now I have learned that he is seeing a much younger woman behind my back. I consider this man my husband even though we do not have that piece of paper which makes it legal. Should I go to the woman and tell her about us? Or should I sit quietly and hope he comes to his senses and realizes he has a moral obligation to me? Please advise. — Biding My Time.

Dear Bi: You aren't biding your time, you're wasting it. If this man is cheating on you NOW, what makes you think he'd behave any better if you were married to him? Invite Romeo to pack up and leave. A woman who wants marriage should not settle for a light-housekeeping arrangement for openers.

Dear Ann Landers: Everyone in my card cub disagreed with the wife who wanted her husband to be buried with his glasses OFF because she said death is like sleep, and people don't sleep with their glasses on.

If her reasoning is to be taken seriously, people should also be buried in their pyjamas and nightgowns. Please print this for the benefit of those who might have taken her seriously. Thank you. — Ashes To Ashes.

Bangla Desh in Power as Quickly as Possible

India Sets Up Takeover

By WILLIAM DRUMMOND
Colonist - Los Angeles Times Service

CALCUTTA — India is preparing to send civilian administrators along with police into occupied areas of East Pakistan to ensure that the New Delhi-supported Bangla Desh government is installed in the seats of power.

In a related development, Lt.-Gen. Jagit Singh Aurora, commander of India's Eastern Front, said that the Mukti Bahini guerrillas have "made me their over-all commander."

Taken together, these steps indicate that India will not leave anything to chance regarding who will be eventual inheritors of Pakistan's rebellious Eastern wing.

One of the main items on the new government's agenda will be encouraging the refugees, who poured into India beginning last March, to return to their homes.

The Indian Press reported here Friday that the Bangla Desh government approached the government of India for help in quickly setting up a civilian administration.

There was apparent apprehension that large-scale reprisals might be taken against East Bengalis who had collaborated with the West Pakistan administration unless "law and order" were quickly reestablished.

In meeting with Indian officials, the Bangla Desh people reportedly said there was a shortage of policemen in East Bengal because many had been slain by the Pakistani army.

Accordingly, said the press reports, agreement was reached on an initial team of more than 100 administrative and police service officers from the West Bengal cadre as well as engineers and doctors to be sent to East Bengal to get the new administration rolling.

The capital of the new government will be set up at Jessore temporarily until Dacca is cleared of West Pakistan's control.

Another topic discussed at the meeting was the return of the West Pakistani refugees to their homes. In the preliminary plans that the two sides reportedly laid down, the refugees are to be taken back to East Bengal within two months.

The policy of the Indian government is that all 10 million refugees, including those living with their friends and relatives in India, must return to East Bengal as soon as possible.

Dr. B. K. Shattacharya, the relief commissioner for the Indian state of West Bengal, said the flow of refugees into India, which had at times averaged 40,000 per day, had stopped.

There are reports some of the refugees have actually begun flowing back to East Bengal, but no figures are available.

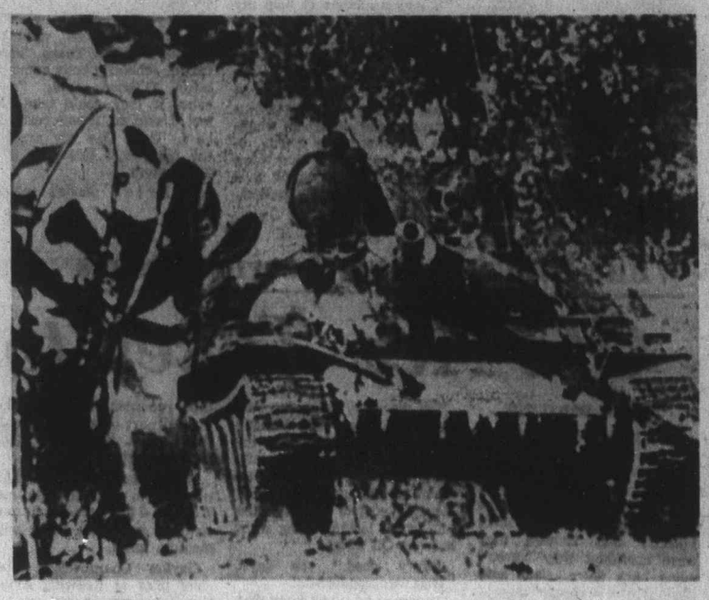

Bangla Desh government leaders are to visit different camps to persuade the refugees to return to their homes. Leaflets and pamphlets are to be distributed among them.

The problem of reprisals against collaborators and captured Pakistani soldiers has been a matter of concern for the Indian military.

One Indian officer at Jessore told newsmen cases of Pakistani soldiers tortured to death by the severing of their extremities. Two other persons were reportedly shot by Bangla Desh partisans in apparent retaliation for collaborating with the Pakistanis.

Aurora said the Mukti Bahini guerrillas had taken over civilian police operations in occupied areas.

"In the areas we have liberated I have issued strict instructions so that there would be no question of his summary punishment," said Aurora.

Canada Will Sign Rights Covenant

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday that he hoped the Canadian government would soon be in a position to add its signature to the international covenants on human rights.

The United Nations embodied its declaration of human rights in a series of covenants which would be binding on those governments which ratify them. Canada has not yet ratified the covenants.

In a statement addressed to Canadians on Human Rights Day, Trudeau said the declaration of human rights "has profoundly influenced public attitudes since its adoption in 1948."

War Materials On Relief Ships

CALCUTTA (UPI) —United Nations food relief ships carried ammunition and other war materials to East Pakistani forces, India's Eastern Command charged Friday.

The accusation was made after Indian troops captured tons of American and Chinese ammunition left behind by Pakistani forces.

The charges were denied by captains of six Danish and two Greek ships transporting UN relief goods to East Pakistani cities which were seized by Indian warships blockading Pakistani ports.

The ships have been under guard in Calcutta for the past two days, awaiting clearance from New Delhi to sail for ports outside the war zone.

A spokesman for the Indian Eastern Command said the UN relief ships had been used to transport war material throughout East Pakistan.

One of the two Greek ships, both owned by the Livanos family's Ceres shipping company, reported it was fired on by six rockets and strafed by 20-millimetre cannon fire while trying to escape from the port of Chalna.

The small bulk carriers, the Mini Loaf and the Mini Lady, picked up 29 survivors from the motor vessels Chrysava Lady and Mastro Stelis which were sunk in Chalna.

Mini Lady captain Nicolas Dimopoulos, 27, said that after picking up the survivors, Pakistani authorities refused to give permission for the vessels to sail. The masters decided to break for the Bay of Bengal, then on to Singapore.

Jet aircraft, which Dimopoulos said he couldn't identify as either Indian or Pakistani, attacked the Mini Lady three times. The vessels got to the Bay of Bengal without suffering any casualties but were stopped by Indian ships blockading East Pakistani ports.

Dimopoulos said the two ships carried cargoes of rice, wheat and powdered milk which had been unloaded from the U.S. freighter Yellowstone in Chittagong.

The six Danish vessels are all under charter to the Pakistan Gulf Shipping Corp. for distribution of UN food relief.

Terror Drive Claims Two More

BELFAST (AP) — British troops fought two border gun battles with guerrillas of the outlawed Irish Republican Army Friday as the 28-month death toll in northern Ireland rose to 190.

The latest two victims were shot in an IRA Christmas terror campaign to weaken civilian morale and demoralize the Ulster Defence Force of part-time soldiers.

Fighting broke out on the frontier with the neighboring Irish Republic when snipers opened fire from a hilltop on a patrol of 20 British Royal Marine Commandos. The commandos reported one gunman was hit in the 75-minute skirmish.

First, a Lilac

Several times in this column I have had occasion to mention my grandmother's home in the country where, as a small boy, I was taken to visit every summer.

One feature which I remember well was a huge old lilac bush planted close enough to the back door so the intoxicating fragrance of its blooms would waft through the screen doors and into Grandma's summer kitchen — a screened porch tacked on to the kitchen proper, equipped with a kerosene cook stove.

Because of these memory associations, I think that if I were just starting out to plant up a garden, the very first shrub I would select would be a lilac.

I must admit this choice is dictated by the heart rather than the head, for the lilac has many faults as a garden shrub. For one thing, it makes a rather leggy and ungainly bush eventually, one which is out of proportion for a small city garden. Nor can I recommend it as a laborsaving plant, for a neglected lilac can be a real eyesore when covered with ugly brown seed pods, while preventing these by picking off all the spent blooms is a miserable, monotonous and time-consuming job.

Suckers, too, can be a problem. Some kinds send up a veritable forest of sucker shoots from the roots, and these have to be removed the hard way — by digging down and twisting the sucker free from the roots. In spite of these black marks, though, I wouldn't want a garden without at least one lilac in it.

Lilacs can be planted any time after the leaves have fallen, from November right through until the buds are swelling in the spring. While the best time is soon after leaf-fall and while the ground is still warm, I have moved a pretty big bush successfully in January, when I had to skim off a two-inch crust of frozen soil before I could dig over the planting site.

This plant likes a fair amount of lime in the soil, preferably in a mild, long-lasting form such as pulverized limestone rock, about four cupfuls per square yard well mixed into the planting site. Unlike the hydrated lime, pulverized limestone can be mixed into the soil at the same time as old rotted manure without any serious loss of nutrients.

It is important to plant our new lilac fairly deeply. If you buy your bush from a nurseryman, the soil marks on the stem will indicate its previous depth; in replanting it, set it in two to three inches deeper than this.

Your new lilac may or may not bloom next spring, depending on its age and size. It will almost certainly bloom in 1973, but somewhat sparingly and with undersized blooms, and it won't be until the following spring — 1974 — that the plant really gets into its stride. In passing, I might say that all the really worthwhile garden subjects are a bit slow in reaching their peak of production.

Now about varieties: If you are hungry for the old, familiar lilac fragrance, plant Souvenir de Louis Spaeth, which bears enormous trusses in deepest purple. Madame Lemoine is a fine, sweetly scented double white lilac, while Belle de Nancy is a clear satiny pink.

These are all old-timers. The newer hybrids will have bigger trusses of bloom, bigger individual florets and, perhaps more vivid colors, but many of them are disappointing in the fragrance department. Some of the best are Maude Noteutt, white; Esther Staley, pink and A.M. Brand, rose-red.

Back in 1952 there was quite a lot of excitement over a new yellow-flowered lilac from Holland called Primrose. I couldn't wait to get one of these, and it IS a pretty thing, but I couldn't honestly call it yellow. Mine bloomed in a pale cream shade, and with a rather peculiar scent which is not particularly pleasing.

Garbage Put To Work

My younger children have been pestering me to take them to visit the new Walt Disney World in Florida, and although I am far from averse to such amusements, if I went it would be as much to see the environmental aspect as the entertainment.

One of the little-noted facts that interested me hugely in the construction of this mammoth enterprise is the "Swedish system" of refuse disposal that was built right into the Disney project.

In several Swedish communities, complexes of nearly 3,000 apartments have been put up with built-on vacuum-operated refuse disposal chutes. These chutes, operating with pipes that are two feet in diamater, carry all garbage to a central collection point outside the building, in the same trench as the water and sewer mains.

A sensing device automatically sifts all glass and metal from the trash heap. The remainder of the refuse is then dumped into an incinerator which supplies the energy for heating and air-conditioning the buildings.

There has been a lot of environment talk about the "recycling" of materials; but what is equally important is the need for our recycling of energy.

According to power experts, the world's energy needs are going to be doubled by the year 2001, only 30 years away. This is an awesome prospect, since we are already taxing our energy sources to capacity.

This imaginative Swedish system kills two large ugly birds with one small stone. What is most important about it is not the sanitary disposal of garbage, but the fact that it is then used as fuel for heating and air-conditioning the very structures it comes out of.

When we consider the millions of tons of refuse that wastefully pollute our land and waterways today, it would seem that no building should be permitted to go up without provision for such a system; obviously, if it is installed during construction, the costs would be far less than adding it to an already existing structure.

It has always amazed me, during my travels, how little international exchange there is between really good ideas. Despite our tremendous transportation and communication systems, we remain insular in terms of adopting some "alien" way of doing things, even when these are cheaper, simpler, and immediately seen as superior.

With all the promotional hoop-la for the Walt Disney World, it may turn out that its most enduring contribution to the happiness and welfare of the public lies underground and not above it.

'Family' Life Bad

MARILYN BECK

I foresee trouble within CBS's most popular family, unless Carroll O'Connor has a dramatic change of mood. "It's the hardest work I've ever done," the actor told me about his role of Archie in that All in the Family series. "It's painful, terribly difficult." In spite of that pain — and in spite of reports he has asked out of the series — Carroll assured me he has no plans for giving up his berth as head of that video household. "I'm a performer and it's gratifying to know my performance is appreciated," he said. Still, he admitted all the hard work involved in making his Family a rating hit is starting to get to him, and he pointed out that the show has become a success as a result of much agonizing pressure for the entire cast.

"We have to revise each script almost totally each week," he said, volunteering that such chores are necessary to cure the headaches provided by the creative department. "I think our writers are the best around, but Family is a particularly delicate show to handle. On other series I've guested on, the pressure has always been on the director or the producer, never on the actor, as it is with us."

Desi Arnaz Jr. and Liza Minnelli are becoming a regular item. "I don't know how serious their number is," said Desi's sister, Lucie, "But I know he really digs Liza and they see each other a lot." As far as the reports her 18-year-old brother making the dating scene with Tina Sinatra, Lucie said, laughing, "They did that number four years ago. Now they're just old friends."

Lucie has become very involved in Actors and Others for Animals activities, and has been using Here's Lucy hiatus to raise money for a campaign to spay and neuter cats and dogs. "That's certainly better than having unwanted animals put to sleep at animal shelters," she said.

Lucie pointed out later that she and bridegroom Phil Vandervort's plan for a population explosion in their household could be disrupted if she becomes the star of her own series. There's talk that one of the upcoming episodes of Here's Lucy will be used as a spin-off for the young lady's own show. "And if that happens, well, I play a single girl and I could be disrupted if she becomes the star of her own series. the network would let me portray the first unwed mother on TV!"

They picked such a revealing cover for the French edition of Irving Wallace's The Seven Minutes that even the Parisian papers refused to permit its use in ads.

David Janssen's O'Hara, U.S. Treasury co-workers are astounded at his ability to drink so much and show the effects so little during camera calls. I'm told he's even on a beer-for-breakfast dieting kick.

Christmas, Organic Style

Not for Me, Says STAN DELAPLANE

Bright Christmasy days around here. We haven't given much attention to love lately, and this is the time to do it.

We've been eating a lot of organic foods lately. Heavy on the vegetables. But from fiery Tuscany, land of rich pasta and red Chianti, here's the news.

"I have never seen a vegetarian whose courting remained active for long," says Dr. Fernando. The doctor is a diet expert.

He said: "Food for lovers should include a lot of liver, kidneys and sweetbreads."

What about Christmas? Organic diets follow us everywhere. I've run into an organic Christmas dinner.

You start with a turkey. From there on, it sounds healthy, but a little medicinal.

The turkey, naturally, should come naturally. Shot and hormone free. (Apparently some health food stores stock these healthy birds.)

The dressing is salt-free. Use a salt substitute.

It is full of unsalted pine nuts and sunflower seeds. A cup of bulgiur — dampened with distilled water.

The organic chef recommends a carrot-apple juice opener instead of the yummy rummy drinks of Yuletide.

Forget it. I'll wait for New Year's.)

I almost forgot. You can wind up that healthy meal with coffee, Dandelion coffee.

When I was in my salad days (organic) we lived in a number of health food centres. Mother was an artist. We sought health, freedom and true religion.

It was a long bus ride. Sometimes we were on meat and potatoes. Sometimes we were on yogurt sandwiches.

When I think of all the things I ate, it would take a dozen Chinese dietitians to figure what I am.

Most of our dieting and truth seeking was determined by astrology. The place was loaded with searchers for the faith.

Naturally, not everybody agreed. One man in our community was positive that milk was poison. He ate nothing but nuts.

There was something in the stars that said avocados put a tiger in your tank. They were to be avoided at all costs. Sex was a disturbance in the tranquil life. Everybody rapped it. (Nearly everybody was swinging on the chandeliers, too.)

Aside from everybody being hiped and a little nutty, it was a peaceful enough life. A little astrology. A little nudism — sun was good for you.

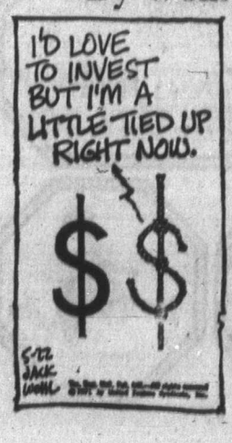

The food was not tasty. When I went home for Christmas, grandma stuffed me with all kinds of non-organic goodies. When she asked about our diet, I told her.

She said: "Gracious sake! Have some more of this pumpkin pie."

Thus I grew. Eating organically. Eating for health. Eating to curb my teenage inclinations. It didn't take. The community did my horoscope. They said it was because I have Venus square to Mars. It makes you a sex fiend.

Artistic Success Ruined at Gate

By BERT BINNY

The first in a series of four concerts, Four Centuries of Song, took place at Craigdarroch Castle Friday evening.

Artistically it was a success. From the point of view of attendance it was close to a disaster. There were fewer than 30 people in the audience, a state of affairs no doubt generated by the coldness of the weather the heat of other seasonal activities and the fact that programs of this nature, no matter how well executed, don't draw the popular fancy.

Soprano Catherine Young, who carried by far the greatest part of the program, has a voice of great strength and dramatic quality.

Likewise, she demonstrated no little ability in the matter of achieving the mood of the item — very sweet, for instance, in Paisiello's il mio ben, light and airy in the same composer's Nel cor piu non mi sento, quite vibrant in Durante's Danza, Danza.

Winifred Scott accompanied on piano and harpsichord and Catherine Young was joined by singer Lorraine Gorrell for duets by Monteverdi and Mozart.

Miss Gorrell offers a concert of 20th-century song in March and on the basis of her performance Friday evening, this is something to anticipate very keenly.

Let's Hope We Can See Scrooge on Stage

By BERT BINNY

The artistic performances next week offer a variety of concepts and origins, starting Monday with Handel's Messiah, ending Saturday with Jesus Christ Superstar and interpolating such figures as Charles Dickens and Henry Fielding's foundling, Tom Jones.

At least two carol programs are set for Sunday.

The Musical Art Society Carol Tea at the Empress Hotel in the afternoon has the conservatory junior group, the Norfolk House choir and the Wee Ones, directed by Gladys Pearcey.

At 7 p.m. it is the turn of the St. Martin's-in-the-Fields choir, directed by organist Ruth Powell, who present Carols By Candlelight.

The Amity Singers present the first of three programs of classical religious Christmas music, also Sunday afternoon at Ladysmith. The other two performances are in Victoria: Friday at the Church of Our Lord and Saturday at Emmanuel Baptist Church.

The performances of Handel's Messiah by the Victoria Choral Society take place on Monday and Tuesday. Both start at 8 p.m., the first at Christ Church Cathedral and the second at St. Andrew's.

The director is Rodney Webster and the organist, Richard Proudman. Erika Kurth is the soprano soloist and Elinor Bertram, contralto. The tenor is Donald Twine and the bass is John Dunbar.

The Theatre Guild production of A Theatre Under One Hat, which opens this evening, continues every night next week.

The one hat belongs to Charles Dickens and the presentation is nothing if not appropriate since Dickens biographers all agree that he "loved Christmas."

Pre-publicity fails to mention Ebenezer Scrooge, Bob Cratchett, Tiny Tim or even Marley's Ghost. By Sunday we'll know for sure whether these important Yuletide associates are included. Meanwhile, let's hope so — sincerely.

The annual appearance of Ice Capades starts Wednesday and performances continue through Saturday at varying times.

Among the star performers are Freddie Trenkler, Terry Head, Roy and Sandi Wagelein, Sashi Kuchiki and Tina Noyes, accompanied by all manner of glitter and glamour in the production items.

And there is still hope for those not completely accommodated by carols, classics and Capades.

The CBC program, Reach For The Top, is being filmed at the McPherson Playhouse Monday through Thursday.

Monday sees Oak Bay tussle with Alberni and when that intellectual dust settles at 9 p.m., Esquimalt tackles Cowichan. On Tuesday at 7:45 p.m., Nanaimo meets the representatives of Georges Vanier school at Courtenay followed by another titanic encounter between Mount Douglas high and Qualicum Beach.

Toronto Has Green Gables

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The cast and production staff of the Charlottetown Festival musical Anne of Green Gables assemble in Toronto Tuesday to begin a week of rehearsals before the New York opening of the show Dec. 21.

Several of the dancers in the cast have been on tour with Les Feux Follets since the close of the 1971 Charlottetown Festival and the troupe has been entertaining armed forces personnel in Cyprus for the last two weeks.

Director Alan Lund will join the rehearsals from Birmingham, England where he has just directed and opened a new musical. Authors Donald Harrow and Norman Campbell will also attend the rehearsal sessions and will accompany the cast to New York.

No major change in the musical will be made for the New York engagement, though some tightening and editing is planned.

Advance ticket sales for the two weeks at City Center Theatre has been described as "very healthy "by Norman Singer, executive director of the theatre who booked the show after seeing the final matinee performance at the Charlottetown festival this year. Two weeks before opening $44,000 had been taken at the box office.

Producer Jack McAndrew says the two week engagement is "highly significant for the festival and Canadian theatre."

"At the very least we'll get an answer to the question that has been floating around for seven years — how will New York critics and audiences react to the warmth and sentimentality of the show?" McAndrew asked.

"Everything is on the line for us with this one. We've already had some interest from Broadway and regional theatres, but they are all laying back to see what happens at City Center."

Anne of Green Gables has played at seven festival seasons here to sellout audiences, and has grossed more than $1 million.

Remand in Winnipeg For Stewardesses

WINNIPEG (CP) — Metropolitan Theatre of Winnipeg and Famous Players Ltd. were remanded one week Friday when they appeared in magistrate's court, charged after seizure of the movie, The Stewardesses. Lawyers for the companies indicated they would enter a plea of not guilty at their next appearance.

The accused have been charged jointly with possessing an obscene film and with exposing it to public view. The matter was remanded by Magistrate Mike Zaryluk for a week.

Goodies Aweigh Soon

Mounds of assorted candy were bagged Friday night by Victoria Jaycees and friends in preparation for annual Santa ship cruise through Gulf Islands Dec. 17 when candy and other gifts will be distributed to about 1,500 children at 10 ports of call. Among those bagging candy, from left, Jack Gray, Gary Weir, Thomas Jack, Barbara Lekivetz and Harold Aitken.

Trudeau, Nixon Ignored West Coast Tanker Topic

Prime Minister Trudeau Friday added another one to the list of subjects he didn't discuss with President Nixon this week in Washington.

Asked in the Commons by Tom Barnett (NDP-Comox-Alberni) whether Canadian concern over the proposed U.S. West Coast tanker route was discussed, Trudeau replied no.

The U.S. and Canadian leaders conferred Monday.

Meanwhile in Seattle, state ecology director John Biggs told the House conservation and natural resources subcommittee that major oil spills pose the most dangerous threat to water quality in the Puget Sound region.

He also spoke optimistically for future improvement of Puget Sound waters.

Earlier, the congressional panel's chairman, Rep. Henry Ruess (D-Wis.) rapped what he saw as undue haste in federal approval of a permmt for a refinery in the Bellingham area.

Biggs testified that "the possible entry into our state by ships loaded with large quantities of oil from Alaska causes us much apprehension."

If large quantities of oil are transported on Puget Sound waters as proposed, he said, "the threat is substantially increased."

The key to handling oil spill problems isn't cleanup, he said, it's prevention through strict control of oil tanker movements.

The panel was in Seattle for what Reuss called "the first overall congressional hearing on water quality in this region."

In another development, federal Environment Minister Jack Davis has ruled out official Canadian intervention before the U.S. Federal Power Commission on Seattle City Light's proposal to flood Skagit Valley.

"It's not diplomatic procedure for the Canadian government to appear in a U.S. court," he said in Vancouver.

Anyway, Davis said, the question of going before the power commission next year is premature while the International Joint Commission still hasn't handed down its recommendations. That long delayed report now is expected to be submitted to the U.S. and Canadian federal governments in about two weeks.

"I don't know what's in it, but I doubt very much that we can go any further if IJC rules in favor of Seattle," the minister said.

The IJC conducted Vancouver hearings in June on the Seattle utility's proposal to raise the height of Ross Dam to 660 feet, which would flood about 6,000 acres of the valley of the Canadian side of the border.

Elsewhere:

● In Ottawa, a private bill by Tom Goode (L—Burnaby-Richmond-Delta) to set up a national environment council was talked out by his fellow Liberal back-benchers.

Goode told the Commons that such a council, independent of the government, could provide "the kind of advice in environmental terms that the Economic Council does in economic terms."

But Jack Cullen (L—Sarnia-Lambton) said the last thing needed now is a body of men to tell government about polluted areas. This was known already.

● In Washington, a team of United States government scientists reported that most of the DDT used in the world remains unaccounted for and that man is extremely lucky not to have absorbed more than he has.

Nearly 6.2 billion pounds of the pesticide has been manufactured and used worldwide since 1942, the report said, but only about 11.9 million pounds can be found in the tissues of all humans, plants, animals, fish and birds on the planet.

German Auto Strike

Both Sides Victors In Wages Deal

BONN (UPI) — West Germany's biggest labor dispute since the Second World War ended Friday with a wage agreement that gave both union and management a chance to claim victory.

Three days after Chancellor Willy Brandt's dramatic appeal to the metalworkers' union and employers to settle the strike quickly in the national interest, the two sides announced agreement on wage demands.

A union vote early next week was expected to end the strike and lockout that has brought the vital auto industry and several machinery plants to a standstill and idled about 600,000 workers.

It was expected to take at least a week for the production lines to get rolling again in vital auto plants such as Volkswagen, German Ford, Daimler-Benz and Adam Opel, a subsidiary of General Motors.

The final negotiations that produced the agreement represented the last possibility of preventing a spread of the strike to all of West Germany's 4.3 million metalworkers, union leaders said.

The terms of the wage settlement reached in Stuttgart after more than two months of negotiation and arbitration would have to be applied to the rest of the nation's metalworkers. Most of them had been poised to join the strike if the negotiations in the southwest region failed.

The settlement applied immediately to 650,000 metalworkers in the key industrial region of north Baden-Wurttemberg. The union called out 120,000 of these workers Nov. 22 and three days later the employers - federation locked out a total of 360,000 from 544 plants.

The terms of the agreement granted a 7.5 per cent across-the-board wage hike for 12 months effective Jan. 1, 1972. Management also undertook to pay each worker $54 extra for the three months of October through December of this year. In addition there was agreement on a small year-end bonus, graduated according to the time an employee had been with the firm.

On average over the 15-month period, this worked out to a seven per cent raise, just within the upper limit which Economics Minister Karl Schiller said was acceptable.

The metal union originally demanded 11 per cent and for a long time the employers refused to go beyond 4.5 per cent.

The cost to the nation's inflation-hit industry of the three-week strike and lockout had yet to be calculated. The shutdown of the entire auto industry meant a loss of 12,500 vehicles a day at a time when the economy is hit by President Nixon's 10 per cent surcharge on imports and a de facto revaluation of the mark of around 11 per cent which has slashed German industrial exports by about 30 per cent.

B.C. Jobs Program

Salaries Okayed

The provincial government has approved a special warrant for $20,000 to pay salaries of workers employed under B.C.'s job opportunities program.

The payment follows an earlier one of $152,000 which officials said was mainly to cover advertising costs.

Meanwhile, a municipal affairs department spokesman said Friday that wage claims received through the first week of December showed a total of 146 persons had found work through the program across the province. Twenty-two of the jobs were created in Greater Victoria.

Under the program, which runs through April, the government will pay 50 per cent of wages and fringe benefits for people taken off welfare rolls into newly-created jobs.

Albertans Die In Air Crash

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — Four Alberta men were killed early Friday in the crash of a private plane on a flight from Great Falls, Mont., to Calgary.

Dead are pilot Frank Chapman of Calgary, co-pilot Jim Russell of Calgary and passengers Jim Avon and Ed Skaber, both of Edmonton.

RCMP at Lethbridge said the wreckage of the plane was found Friday afternoon upside down in a rancher's field near Del Bonita, Alta., 50 miles south of Lethbridge, just north of the Montana-Alberta border.

A spokesman for the Montana Aeronautics Commission said the craft was located with the aid of a search beacon on the craft.

The plane was last heard of during its flight when it made a radio check at Cut Bank, Mont. about 2:30 a.m. Friday. A search was begun when the plane failed to arrive in Calgary.

The trip was part of a training flight for Russell, a member of Calgary Flying Club along with Chapman. The passengers were friends of Russell.

Monks Acquire Liquor Licence

BUCKFAST ABBEY, England (UPI) — The monks of Buckfast Abbey tried for the first time since 1926 to get a liquor licence to sell their own homemade tonic wines to visitors, a spokesman said. This time they got it. The 1926 refusal was based on an objection by a local church.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Friday's answer — Farewell to a long line of many-star movie casts, the last being Gable, Gardner, Greenstreet, Kerr and Menjou in MGM's slash at advertising and Lucky Strike, The Hucksters. The product in the movie was soap — Love That Soap!

Today's question — A toughie for the weekend. The little-known acting pair of Mala Powers and William Prince supplied the love interest in a 1950 movie that made the star's career and gave him his only Oscar. The love affair was the key to the plot; name star and movie. Answer Tuesday.

"... however, in this life each of us has a cross to bear."

Saturday Highlights

C-1:30—U.S. college football's first post-season bowl game, in the Camellia Bowl, pits Chico State against Boise State—4.

C-5:00—NHL hockey, Boston at Vancouver—2, 6.

Saturday Movies

12:30 noon—Sweethearts on Parade (1952 musical, a hopeless antique), Lucille Norman. If you remember her, good luck—11.

2:00 p.m.—No title available. May be short films instead—2.

C-2:00—Black Horse Canyon (1954 Joel McCrea)—7.

● 4:30—Forbidden Games (excellent 1952 French two-children drama)—5.

C-8:30—Forever My Love (poorish 1962 Hapsburgs tragedy), Romy Schneider, Kurt Boehm. Forever, my foot—6.

C-9:00—The Vikings (dreadful 1958 action), Tony Curtis, Ernest Borgnine, Kirk Douglas. This is a sort of Scandinavian lemon—2.

C-9:00—Big Country (1958 western, not bad), Gregory Peck, Jean Simmons, Charlton Heston, many more. Part one now, part two at this time Monday—5.

C-9:00—The High Bright Sun (good 1966 Cyprus war drama), Dirk Bogarde, Susan Strasberg. Best of the 8:30-9 list—8.

C-11:15—With a Song in My Heart (popular 1952 Jane Froman story), Susan Hayward. More a soaper than anything else—5.

● 11:15—Incredible Shrinking Man (1957 sci-fi classic), Grant Williams. A low-budget effort that has become a film to remember—7.

C-11:20—The High Bright Sun (see 9:00)—6.

C-11:45—All the Brothers Were Valiant (so-so 1953 whale hunters), Robert Taylor, Stewart Granger. A far cry from Moby Dick—4.

7:00—Symphony Hall: composer-conductor Michael Tippett and the London Symphony Orchestra—CBU.

●—Recommended; C—Color.

Opening lead: King of hearts.

Doctor Watson sighed heavily as he handed his old friend, Sherlock Holmes, a hand on a crumpled piece of paper. "This afternoon, Holmes," he said, "I endeavored to apply your methods of scientific deduction, but the results were not at all satisfactory.

"I won the heart opening with the ace and deduced that West, in view of his very strong bidding, was bound to hold the king of spades. Furthermore, it was possible that he might hold the K-J-x, and I took steps accordingly.

"Instead of laying down the ace of trumps, I entered my hand by ruffing a heart and led a low spade. When West played the three, I finessed dummy's ten.

"Unfortunately, this manoeuver allowed East to win and lead through my K-J, West taking two clubs and a diamond to defeat the contract. Dashed annoying, annoying, what?"

"Watson, you showed signs of intelligence in deducing that West was bound to have the king of trumps and might have the K-J-x, but unfortunately you did no guard that West was bound to have the king of trumps and might have the K-J-x, but unfortunately you did not guard against this possibility in the safest way.

"At trick two you should lead a low trump from dummy and finesse the nine. As it happens, this fetches the king and West can take only his two aces. Eventually, two of your clubs go on the diamonds.

"If West happened to have the K-J-x of trumps, he would win the nine with the jack, but later you would lead the queen and finesse against the king. In either case, East never obtains the lead to play a club. Elementary, my dear Watson."

Courtenay Trustees' $140,000 Dilemma

Teachers, Principals Plead For No School Budget Cuts

COURTENAY — A delegation from the Comox District Teachers' Association and the Comox District Principals' Association has asked Courtenay school trustees not to cut back the amount set out in the provisional budget.

The request, if accepted by the trustees, would mean publishing a bylaw to say the board's budget would be in over the 108 per cent formula imposed by education Minister Donald Brothers. Anything over 108 per cent will have to be found by district taxpayers.

A petition by 100 or more residents would force the board to an operating referendum.

Board chairman Doug Sankey told the delegation that a special board meeting will be held Monday and the budget will be the sole matter for discussion.

To meet the Brothers 108 per cent edict the Courtenay school district would have to lop off $140,000 from its provisional budget.

Lou Beduz, principal of Comox junior high school, told trustees that as a group the principals feel "this district has a fine educational program" which had been developed to the point where letters of commendation and awarding of grants are being given to Courtenay school district.

"The program is in jeopardy" Beduz said, "because of a decision not made by the board. He urged the board to do everything in its power to retain all the present programs.

Gerd Kaefer, speaking as president of the CDTA, told trustees that his group "protested most vigorously" the non-replacement of four teachers who have resigned or retired, as of Dec. 31, 1971.

He was told that in fact the number of teachers not replaced was only two, as two schools were over their teacher entitlement.

Bays Edge Visitors

Oak Bay Bays edged Sandy High School, near Portland, 52-46, in a double-overtime struggle Friday night at Oak Bay high school.

In the other exhibition boys' game, Franklin high school of Portland dumped Victoria High Totems, 70-43.

Sandy took a 17-15 lead in the first half but the Bays battled back to even it at 40-40 at the end of regulation time. At the end of the first three-minute overtime period the teams were still deadlocked, at 44-44.

Mark Campbell topped the Bays' scoring with 15 points but it was Mark Anderson who sparked the win. Anderson, who had finished with 13 points, had four points in the second overtime period. Rick Zimmerman, an imposing figure at six-foot-eight, led Sandy with 13 points.

Franklin took a 39-17 lead in the first half against a spluttering Totem offense. Eleven of the 12 Franklin players hit the score sheet, led by Tom Lovlien with 17 points. Kevin Townsend led Totems with 18 points.

Bays take on Franklin tonight starting at 8:30 at Oak Bay. Totems are scheduled to meet Burnaby North in the preliminary game at 7:00, depending on the Mainland school's progress in the Ram-Roadrunner tournament at Reynolds high school today.

Limited-Access Subdivisions Now Allowed

The provincial government has decided to allow subdivisions in areas of B.C. where the only access is by forest service road.

The cabinet order made public Friday leaves final approval for these subdivisions to the highways department but calls for consultation with the forest service on suitability of access.

In the past no application for subdivision could be made unless access was available either by public road or by water, officials said.

A highways department spokesman said it was a housekeeping measure designed to facilitate applications for establishment of logging camps.

He added, that although applications now may be made for residential and resort subdivisions, under the new cabinet order the approving officer will be "pretty selective" in dealing with these uses.

A forest service spokesman said, however, the order was put through by the lands, forests and water resources department to facilitiate residential developments, "usually in the form of recreational subdivisions."

But he stressed that while the forest service would be asked to express any objections it might have to the use of forest development roads for access, the final approval of such developments rests with highways.

Non-Canadians on List

Voters Check Too Expensive

It's virtually impossible to find out now whether or not all those whose names are on Victoria area lists are eligible to vote in the municipal elections, a spokesman for the city clerk's ofice in Victoria said Friday.

"The only way would be to check each individual name; that's certainly impossible between now and the election but it would also be pretty expensive if we had the time," she said.

Her comments came following claims by an Oak Bay resident earlier Friday that he had found the names of 71 non-Canadians on the Saanich voters list.

Only Canadian citizens and British subjects should be on the voters lists. Aliens whose names appear on the lists aren't permitted to vote.

A city official pointed out that anyone not eligible to vote was liable to be fined $200, or be imprisoned for six months — if he was caught casting a ballot.

"We get our information from the land registry office. When someone purchases a house, or property, he, or his agent, is supposed to indicate that the buyer is an alien; that means anything except Canadian citizens or British subject," the city official said.

"The land registry then notifies us. If the property buyer has failed to point out that he's an alien, we'll get his name for the voters' list."

On the other hand, she said, the city also has a list of aliens. At present it contains the names of 577 Chinese, 186 East Indians, and 244 Europeans.

If any of these persons have become Canadian citizens since they bought their property and were included in the aliens list, she said, they are eligible to vote.

"All they have to do is come down here (polling station) on election day (today), swear an affidavit, and they'll be allowed to vote; they don't have to bring proof of their citizenship," she said.

Meanwhile, Tom Chatham, 2267 Windsor, said he will turn over to the municipality for checking his list of 71 non-Canadians whose names he said he found on the Saanich voters' list.

Chatham also said if the Saanich election turns out to be a narrow-margin win for any candidate, he will seek legal action to have the election invalidated.

Victoria Taxpayer Bears Full Burden

Anyone Can Seek Rezoning At Cost of Seven-Cent Stamp

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

Victoria property owners are paying for a service that is used free by an average of only 80 persons a year.

The service in question is the processing of rezoning applications which involves a number of cost factors.

First, there's the administrative cost. Some of the city hall staff working on such applications earn $20,000 a year, and more.

But there is also the more tangible cost of running advertisements in local newspapers.

Between 75 and 85 applications for rezoning are submitted to city hall every year.

At present, the city doesn't charge a penny to process such an application. For example, when a developer wants to build an apartment on property zoned for single-family dwelling only, he applies to the city for a zoning change.

The planning department checks the application and refers it to the Advisory Planning Commission. The commission weighs the pros and cons and, in turn, sends it to council with a recommendation for refusal or acceptance.

If council approves the zoning change in principle, it goes to a public hearing which requires notification through the news media.

If the application is turned down, the developer can resubmit it after 12 months.

The trouble is he doesn't have to pay one cent for all this. The cost is borne by property owners at large.

A number of municipalities, including North Vancouver, Burnaby, Delta, Surrey and New Westminster, have recently implemented fees for this service.

Rates range from $30 to $75 for each application. Some municipalities charge a flat fee, others base their charges on the number of apartment units to be built on the site or the square footage of the property for which rezoning is sought.

City Manager Bill Hooson told the Colonist any such scheme would have to be approved by council.

"It may be a good idea but I don't think it would be much of a revenue producer. On the other hand, it may be a sound principle that those who use the service should pay for it," Hooson said.

Assistant city planner Peter Crisp said a fee would "probably be a deterrent against the frivolous application." As it was now, anyone could set the machinery of city hall into motion with a seven-cent stamp.

"Calgary has had such a scheme for quite a number of years, and it has served the city well," he said.

Salmon Boost Planned

VANCOUVER (CP) — W. R. Hourston, chairman of the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, has announced a $14-million program aimed at more than doubling the salmon-rearing capacity of the Fraser River.

Hourston told the commission's annual meeting Friday the project calls for construction of eight new spawning channels and an incubation channel in the Fraser River system.

The proposals will be submitted to the Canadian and United States governments early next year.

Vote Early Today— And Beat the Snow

Greater Victoria voters may have to slog through snow today to get to the polls for municipal elections.

According to the forecast Friday night from the Victoria weather office, it should be cloudy and cold this morning, with two to four inches of snow falling in the afternoon, easing off to flurries overnight, so the voter's best bet is to visit the polls early.

Sunday's outlook is for cloudy periods and continuing cold.

East Pakistan Collapse Widely Rumored at UN

From CP, AP, Reuter

The foreign minister of Pakistan arrived in New York Friday and was immediately reported ill and unable to keep appointments as rumors flew at the UN concerning surrender of Pakistani forces in East Pakistan.

Zulifakar Ali Bhutto, the new deputy prime minister and foreign minister of Pakistan, arrived late Friday and was supposed to have appointments with Secretary-General Thant and U.S. Ambassador George Bush.

Bhutto . . . reported ill

But he cancelled both appointments, pleading illness. He did talk to Thant on the telephone and to Chiaco Kuan-hua, Chinese deputy foreign minister who visited him at his hotel room.

Rumors were rife at the UN as Indian forces closed in on Dacca in East Pakistan.

The rumors said the commander-in-chief of the Pakistani forces in Dacca had offered to surrender. The offer had been sent through UN officials in Dacca.

However, Pakistani ambassador Agha Shahi is said to have told Thant to disregard this message and that a communication would be received from President Yahya Khan.

There were also reports that Pakistan had expressed willingness to negotiate with the leaders of the Bangla Desh government which is located in New Delhi and which says it represents the people of East Pakistan.

Bhutto is reported to have told UN officials that his illness is not serious and that he will be able to resume his schedule today.

Meanwhile, Foreign Minister Saran Singh of India was to arrive in New York Friday night, meaning that both countries in the sub-continent will be represented by big guns if and when the UN takes up the war again.

It was not known whether

Fireman Liked Sirens, So He Started Own Fires

HOUSTON (UPI) — Nine volunteer firemen have been charged with starting fires in the south-east sections of the city allegedly to relieve their boredom.

G. L. Caldwell, an arson investigator with the Houston fire department, said one of the men said he set the blazes for "kicks."

Student Council Provides Holiday Lesson

In past years, the schools involved in the Inter-High Students' Council have collected toys, food and money for the needy from the students only.

This year, members of the council decided to use the schools as collection depots for their neighborhoods.

Both junior and senior high schools are involved in this special Christmas project, which started Monday and will end Dec. 17.

Those included are Arbutus, Central, Colquitz, Lansdowne, Oak Bay, Reynolds, S. J. Willis and Shoreline junior highs, and Esquimalt, Mount View, Oak Bay, Victoria and Mount Douglas senior highs.

There will be large boxes for donations of food and toys in the school offices, says Cathy Woods of the Inter-High Students' Council, which will go to the Salvation Army and Kiwanis Club.

All the money received by the schools, which can also be donated in the school offices, will go to the Colonist 500 Fund.

A project like this takes a great deal of work on the part of the students. They've done the organizing. They're the ones who'll be spending their time asking friends, neighbors and relatives for donations, at a time of year when they're pretty busy studying for exams.

They're anxious to help those less fortunate than themselves, and, says Cathy Woods, they hope to give bigger donations this year because of the new way they've set up the project.

It's generosity like this that has made the Colonist 500 Fund a success for so many years, and has given destitute families a happier Christmas than they would have had normally.

Weary Firemen Douse Day-Old Subway Blaze

MONTREAL (CP) — Weary but determined firefighters extinguished an underground fire Friday night after it had destroyed 36 subway cars in a 24-hour searing holocaust.

Millions of gallons of water were poured into the tunnel at the northern terminus of Montreal's five-year-old Metro system, before the blaze was brought under control.

Gerard Maccarone, 40, subway motorman, apparently died in the flames and smoke but his body was still pinned in the train cab under eight feet of water, Montreal transit officials said.

Fire department officials announced that the fire was out just eight minutes short of burning for a full 24 hours. The "all out" came at 10:25 p.m.

Dense smoke, noxious fumes, deadly gas from spilled sulphuric acid and searing heat repeatedly drove firemen back from the source of the fire.

It broke out Thursday night after a nine-car subway train, empty of passengers, smashed into a parked train in a storage and switching tunnel north of the Henri Bourassa station. Two other nine-car trains were sitting in the area at the time.

Baxter Acquitted of Fraud

By BARBARA McLINTOCK
Colonist Reporter

A Victoria County Court jury Friday night found Vancouver horse-owner David Robert Baxter not guilty of fraud in connection with the substitution of one horse for another in a race at Sandown Park last summer.

The jury of nine men and three women deliberated for about 5½ hours before reaching a verdict.

Baxter, 40, had been charged with fraud in connection with the seventh race Aug. 21, the final day of last summer's race meet at Sandown. He entered the three-year-old filly Last Note in the race, but the crown had contended he actually ran another three-year-old filly, Music Melody, under the name of Last Note.

Prosecutor Brian Smith said he did not think it likely the crown would appeal the verdict.

Baxter, whose wife was present in the courtroom, smiled broadly as the jury foreman told Judge M. L. T. Drake the jury found Baxter not guilty.

Earlier during the day he had cried quietly after he finished giving testimony on his own behalf.

On the witness stand, he denied that he had brought two horses over to Sandown Park from Vancouver on Aug. 21. He had, he said, sent Last Note to Sandown with another trainer, Walter Gilker, because he was afraid the driver of the trailer he had arranged to borrow for the day would be late.

The driver brought the trailer soon after, he said, and he was on the same ferry as Gilker. He told court he took the empty trailer to Sandown so he could bring Last Note back to Vancouver if he did not manage to sell her in Victoria.

Baxter said that after he got to Sandown, he settled his horse and asked a groom, Lloyd Cairns, to bridle it and bring it to the paddock for its race.

He did not see Last Note again until she was running her race, he said. He spent most of the intervening hours looking for a buyer for the

Pickup Truck No Bargain

RED DEER, Alta. (CP) — Doris Sutherland was called to the telephone Thursday by her son who said there was a man "talking funny" on the line.

Mrs. Sutherland was asked if she had a pickup truck for sale. When she replied "no" the man asked what number her phone was.

She told him it was 347-1200, and that was the right one as far as the man was concerned.

"The ad has a half-ton truck for sale at that number," said the man. "You're sure you haven't got one for sale?"

"No," she said.

The man persisted, asking where she lived.

"Red Deer," she said, to which he replied: "Is that in Virginia?"

No, Mrs. Sutherland said, "It's in Alberta, Canada."

"Canada? Oh, my God, this will cost me a fortune. I'm trying to get Warrington, West Virginia."

The man had mixed area codes, calling 403 instead of 304.

Freighter Finds 12 Survivors Of Ship-Sinking

HONOLULU (AP) — A Norwegian freighter reported rescuing six men and six women Friday, who had spent almost 22 hours in a life raft after abandoning a Danish ship Wednesday.

The U.S. Coast Guard said messages relayed from the rescue vessel, the Puna, indicated that the survivors were in generally good condition. The survivors did not know whether any of the rest of the 36-member crew got off the stricken vessel, the Heering Kirse, a 500-foot-long merchant ship owned by Dommanditselskabet AF of Copenhagen.

A coast guard spokesman said the survivors reported they went over the side Wednesday afternoon after the ship took water into its No. 1 hold and began listing 45 degrees to starboard.

They said they could see the lights of the ship at midnight, eight hours after they abandoned it.

The coast guard said earlier reports that the survivors included 10 men and two women were in error due to poor communications from the scene, about 1,300 miles northwest of Honolulu.

Lambert Charges Senate Bribe

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson was accused of bribing the Senate Friday with promises to bring in amendments to his tax change bill after it has been passed by Parliament.

Benson gave the Commons a list of areas in the bill in which he said he hopes to make alterations in the next year or so.

The government will apply the guillotine rule for the second time to cut off Commons debate on the tax bill next week, informed sources said Friday.

Privy Council President Allan MacEachen, government House leader, will give notice Monday of use of the guillotine rule, already employed to choke off debate on the bill in committee stage.

There will be a two-hour debate Tuesday on the motion to shut off debate and debate on the bill itself will end Friday. It will go to the Senate late that same day.

Conservative finance critic Marcel Lambert described it as "a cheap bribe to the Senate" to get the upper chamber to act in haste.

Benson gave the opening speech on Commons third-reading debate on the bill. The debate is expected to last until next Friday, when the government has said it intends to close it off by means of a debate-limiting motion it

New Pricing Terms Accepted

Fallers Vote for Return to Work

COURTENAY — Fallers at Kelsey Bay and Eve River have voted to accept new terms of a pricing agreement and all work crews are expected to be back on the job Monday.

The fallers at the two MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. logging divisions had rejected an earlier agreement last Sunday and stayed off work.

At one stage, MacMillan Bloedel warned that up to 500 employees would be out of work on Vancouver Island as log supplies dwindled if the fallers didn't vote to return to the job.

Kelsey Bay fallers voted to accept the terms of reference Thursday.

Max Salter, president of Local 1-363 of the International Woodworkers of America, said the vote by the 32 eligible fallers was more indicative but not unanimous.

Fallers at Eve River voted Friday afternoon in Courtenay and Salter called the ballot by 17 eligible fallers "very marginal."

However, he said he was glad to be able to accomplish the back to work arrangement so that crews as a whole would be recalled.

Salter said he was also glad that acceptance of the new pricing agreement terms by the fallers eliminated penalties such as suspension and dismissal.

The union local president declined to release a breakdown of the voting at the two divisions.

He said that before the fallers voted the entire work crews at each division had to approve his report from recent negotiations with MacMillan Bloedel in Vancouver. This was done and the fallers were then authorized to vote.

MacMillan Bloedel said after the Vancouver talks many outstanding logging disputes on the Island had been settled including the fallers agreement.

The settlement also involved a 10-per-cent increase in the amount paid fallers on a piece-work basis.

Salter said operations at Kelsey Bay could be back to normal by Monday but the start-up would take longer at Eve River, where 175 loggers were laid off.

The layoffs and firings occurred following work slowdowns to protest lack of progress in negotiations for a standard pricing agreement for fallers.

Monday's return to work is subject to favorable weather conditions.

Kiernan's Give-Away 'Incredible'

Opposition leader Dave Barrett said Friday that Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan should be known in future as the "recording secretary of the give-away gang" for his handling of provincial parks.

The NDP leader made the statement after Kiernan said the government was prepared to accept an extended deadline for Western Mines Ltd. to stop dumping tailings into Buttle Lake in Strathcona Park.

Kiernan also confirmed the mining company had been given a permit last spring to carry out exploration work on silver claims in the Cream Lake area of the Class B southern section of the park.

If a mineable ore body is found, sources said, it could jeopardize scenic values of an area which includes the spectacular Della Falls and a hiking trail into the Bedwell Lake area which is being built under a government program.

"Who is the minister of recreation and conservation, Western Mines or Ken Kiernan — would the real minister of recreation pleases stand up?" Barrett said in a Victoria interview Friday.

The NDP leader said he finds the minister's behavior incredible and noted Kiernan's park philosophy in the past has been "let's cut down the trees so we can see the view."

He added that Kiernan probably intends to shut all provincial parks down for good once all the mining has been completed within the parks' boundaries.

Barrett also noted control of Western Mines was turned over in October to W. R. Grace and Co., a multi-national corporation with headquarters in New York.

This only serves to illustrate how unwise the government has been in allowing Western Mines to explore further mine claims in Strathcona Park, Barrett said.

"The minister's statements and policy of operating provincial parks show that he's the recording secretary of the give-away gang," he said.

Kiernan said he has given mining companies two years from the spring of this year to decide whether their claims within provincial parks are workable. He has always claimed most existing claims predate creation of the parks.

According to mines department files, however, Cream Lake claims of good standing date from 1964 with the latest five blocks being filed in 1970.

Courtenay Trustees' $140,000 Dilemma

Teachers, Principals Plead For No School Budget Cuts

COURTENAY — A delegation from the Comox District Teachers' Association and the Comox District Principals' Association has asked Courtenay school trustees not to cut back the amount set out in the provisional budget.

The request, if accepted by the trustees, would mean publishing a bylaw to say the board's budget would be in over the 108 per cent formula imposed by education Minister Donald Brothers. Anything over 108 per cent will have to be found by district taxpayers.

A petition by 100 or more residents would force the board to an operating referendum.

Board chairman Doug Sankey told the delegation that a special board meeting will be held Monday and the budget will be the sole matter for discussion.

To meet the Brothers 108 per cent edict the Courtenay school district would have to lop off $140,000 from its provisional budget.

Lou Beduz, principal of Comox junior high school, told trustees that as a group the principals feel "this district has a fine educational program" which had been developed to the point where letters of commendation and awarding of grants are being given to Courtenay school district.

"The program is in jeopardy" Beduz said, "because of a decision not made by the board. He urged the board to do everything in its power to retain all the present programs.

Gerd Kaefer, speaking as president of the CDTA, told trustees that his group "protested most vigorously" the non-replacement of four teachers who have resigned or retired, as of Dec. 31, 1971.

He was told that in fact the number of teachers not replaced was only two, as two schools were over their teacher entitlement.

Lou Phillips, principal at Comox elementary told the board that a difference in interpretation of the 33 to 1 teacher-pupil ratio also existed.

Sankey said he wanted to make it quiet clear that if the board decides to cut the budget to stay within the 108 per cent limitations, teachers will be consulted for their opinion of priority areas.

At This Island School Classroom Progress Is a Continuous Thing

By ELIZABETH DUNN
Colonist Correspondent

YOUBOU — June is a long way off but already Johnny is beaming over his latest promotion.

As a student at the Yount elementary school at Youbou, Johnny is participating in a continuous progress program. Instead of having to wait until September to start the next grade's work, students who have proved themselves capable are transferred to the next class, regardless of the time of year.

The word grade, however, is the biggest no-no in the Yount vocabulary. In fact, at one time anyone who uttered the dreaded word faced an automatic five cent fine.

The continuous progress system has been in effect at the Yount school four years, and according to principal Terry Taylor "it is the only sensible way that a child should be educated."

Under the system, a child who has proven that he has a thorough knowledge of the level he is working in is soon promoted to the next level. The Yount school offers 20 such levels, the equivalent of an inclusive Grade 7 program.

The advantage of such a program, Taylor said, is that it recognizes the fact that people develop at different rates, thereby helping to take care of individual differences.

This does not mean, however, that each of the 210 students in the school is working on a separate program. What it does mean, said Taylor, is that each child is working to his own capacity.

He said that this has not removed the competitive element from the learning situation. "While competition is deemphasized for slow children, a situation entirely to their advantage, there is a subtle, yet more competitive challenge for faster children, who thrive on competition."

Most children, though, fall midway between these extreme categories. In fact, almost 65 per cent of the students accelerate at a normal rate; with 15 per cent beginning their next year's work before September; and 20 per cent spending longer than one year at a certain level.

The fact that more children fall behind than accelerate does not dismay Taylor. Such a percentage, he said, was normal — that is, typical of most schools in the province.

Another advantage of the continuous progress system, explained Taylor, is that it has raised the quality of teacher-student relationships. "A teacher is forced to individualize, which basically means continual regrouping and teacher-teacher, and teacher-principal conferences."

The result of the system, he said, was that "we truly try to fit the system around the child, and not the child into the system."

Car Plunge Kills Man

A 26-year-old Vancouver man, Richard Mountain, died shortly after 4 p.m. Friday when the car in which he was riding went off a bridge at Gold River and plunged bout 35 feet into the water.

Gold River RCMP said they believed Mountain was a passenger in the car. Police would not release the name of the driver. He was taken to Campbell River Hospital suffering minor injuries.

Eviction Order Does the Trick

QUALICUM BEACH — The threat of eviction by the Qualicum village council appears to have done the trick for the Gordon Phares family.

Mr. and Mrs. Phares had been given until Friday to move out of their home on five acres of land they own in the village because they did not get a building permit and their house was not judged to be up to building standards.

Friday the family disappeared.

Their furniture was gone from their house and no one could say just where the family had set sights for.

Qualicum Ald. Bruce Brown said Friday night that he didn't know where the Phares had gone but he knew they had shifted out.

Checks on other likely sources of information also failed to turn up a clue.

Phares told the village council earlier in the week that he had sold the land and was planning to build another house outside the village.

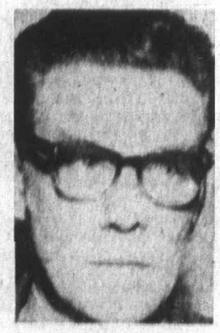

Council said at the time that it is bound by the bylaws and could not allow the family to stay on. One alderman said it was not council's responsibility to find people a place to live.

With this in mind, and a pregnant wife on his hands, it appears Phares has decided to comply with the eviction order.

Manslaughter Term Six Years

NANAIMO (CP) — Charles Roux, 64, of Port Alberni, Friday was sentenced to six years in prison in the beating death of his common-law wife, Mrs. Helen McKalko, who died in hospital a week after she was beaten Sept. 20 in a home in Port Alberni.

Roux originally was charged with non-capital murder but a B.C. Supreme Court jury found him guilty Wednesday of the reduced charge of manslaughter.

Education Ideas Good but Implementation Fuzzy

NANAIMO — The ideas on how to expand the public's role in education are good according to the non-government commission on the subject, but what commissioners appear to be looking for are hard facts on how to implement the ideas.

Five briefs were presented to the five-member commission Friday and in each case the people presenting them were asked what they had done to implement their ideas or what would be the best way to put them to use.

The commission, headed by Mrs. Catherine Schoen, president of the B.C. Parent Teacher Federation, began holding its hearings Nov. 15 in Dawson Creek and so far have visited 18 centres. They are headed now for their last session in Victoria and a report on their findings will be issued next April.

One of the most interesting submissions was from a group of Woodlands junior high and senior high school students who said they have been trying with little success to escape the system of teachers handing out assignments and students regurgitating facts. Attempts to accomplish this at the high school have bogged down in "horribly confusing" red tape, said one student.

They would like a chance to be consulted on curriculum and to pursue individual projects.

Asked if they had tried to work through their student council, the students said they have found the council's have an entertainment rather than an education orientation.

Gabriola Island resident Mrs. Pamela Fairchild said in her brief that school trustees and parents would not be at loggerheads if school taxes were taken from general revenue instead of property taxes.

There is too much concern, she said, with physical setting and buildings, "the temple of learning syndrome where architecture and parking lots are over-emphasized."

The University Women's Club urged open classroom visits for parents and parent-teacher interviews such as those that are already being conducted at some Nanaimo schools.

Their particular emphasis, however, was in making use in the schools of resource people in the community by compiling a list of available resource people in the district, who would be willing to go into classrooms and share their talents.

Let's Hope We Can See Scrooge on Stage

By BERT BINNY

The artistic performances next week offer a variety of concepts and origins, starting Monday with Handel's Messiah, ending Saturday with Jesus Christ Superstar and interpolating such figures as Charles Dickens and Henry Fielding's foundling, Tom Jones.

At least two carol programs are set for Sunday.

The Musical Art Society Carol Tea at the Empress Hotel in the afternoon has the conservatory junior group, the Norfolk House choir and the Wee Ones, directed by Gladys Pearcey.

At 7 p.m. it is the turn of the St. Martin's-in-the-Fields choir, directed by organist Ruth Powell, who present Carols By Candlelight.

The Amity Singers present the first of three programs of classical religious Christmas music, also Sunday afternoon at Ladysmith. The other two performances are in Victoria; Friday at the Church of Our Lord and Saturday at Emmanuel Baptist Church.

The performances of Handel's Messiah by the Victoria Choral Society take place on Monday and Tuesday. Both start at 8 p.m., the first at Christ Church Cathedral and the second at St. Andrew's.

The director is Rodney Webster and the organist, Richard Proudman. Erika Kurth is the soprano soloist and Elinor Bertram, contralto. The tenor is Donald Twine and the bass is John Dunbar.

The Theatre Guild production of A Theatre Under One Hat, which opens this evening, continues every night next week.

The one hat belongs to Charles Dickens and the presentation is nothing if not appropriate since Dickens biographers all agree that he "loved Christmas."

Pre-publicity fails to mention Ebenezer Scrooge, Bob Cratchett, Tiny Tim or even Marley's Ghost. By Sunday we'll know for sure whether these important Yuletide associates are included. Meanwhile, let's hope so — sincerely.

The annual appearance of Ice Capades starts Wednesday and performances continue through Saturday at varying times.

Among the star performers are Freddie Trenkler, Terry Head, Roy and Sandi Wagelein, Sashi Kuchiki and Tina Noyes, accompanied by all manner of glitter and glamour in the production items.

And there is still hope for those not completely accommodated by carols, classics and Capades.

The CBC program, Reach For The Top, is being filmed at the McPherson Playhouse Monday through Thursday.

Monday sees Oak Bay tussle with Alberni and when that intellectual dust settles at 9 p.m., Esquimalt tackles Cowichan. On Tuesday at 7:45 p.m., Nanaimo meets the representatives of Georges Vanier school at Courtenay followed by another titanic encounter between Mount Douglas high and Qualicum Beach.

Toronto Has Green Gables

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The cast and production staff of the Charlottetown Festival musical Anne of Green Gables assemble in Toronto Tuesday to begin a week of rehearsals before the New York opening of the show Dec. 21.

Several of the dancers in the cast have been on tour with Les Feux Follets since the close of the 1971 Charlottetown Festival and the troupe has been entertaining armed forces personnel in Cyprus for the last two weeks.

Director Alan Lund will join the rehearsals from Birmingham, England where he has just directed and opened a new musical. Authors Donald Harrow and Norman Campbell will also attend the rehearsal sessions and will accompany the cast to New York.

No major change in the musical will be made for the New York engagement, though some tightening and editing is planned.

Advance ticket sales for the two weeks at City Center Theatre has been described as "very healthy "by Norman Singer, executive director of the theatre who booked the show after seeing the final matinee performance at the Charlottetown festival this year. Two weeks before opening $44,000 had been taken at the box office.

Producer Jack McAndrew says the two week engagement is "highly significant for the festival and Canadian theatre."

"At the very least we'll get an answer to the question that has been floating around for seven years — how will New York critics and audiences react to the warmth and sentimentality of the show?" McAndrew asked.

"Everything is on the line for us with this one. We've already had some interest from Broadway and regional theatres, but they are all laying back to see what happens at City Center."

Anne of Green Gables has played at seven festival seasons here to sellout audiences, and has grossed more than $1 million.

Remand in Winnipeg For Stewardesses

WINNIPEG (CP) — Metropolitan Theatre of Winnipeg and Famous Players Ltd. were remanded one week Friday when they appeared in magistrate's court, charged after seizure of the movie, The Stewardesses. Lawyers for the companies indicated they would enter a plea of not guilty at their next appearance.

The accused have been charged jointly with possessing an obscene film and with exposing it to public view. The matter was remanded by Magistrate Mike Zaryluk for a week.

Haddock Expects Even More

City Getting $110,000 In Ottawa Job Grants

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock said Thursday "the city will get a lot more money" from the federal government's special winter employment fund than it asked for.

In an interview, the mayor said an official from the federal manpower department's Vancouver office was in Victoria earlier advising him that the city could secure additional make-work funds but only for projects under $75,000 each.

Federal grant portions for these projects, Haddock said, would be authorized from Vancouver.

"I instructed our staff immediately to prepare a list of possible projects that could be carried out with federal assistance under this scheme," the mayor said.

The mayor's announcement came hours after the city was notified that Ottawa had approved grants totalling $110,000 requested by Victoria to carry out $234,000 worth of winter works projects.

"Monday morning, we'll start the first project — improvements to our parks," he said. This project consists of clean-up of parks, repair of fences, improvement of access to city beaches and replacement of deteriorated grass on boulevards.

The parks project will give employment to 10 persons.

Other projects for which the city has already received Ottawa's approval are the servicing of 20 privately-owned, and 10 city-owned lots at a total cost of $113,000 providing 22 jobs; provision of an acoustical ceiling for the arena — $60,000 and 30 jobs; construction of comfort stations — $21,000 and 11 jobs.

The city also has applied for funds to remove the huge rock next to the arena, and to install a sewer on Wharf Street. Both these projects, Haddock said, would "undoubtedly be approved."

Cost for these two projects will be about $650,000. The amount contributed by the federal government varies, but is usually between 40 and 50 per cent.

"But the most important news, I think, is that we now can get federal funds in addition to all these projects, as long as we stay under the $75,000-mark for each single project from here on," the mayor said.

"I think the city is making a very good deal; not only do we get things done that would otherwise have to wait, but we also can give employment to people who would otherwise be out of a job," he said.

How many additional $75,000 jobs the federal government would be willing to contribute to, he said, he didn't know.

"We also must find the money to pay for our share of this work, but I think when you can get things done at half the cost, you'll find the money somewhere, even if you have to borrow it," Haddock said.

Logging Accidents Kill Two Men

PORT ALBERNI — A sawmill technician who police idenitified as Basil J. C. Dibben, 48, of 2149 Granite, Victoria, was killed Thursday when he slipped and fell into a saw unit at the Somass Division mill of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.

The technician, employed by a Victoria servicing company, was checking operation of the recently-installed equipment at the time of the accident. He was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital.

In a separate sawmill accident, Wayne Robert McGhie, 21, of Ladysmith, was killed Wednesday night when hit by a 12-by-12-inch timber which fell from a jammed sorting machine at the Tahsis Co. sawmill near Tahsis.

Qualicum Buys $9,000 Ambulance

QUALICUM BEACH — The Qualicum Ambulance Society has recently bought a new $9,000 ambulance to replace one which has been in service for the past six years.

The new vehicle is a Ford van, which has been made into an ambulance by Universal Manufacturing LTD. of Surrey. The firm specializes in this type of work and has done about 60 ambulance conversions.

The ambulance has an oxygen supply and is also fitted with suction apparatus which is sometimes required to help clear water from a potential drowning victims' mouths and throats. There are two fire extinguishers and also cross bars. The latter may have to be used on occasions to pry open doors of crashed cars.

There is an auxuliary heater which quickly heats the interior of the ambulance and in hot weather patients will appreciate the air conditioning.

The old ambulance which is a Ford is presently being overhauled and will probably be put up for sale. It has made over 1,000 trips to hospitals at Port Alberni, Nanaimo and Comox. On several occasions it has been used to take patients to Vancouver and Victoria.

The ambulance is based in Qualicum Beach and is manned by volunteers who accept calls in their free time. Leo Klees is the manager and Anton Kryut is president of the Association.

Theatre Response Warm

DUNCAN — Members of the Cowichan Valley Theatre Association have been warmly applauded this week for performances of The Shop at Sly Corner. The three-act play by Edward Percy will conclude 8.15 p.m. today at the Cowichan senior high school auditorium.

Although poor weather has kept audiences small, Peggy Smith as Mrs. Catt has received unusually enthusiastic applause for her performance. John Getgood directs the play.

Vote Early Today— And Beat the Snow

Greater Victoria voters may have to slog through snow today to get to the polls for municipal elections.

According to the forecast Friday night from the Victoria weather office, it should be cloudy and cold this morning, with two to four inches of snow falling in the afternoon, easing off to flurries overnight, so the voter's best bet is to visit the polls early.

Sunday's outlook is for cloudy periods and continuing cold.

East Pakistan Collapse Widely Rumored at UN

From CP, AP, Reuter

The foreign minister of Pakistan arrived in New York Friday and was immediately reported ill and unable to keep appointments as rumors flew at the UN concerning surrender of Pakistani forces in East Pakistan.

Zulifakar Ali Bhutto, the new deputy prime minister and foreign minister of Pakistan, arrived late Friday and was supposed to have appointments with Secretary-General Thant and U.S. Ambassador George Bush.

But he cancelled both appointments, pleading illness. He did talk to Thant on the telephone and to Chiaco Kuanhua, Chinese deputy foreign minister who visited him at his hotel room.

Rumors were rife at the UN as Indian forces closed in on Dacca in East Pakistan.

The rumors said the commander-in-chief of the Pakistani forces in Dacca had offered to surrender. The offer had been sent through UN officials in Dacca.

However, Pakistani ambassador Agha Shahi is said to have told Thant to disregard this message and that a communication would be received from President Yahya Khan.

There were also reports that Pakistan had expressed willingness to negotiate with the leaders of the Bangla Desh government which is located in New Delhi and which says it represents the people of East Pakistan.

Bhutto is reported to have told UN officials that his illness is not serious and that he will be able to resume his schedule today.

Meanwhile, Foreign Minister Saran Singh of India was to arrive in New York Friday night, meaning that both countries in the sub-continent will be represented by big guns if and when the UN takes up the war again.

It was not known whether

Fireman Liked Sirens, So Started Own Fires

HOUSTON (UPI) — Nine volunteer firemen have been charged with starting fires in the southeast sections of the city allegedly to relieve their boredom.

G. L. Caldwell, an arson investigator with the Houston fire department, said one of the men said he set the blazes for "kicks."

"He liked to see the red light and hear the siren."

In past years, the schools involved in the Inter-High Students' Council have collected toys, food and money for the needy from the students only.

This year, members of the council decided to use the schools as collection depots for their neighborhoods.

Both junior and senior high schools are involved in this special Christmas project, which started Monday and will end Dec. 17.

Those included are Arbutus, Central, Colquitz, Lansdowne, Oak Bay, Reynolds, S. J. Willis and Shoreline junior highs, and Esquimalt, Mount View, Oak Bay, Victoria and Mount Douglas senior highs.

There will be large boxes for donations of food and toys in the school offices, says Cathy Woods of the Inter-High Students' Council, which will go to the Salvation Army and Kiwanis Club.

All the money received by the schools, which can also be donated in the school offices, will go to the Colonist 500 Fund.

A project like this takes a great deal of work on the part of the students. They've done the organizing. They're the ones who'll be spending their time asking friends, neighbors and relatives for donations, at a time of year when they're pretty busy studying for exams.

They're anxious to help those less fortunate than themselves, and, says Cathy Woods, they hope to give bigger donations this year because of the new way they've set up the project.

It's generosity like this that has made the Colonist 500 Fund a success for so many years, and has given destitute families a happier Christmas than they would have had normally.

Weary Firemen Douse Day-Old Subway Blaze

MONTREAL (CP) — Weary but determined firefighters extinguished an underground fire Friday night after it had destroyed 36 subway cars in a 24-hour searing holocaust.

Millions of gallons of water were poured into the tunnel at the northern terminus of Montreal's five-year-old Metro system, before the blaze was brought under control.

Gerard Maccarone, 40, subway motorman, apparently died in the flames and smoke but his body was still pinned in the train cab under eight feet of water, Montreal transit officials said.

Fire department officials announced that the fire was out just eight minutes short of burning for a full 24 hours. The "all out" came at 10:25 p.m.

Dense smoke, noxious fumes, deadly gas from spilled sulphuric acid and searing heat repeatedly drove firemen back from the source of the fire.

It broke out Thursday night after a nine-car subway train, empty of passengers, smashed into a parked train in a storage and switching tunnel north of the Henri Bourassa station. Two other nine-car trains were sitting in the area at the time.

Freighter Finds 12 Survivors Of Ship-Sinking

HONOLULU (AP) — A Norwegian freighter reported rescuing six men and six women Friday, who had spent almost 22 hours in a life raft after abandoning a Danish ship Wednesday.

The U.S. Coast Guard said messages relayed from the rescue vessel, the Puna, indicated that the survivors were in generally good condition. The survivors did not know whether any of the rest of the 36-member crew got off the stricken vessel, the Heering Kirse, a 500-foot-long merchant ship owned by Dom-manditselskabet AF of Copenhagen.

A coast guard spokesman said the survivors reported they went over the side Wednesday afternoon after the ship took water into its No. 1 hold and began listing 45 degrees to starboard.

They said they could see the lights of the ship at midnight, eight hours after they abandoned it.

The coast guard said earlier reports that the survivors included 10 men and two women were in error due to poor communications from the scene, about 1,300 miles northwest of Honolulu.

Baxter Acquitted of Fraud

Horse-Swap Case: Not-Guilty Verdict

By BARBARA McLINTOCK
Colonist Reporter

A Victoria County Court jury Friday night found Vancouver horse-owner David Robert Baxter not guilty of fraud by substituting one horse for another in a race at Sandown Park last summer.

The jury of nine men and three women deliberated for about 5½ hours before reaching a verdict.

Baxter, 40, had been charged with fraud in connection with the seventh race Aug. 21, the final day of last summer's race meet at Sandown. He entered the three-year-old filly Last Note in the race, but the crown had contended he actually ran another three-year-old filly, Music Melody, under the name of Last Note.

Prosecutor Brian Smith said he did not think it likely the crown would appeal the verdict.

Baxter, whose wife was present in the courtroom, smiled broadly as the jury foreman told Judge M. L. T. Drake the jury found Baxter not guilty.

Earlier during the day he had cried quietly after he finished giving testimony on his own behalf.

On the witness stand, he denied that he had brought two horses over to Sandown Park from Vancouver on Aug. 21. He had, he said, sent Last Note to Sandown with another trainer, Walter Gilker, because he was afraid the driver of the trailer he had arranged to borrow for the day would be late.

The driver brought the trailer soon after, he said, and he was on the same ferry as Gilker. He told court he took the empty trailer to Sandown so he could bring Last Note back to Vancouver if he did not manage to sell her in Victoria.

Baxter said that after he got to Sandown, he settled his horse and asked a groom, Lloyd Cairns, to bridle it and bring it to the paddock for its race.

He did not see Last Note again until she was running her race, he said. He spent most of the intervening hours looking for a buyer for the

Pickup Truck No Bargain

RED DEER, Alta. (CP) — Doris Sutherland was called to the telephone Thursday by her son who said there was a man "talking funny" on the line.

Mrs. Sutherland was asked if she had a pickup truck for sale. When she replied "no" the man asked what number her phone was.

She told him it was 347-1200, and that was the right one as far as the man was concerned.

"The ad has a half-ton truck for sale at that number," said the man. "You're sure you haven't got one for sale?"

"No," she said.

The man persisted, asking where she lived.

"Red Deer," she said, to which he replied: "Is that in Virginia?"

No, Mrs. Sutherland said, "It's in Alberta, Canada."

"Canada? Oh, my God, this will cost me a fortune. I'm trying to get Warrington, West Virginia."

The man had mixed area codes, calling 403 instead of 304.

Lambert Charges Senate Bribe

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson was accused of bribing the Senate Friday with promises to bring in amendments to his tax change bill after it has been passed by Parliament.

Benson gave the Commons a list of areas in the bill in which he said he hopes to make alterations in the next year or so.

The government will apply the guillotine rule for the second time to cut off Commons debate on the tax bill next week, informed sources said Friday.

Privy Council President Allan MacEachen, government House leader, will give notice Monday of use of the guillotine rule, already employed to choke off debate on the bill in committee stage.

There will be a two-hour debate Tuesday on the motion to shut off debate and debate on the bill itself will end Friday. If will go to the Senate late that same day.

Conservative finance critic Marcel Lambert described it as "a cheap bribe to the Senate" to get the upper chamber to act in haste.

Benson gave the opening speech on Commons third-reading debate on the bill. The debate is expected to last until next Friday, when the government has said it intends to close it off by means of a debate-limiting motion it

Churchill Station May Be Closing

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — Television station CHGH, a community-operated broadcasting facility in this Hudson Bay community of 2,000, may go off the air permanently because subscribers are not paying their bills.

Malcolm H. McCullough, chairman of Nanuk Television Inc., said the station, which carries week-old CBC videotaped programs, terminated broadcasting Sunday.

He said the station has gone off the air before since it began operation in 1965, "but we've only had to shut down for a month or so each time."

He said less than 10 per cent of the station's 500 subscribers have been paying their subscriptions.

"People seem to take television for granted until they can't have it anymore. Once it's gone, the money begins to appear and this is why we've managed to return to the air in the past."

He said the station may have to close permanently this time "because the strain on the budget may be too much." He said a federal government grant the station is expecting "may be used to make sure we don't have any debts when we shut down."

HOLLYWOOD (Special) — A Superior Court judge has awarded $15,000 damages to a Los Angeles school district machine repairman after actress Hedy Lamarr failed to show up for a false-arrest suit brought against her by the repairman, Donald Blyth.

Miss Lamarr had Blyth jailed four years ago for attempted rape and Blyth claimed in his false arrest action that the actress had accepted his advances willingly.

Show Business Pair . . . . . Present Happy Family

Christmas Special Despite Separation

Singer, family at taping

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — On Tuesday Andy Williams will present his annual Christmas show on television, featuring his three children, his parents, three brothers and three families — and his wife, Claudine Longet.

This despite the fact that Andy and Claudine live apart. Yet they will be celebrating Christmas as husband and wife before millions of television viewers — on their own skiing vacation with their children.

"I suppose a lot of people wonder about our situation," the easy-going singer said in his office.

"I've always felt that it was nobody's business but our own. But I suppose I should explain."

Andy and Claudine separated in June, 1970, after eight years of marriage. The split presented a crisis at NBC over Williams' Christmas show, traditionally one of the highest-rated programs of the year.

"NBC had a lot of trouble over a Dean Martin Christmas show which had been taped before he broke up with his wife," Williams recalled. "The show was edited, but even so there was a lot of criticism about it.

"So when my show came up, it was decided to make the setting a winter lodge instead of our home. Claudine and I didn't even appear together in a bedroom to put the children to bed. Despite NBC's worries, there wasn't a bit of criticism over the show.

"This year I decided we'd do the show in a home setting again. After all, Claudine and I see each other all the time. Last year she and I spent Christmas with the kids at Sun Valley and this year we'll do it again at Heavenly Valley, near Lake Tahoe."

Yet she still lives with the children at the beach and he maintains a bachelor home in the Hollywood Hills. Why?

"I'm not sure why we can't live together," Williams reflected.

"I like her very much — I love her. And I know that she loves me. The trouble is that she can't stand to be with me for more than 2½ days."

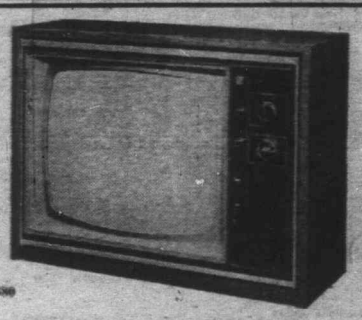

He said Claudine is intense in everything she does; he is as nonchalant offstage as he is on. Their varying temperaments caused constant friction during their marriage. Williams suspects that career conflicts also played a role.

The future?

"I don't think either of us knows what will happen. We have never discussed divorce. It's possible we will get back together. I don't know."

Gossips have made much of Andy's escorting of Robert Kennedy's widow, Ethel. Andy said he has wearied of reiterating that no romance is involved.

Toronto's New UHF Outlet Had Uniquely Different Plan

TORONTO (CP) — This city's fourth television station — a commercial, low-budget, locally-oriented ultra-high frequency outlet — will go on the air next September following approval of its licence by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission in Ottawa.

The new station, on Channel 79, will be managed by Moses Znaimer, a former CBC public affairs interviewer. The application for the licence, made at a Toronto CRTC hearing last September, was described by the federal authority as "uniquely different."

The concept is financed by 25 investors, all holding minority positions. The idea was conceived by Phyllis Switzer of Toronto, who will be the station's vice-president.

The station has $2.8 million in financing pledged. Mr. Znaimer said he expects the station will cost about $850,000 to build and $700,000 to operate during the first year.

"We have money to go for three years without taking in a cent of advertising, so we'll be free of the usual panic to get the big ratings and to pull in the big advertisers right away," he said.

The key to the "uniquely different" station is that it will abandon the usual mass-appeal approach to commercial TV, though the backers admit it may need time to catch on with viewers.

"Most stations cover 100 miles, cost millions to operate and have to appeal to almost everybody in range to attract enough advertising money to cover their costs," said Mr. Znaimer.

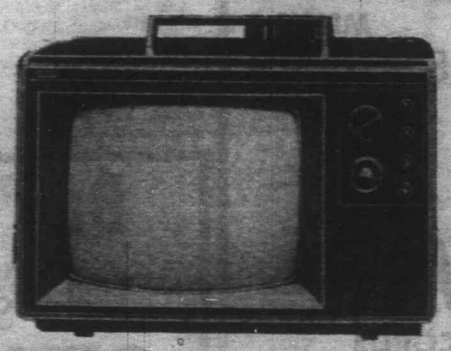

"We'll cover only Metro, will talk only about Metro in our own programs — which will fill at least 60 per cent of the time up to midnight — and will keep our operation small.

"Our costs will be low so our advertising rates will be low. We'll be able to attract a whole range of local merchants who never could afford TV time on the big stations."

Sir John Gielgud in TV Movie

Aloof, Recondite and Appallingly Articulate

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Sir John Gielgud looked down the considerable length of his patrician nose and allowed as how there was no great humiliation in the foremost Hamlet of our times appearing in a television movie with Hugh O'Brian.

A practical man, Sir John said money was an influencing factor.

While he appears on television for economic reasons, Sir John bluntly refuses to watch the tube. It demeans his sense of theatre.

"It is no treat to me to have entertainment provided on sight," said he somewhat grandly. "I find it demoralizing to watch something which robs me of all the occasion of the theatre.

"Television denies me the opportunity to read the books I enjoy or to hear great music. No, television is not my idea of fun. I'm too old for it."

On the set at Warner Bros. where Sir John read his lines faultlessly with O'Brian in Probe, a two-hour television movie to be seen next spring, he was facile with dialogue and deft in every way.

"I meant I'm too old to watch the telly, not too old to work in it," the distinguished Shakespearean said. "It demands a combination of skills the actor utilizes in motion pictures and the theatre."

With a heavy sigh the actor went on: "You can't earn a great deal of money in the London theatre. If you want to work in the best classics and modern plays you must go to subsidized theatres which pay you very little.

"So we English actors must turn to television and films to tide us through the year or so we spend in the theatre. But it is worth the sacrifice.

"Film is quite another matter. I go to see motion pictures all the time. It is an event. Film requires selectivity, getting out and about. Television is a burden on the viewer."

Asked why he had travelled thousands of miles to appear in this particular show, Sir John said the script was better than most.

Moreover, there is so little action in Britain for actors that Hollywood is a boom town compared to London.

"Everyone in England is in despair," he said, his voice heavy with regret. "Movie plans are falling like ninepins. Lack of capital, you know."

Mission Impossible Got Assist With Return to Old Schedule

By JOSEPH THESKEN
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Greg Morris thinks CBS did Mission: Impossible a favor when it installed the show in a new time slot this season.

"I feel better, knowing that the show is on at a later time, Saturdays at 10 p.m.," he said in an interview.

Morris, who plays the electronic genius, Barney, in the series, reported that the show has had three different time periods during its six years on the air. Last season it was on Saturdays at 7:30 p.m.

"The odd thing is that we are now back where we started," he commented.

Mission: Impossible remains basically the same in format, the story of a good force combating evil. Peter Graves is the senior agent, Jim Phelps, and Peter Lupus adds the brawn as Willy.

The story lines are obviously slanted for an adult audience, so Morris' reasoning about a later time slot is correct. It is no kiddies' show.

There is one new addition to the program: Lynda Day George. As Casey, she adds the feminine charm, an ingredient missed since the departure of Barbara Bain.

We're not counting Lesley Warren, the former "Cinderella" girl who did little for the show when she was on.

"Lynda is a very fine actress," Morris said. "And besides, she photographs like a million dollars. She is a welcome addition to the show."

The Mission: Impossible forces are concentrating this year on crime in the United States, the actor noted.

The overworked plots about South American dictators are out.

Morris said that he has been given a variety of roles in the 16 episodes filmed to date.

"I sing two songs in one show," he reported with some pride. "I'm cast as a singer who tries to blackmail the crooked head of the recording industry."

In other shows he has appeared as a psychiatrist, a longshoreman and a medium.

Morris was asked about ABC The Persuaders and Saturday Night Movie on NBC-TV, which provide the opposition for Mission: Impossible.

"To be honest about it, I haven't seen The Persuaders but I have heard that it is doing all right in some areas of the country and not so good in others," he commented.

"The Saturday Night Movie is always tough, and particularly in the first part of the season when NBC throws in the best of films against us."

Morris, however, has the confidence that comes with having a show on the air for six seasons. He knows it has a solid following who generally will remain loyal.

Britons Dodge Licence Fees

TV Spies Are Everywhere

By CHRISTOPHER OGDEN

LONDON (UPI) — Nigel Bennett said the only crime he ever committed was to watch television in his own living room.

"I don't drive, so I've never had a traffic offence. I don't steal. But I'm damned if I'm going to pay for that television licence," the 27-year-old factory laborer said, slamming his pint of beer down on the pub bar. Bennett is not his real name.

"Let them catch me."

"Them is Britain's ministry of posts and telecommunications. Using a combination of electronic equipment that would warm the heart of a dedicated James Bond fan, ministry investigators are in hot pursuit of Bennett and the more than a million other Britons who balk at paying government licence fees for purchased or rented television sets.

The licence costs seven pounds ($17.50) a year for a black and white set, and 12 pounds ($30) for color.

Non-payment of the fees last year totalled more than $225.5 million.

The money from the licences goes to run the radio and television services of the British Broadcasting Corporation. With a budget already strapped by increasing competition from commercial stations, the BBC looks less than kindly at evaders.

"Of course it hurts losing that much," a BBC spokesman snapped. "The more we get, the more we can do. We don't want to lose a single penny because someone won't buy their licence."

The ministry, therefore, has launched an all-out campaign to recoup the losses.

People go to incredible lengths to avoid paying, according to Walter Garrett, manager of the television licensing section of the ministry. But they are having trouble fooling the ministry's "secret weapon" — a fleet of 30 vans jammed with electronic equipment that can pinpoint a television set in a 10-storey apartment building.

"One man swore he had no set even though we had a strong signal on one of the vans and showed him a picture of it," Garrett said.

"He invited us in. We looked around, but there was no sign of it."

Garrett shook his head. "Usually it's easy to tell. Many people furnish their rooms around a set. Other times there'll be a ring of dust on a table. This time — nothing."

"Then the silly fool let us out through the back door just in time for us to catch his wife coming in, set in hand," he smiled. "He paid."

Another inspector ended up with a split lip when he interrupted one viewer watching the Football Cup final, Britain's equivalent of the final game of the World Series.

More than one viewer who found an inspector at his door hurled his set out the window in an attempt to avoid fines for licence evasion that have recently ranged up to 50 pounds ($125).

"Oh, yes, and we've had a number of women come to the door in negligees offering to pay in kind," Garrett said. They were wasting their time, he added. "We always go in pairs."

"My boys are very, very patient," said Chris Taylor, who runs the detector vans operating in the London area.

"They'll keep coming back. At one house one of our lads returned 15 times. He finally got so fed up he sat on the doorstep till he caught the bloke at 3 a.m."

Adams Appointed Chairman of NBC

NEW YORK (UPI) — The NBC board of directors has elected David C. Adams, currently an executive vice-president, as its chairman.

Adams will replace Walter D. Scott Jan. 1. Scott will remain as a director of the network. Julian Goodman will continue as president and chief executive officer of NBC.

Adams joined NBC in 1947 as assistant general counsel and became executive vice-president in 1958. His service with the company was interrupted in 1948-49, when he was on the staff of RCA Communications Inc., NBC's parent organization, and in 1968-69, when he was on a leave of absence.

Robert W. Sarnoff, chairman of RCA, said Scott was giving up the chairmanship because he wants to devote more time to his personal interests. Scott joined NBC in 1936.

"I know of no one who commands a wider circle of friends or who is held in greater esteem among broadcasters," Sarnoff said of Scott.

Inside the Tube With Bill Mahan

A recent television article carried the title Cry, or I'll Break Your Neck by Bill O'Hallaren. I never realized stage mothers had so many different methods to make child actors cry. Since I played the youngest son in 22 segments of The Jones Family, a motion picture series made between 1935 and 1940, I had my bouts with crying too. And I had a mother who had her method.

Once in one of my biggest scenes I had supposedly been badly cut by a razor blade. My stage family was to huddle around me while I bawled. I loked blankly at the director, James Tinling, and said I just couldn't seem to cry. Everyone did as much as possible, short of beating me, but the tears wouldn't come. Finally the director suggested we bypass the scene and get to it another day. Maybe with time I could learn to cry.

After several days my mother pronounced me ready to do the scene. The cast was asembled and the director said, "Let's rehearse it."

My stage mother, Spring Byington, said, "Jim, I think we can shoot it. We all know the scene well and it might be fresher if we don't rehearse."

"Spring," he said, "it isn't any of you I'm worried about, it's Billy."

"Okay," Tinling agreed, "we'll give it a try." He looked to the cameraman. "Roll it, George."

"Wait," my mother interrupted him.

Tinling shrugged. "Cut it, George." Then, to my mother, "I thought you said he was ready."

"He is," she said, "but he needs to talk with me first."

Tinling and the rest of the cast sat down while Mother took me over to a dark corner where she whispered in my ear. The tears started to come and when they were pouring down my face she motioned to Tinling.

"Roll it!" Tinling yelled triumphantly. I came hurrying to my position and Tinling said "Action." No one fluffed a line and I bawled for at least two minutes.

The scene had to be shot several more times in different angles and before each "take" Mother walked me to the dark corner and whispered. The tears kept coming. When we were finally through Tinling got my mother in the corner and pressed her to tell him how she did it. She wouldn't tell and neither would I.

Several months later another director doing a public service film titled The Boss Didn't Say Good Morning starring Jack Mulhall (the short is still used in schools today) needed a boy my age who could cry all the way through the film. I was signed for the role. I cried solidly for 10 days. Always, just before each scene was shot, Mother took me to a dark corner.

At the end of filming there was much speculation and some heavy betting on how she did it. The director kiddingly accused her of subtle torture. But neither of us would tell.

Many years later I was up for a leading role in a television series. Again I had to cry, but Mother wasn't there. However, she'd prepared me for this eventuality and I had what I needed in my pocket.

I studied the lines the producer's secretary had given me. Then, just before I started to read for him, I opened my battered old book to Little Boy Blue and quickly read the poem to myself. Then I started reading the scene for the producer, thinking about Little Boy Blue dying in the night and his tiny soldiers waiting for him to return. The tears came.

I was highly complimented on a sensitive reading. They said they would call me — the usual line when you don't get the part.

I went home and joined the navy. After two weeks in boot camp my agent called. I'd won the role. My mother had to tell him I was in the navy and couldn't take it. As best I can remember, she cried a lot.

Chinese Put-On

Rather than put a funny picture in the green file, AbouTV simply apologizes that this still from last Thursday's Bob Hope special arrived late from NBC, and runs it anyway. Takeoff on Mainland China, co-starring Bob Goulet, might have best been entitled Chou On Tung.

Tennis Special

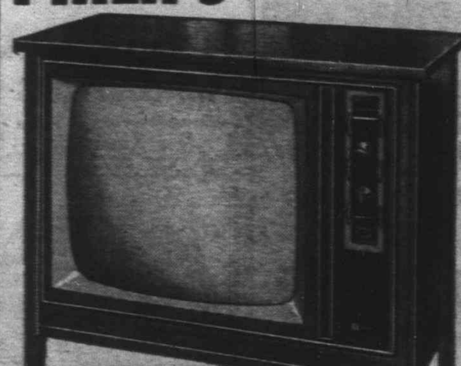

NEW YORK (Special) — NBC will provide coverage of tennis tournaments in eight cities from Feb. 20 to May 14. All broadcasts will be from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. on Sundays.

Acting Edgar Buchanan's Calling

Pulling Teeth Was Not His Cup of Tea

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — "I would have been in Oregon a long time ago if my wife would go with me," Edgar Buchanan said over his light lunch in the Fox commissary. "But she likes it here.

"And I don't like to cross her. You may not know it, but when I got her she was the only girl in a school with 300 men, so I had to work hard to marry her. But I snagged her in the first six months.

"Of course, I had some things going for me. I was president of our student body. I was appearing with the Henry Duffy stock company, and I never studied.

"To show you how it was, out of a class of 90, my wife was No. 8 and I was No. 82."

Buchanan gave a complacent chuckle which suggested that no matter how fondly he praises his dream life in Oregon, he's pretty satisfied with his real life in Hollywood, where he's currently playing a mother-hen deputy in the television series Cade's County.

A veteran of more than 30 years in motion pictures and television, the mushy-voiced actor with the Santa Claus smile came to his present location and profession from Oregon and from the unlikely seedbed of dentistry.

As a matter of fact, he's still a licensed dentist as is his wife, Mildred, whom he met in 1928 at the North Pacific Dental College in Portland.

Born in Humansville, Mo., Buchanan grew up in Oregon, a state in which he insists he'll retire as soon as Mildred will let him.

Edgar Buchanan

After high school, he enrolled at the University of Oregon in Eugene to study medicine, but, because he was becoming too interested in drama there, his father urged him to transfer to dental school in Portland.

"Yes, that's why he told me to go to dental school," Buchanan said. "He wanted to get me away from acting. But, by the time I'd been in Portland a week, I was working in three little theatres."

The reluctant future dentist was awarded a two-year scholarship to Yale University to study drama, but, still listening to his daddy, he turned it down and stuck to the study of molars.

"My old daddy told me," Buchanan said, "you can get into a profession and go anywhere in the world.

"He told me, you're oversexed like I am, so you are going to have a lot of children to support.'

"I'm glad I followed his advice, because, if I'd gone to Yale, it would have been disastrous."

Just why would it have been disastrous is hard to understand, except that at Yale, Edgar would never have met Mildred.

Spotted by studio scouts, he was offered motion picture work in such increasing volume that he finally had to choose between dentistry and acting.

"It took nerve in a way to give up my practice," Buchanan confessed over his lunch, "but not so much. I can remember when, if a dentist made $150 in six months, he bragged about it.

"However, I didn't sell my equipment until 1945.

"When I was under contract at Columbia, anytime I had trouble with Harry Cohn (head of the studio), I'd tell him, 'well, it won't take me 24 hours to get my equipment out of storage.'

"I got along all right with Harry, though. It's a funny thing. I remember the day Glenn (Ford, star of Cade's County) and I signed our first contracts at Columbia.

"We were sitting on a bench together outside Cohn's office, and that day we each signed a contract.

"Cohn didn't scare me any, and I guess that's why we got along. After I hadn't seen him for a while, I'd run into him on the lot and say something like, 'Hey, are you still working for this crummy outfit?' "

After Mildred suffered two tubular pregnancies, the Buchanans adopted a son, William Edgar Buchanan III, who works for a radio station in Hawaii.

"I raised my son the way my daddy raised me," Buchanan said. "I spoiled him.

"I remember when he was about two weeks old. My wife and I had a big fight about something, and she asked me, 'Well, are you going to leave me?' "

Buchanan laughed at the reminiscence.

"My wife loves to fight with me," he said, "but it all works out because we are always honest with each other. I've never kept a secret from her nor she one from me."

Buchanan's recollections of his long married life are full of humor and affection.

"When we first married," he remembered, "my wife and I made some beer and put it in the attic of our little love nest. My mother, who was a big member of the WCTU, came to see us, and while we were sitting in the living room talking, the beer began to explode.

"Mildred and I tried to ignore it, because she wanted to make a good impression on my mother, until the beer began running through the ceiling."

Though Buchanan has lived in California for almost 40 years, he still keeps in touch with friends from not only college, but high school days in Oregon.

"My wife and I went to a college reunion," he said, "and when I saw my old pals, I told Mildred, 'Why, they are a bunch of feeble old men. I'm the only young one here.'

"She said, 'Oh yeah?'

"If you want something bad enough, you can get it," Buchanan concluded, remembering perhaps how he won Mildred away from 299 other dental students and how he became an actor despite his father's manoeuvres.

Death Row Stay Over

Edgar Smith Jr., right, appears on television show being taped in New York with William Buckley Jr., columnist who helped finance a series of court appeals which culminated in Smith's release from Trenton, N.J. state prison. Smith gained his release from prison, on probation, after the judge accepted his plea of no defense to murdering a 15-year-old girl in 1957. He had spent more time on death row than any other American prisoner.

Japanese Population Enthusiastic Viewers

This emerges from a number of recent government and private studies. West Germany and the United States were chosen for comparison purposes.

The semi-governmental Japanese Broadcasting Corp. reported that American adult males spend only 25 per cent of their rest time in front of television screens, while the West German figure was 17 per cent, compared with Japan's 42 per cent.

This is partly the result of the phenomenal growth of television in Japan, where 97.3 per cent of all households have a set.

Tokyo residents can choose from seven channels, all going full blast from dawn to post-midnight late-late shows.

A study by the Japanese Institute of Labor showed a heavy male preference for the erotic and violent in entertainment. They are well catered to on television and cinema screens and in weekly magazines.

Despite the popular image of the always-working Japanese, figures reveal that leisure time available varies little between Japan and West Germany.

Their Romance Well-Kept Secret

Spencer Tracy, Hepburn Top City Viewers' Poll

By BRUCE LOWTHER
Colonist TV Writer

Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn, whose more than a quarter-century of life together was one of Hollywood's best-kept secrets, are the leaders in the actors and actresses division of AbouTV's Name Your Favorite Stars contest.

The leading character player is the jowly, jolly British lady Margaret Rutherford and the winner of the contest is a pretty Victoria lady who knows what acting is all about, Bastion Theatre's Mrs. Margaret Martin of 4865 Prospect Lake Road.

Her prize is one free pass for two persons to each of the five Odeon Theatres in Victoria, the Odeon 1 and 2, the Haida and the Cinema 1 and 2 at the Counting House. For the record, she has two months to use them, starting today, after Odeon's Jack Armstrong completed arrangements.

The contest, mentioned mainly in the daily column, asked for the names of anywhere from one to 10 favorite actors, actresses and character (supporting) players. The results, including ties:

Actors: Tracy 17, Clark Gable and Alec Guinness 16 each, Humphrey Bogart 15, Richard Burton and Paul Newman 14 each, Charles Laughton 10, and tied at eight each, Dirk Bogarde, Henry Fonda, David Niven, Gregory Peck and Sidney Poitier.

Actresses: Hepburn 23, Ingrid Bergman and Bette Davis 17 each, Elizabeth Taylor 15, tied at 11 each Joan Crawford, Deborah Kerr and Rosalind Russell, then Julie Andrews and Helen Hayes at 10 each and Vivien Leigh and Sophia Loren eight each.

Characters: Rutherford 13, Walter Brennan and Elsa Lanchester eight each, Shirley Booth and Agnes Moorehead six each, five each for Claude Rains, Basil Rathbone, Thelma Ritter and Alastair Sim, and four each for Edmund Gwenn, Walter Matthau, Edna May Oliver, Flora Robson and Peter Ustinov.

Several of the 40 voters put stars in more than one category—for example, Laughton was named both as an actor and a character—so the writer made final decisions on who belonged where and, as it turned out, Mrs. Martin's victory wasn't affected.

Margaret Rutherford
. . . leading character player

Wife of The Bay wholesale manager Vincent Martin and mother of three children, Mrs. Martin has been in theatres around town for 20 years. She is teaching at Bastion's theatre school and will perform as the queen in Bastion's Once Upon a Mattress at the McPherson Playhouse from Boxing Day through New Year's Day.

The contest winner was to be the person picking the most names on the final lists of 10 each, plus ties. Of the 12 actors, 11 actresses and 14 characters (a total of 37), Mrs. Martin had 16 on her lists.

Next was Steve Ivings, a humorous young member of a talented Victoria family, who had 15 of the names. Tied at 14 were well-known magician Carl Hemeon, Mrs. R. G. Parker of 4019 Saanich, Mrs. Phyllis Hook of 3067 Albina, Elsie Power of 831 Dunsmuir and Mrs. Bruce Lowther.

Winner Martin's first favorites, by the way, were Rutherford, Bette Davis and Robert Young. The latter got only three votes in all.

By happy coincidence, the Tracy-Hepburn victory came about the same time as publication of the book Tracy and Hepburn, An Intimate Memoir, by playwright Garson Kanin, their longtime friend.

It's not a biography of their life of love but is simply a series of fascinating true stories about their strengths and weaknesses. The surprising thing about this excellent book is that Tracy comes out a lesser person but Hepburn seems to be greater than life itself.

Only Miss Hepburn was named on more than half of the ballots. In all, the 40 voters named 112 actors, 116 actresses and 151 characters and what a list it is!

I mean, there's a lot of pleasure in just thinking about George Arliss, Wendy Hiller, John Garfield, Deanna Durbin, C. Aubrey Smith ("he could have lived in Oak Bay," said one voter), Conrad Veidt, A. E. Matthews, Donald Meek, Nigel Bruce, Henry Stephenson, Mary Badham, Marc Lawrence, Cuddles Sakall, Sydney Greenstreet and Maria Ouspenskaya.

Closest to the final lists of favorites were, among the men, Jack Hawkins, Leslie Howard, John Mills and James Stewart, and among the actresses, Olivia de Havilland, Greer Garson, Loretta Young, Julie Christie and Audrey Hepburn.

The next batch of characters after that final list included Marjorie Main, Marie Dressler, Joyce Grenfell, Sid James, Thomas Mitchell, Boris Karloff, Lee Cobb, Barry Fitzgerald and Jack Elam.

Gary Cooper only drew six votes, the same as Brando and Olivier. John Wayne and Cary Grant were named only five times each. James Dean and Steve McQueen got three each while Charlton Heston had to be satisfied with two, the same as Valentino and Robert Donat. Sinatra and Bing Crosby were among many mentioned only once.

Garbo, Doris Day and Judy Garland were also at the five-vote level. Marilyn Monroe and Mae West got four each, Grace Kelly had three and Lana Turner only two.

Silent stars weren't forgotten, with votes for Chaplin, Mary Pickford, Emil Jannings, William S. Hart, Clara Bow and Rin Tin Tin. Among today's young stars, Dustin Hoffman outvoted them all, male or female.

The most fun in compiling the results was the logging of characters who ranged all the way from the famous like Victor McLaglen and Bert Lahr to such as Kenneth Tobey and Lyle Talbot. And, of course, Elisha Cook.

Mrs. Hook of the 14-vote group put her finger on the contest's missing link—no section for comedians. They got few votes so, since Stan Laurel can't really be compared with Olivier, AbouTV's next contest early in 1972 will be Name Your Favorite Comedians.

David Cassidy Filled Void

North America's Newest Teen Idol

By DON LECHMAN
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — The young girl crept slowly down the stairs of the Sea Arena at Marineland. Her goal was only inches away.

Suddenly, a guard whipped around and motioned her to the rear. She made a face at him and started to back up the stairs.

He shook his head and a finger as if to say, "Huh-uh. You can look, but don't touch."

Suddenly, the young man with the shoulder-length brown hair and the smoldering hazel eyes turned and flashed the "most beautiful smile this side of heaven."

Ecstasy.

David Bruce Cassidy, the reigning king of teeny-bopperdom, had arrived. It was enough to make your knees watery and the blood rush to your head.

Cassidy and other members of the ABC-TV series, The Partridge Family came down to Marineland to film an ecology segment.

The teen idol.

It was Frank Sinatra in the 1940s, Elvis Presley in the 1050s, Bobby Sherman in the 1960s and now David. The first two are firmly entrenched as the two musical superstars of the 20th Century. Only time will tell what will happen to the latter pair.

Young Cassidy, no teenager himself at 21, is the biggest thing to hit the pre-teen and early-teen set since Hula Hoops.

Articles carry provocative but meaningless titles like Come Home With David, Are You a True Cassidy Lover? David's Love Test, David's Hates and Loves and David's Dos and Don'ts.

Cassidy items like photo albums, love beads, charm bracelets and love stickers abound.

The singer-actor-musician receives more than 10,000 fan letters a week, most of them declaring their love and allegiance forever. One magazine even carried a series of "death-threat" letters from a girl who claimed that if she didn't get David neither would anyone else.

David, the son of actor Jack Cassidy and actress Evelyn Ward, was born in New York City. After his parents were divorced, he moved with his mother to Los Angeles as a junior high school boy.

Not until he was graduated from high school in 1968 did he show any specific interest in theatre. He appeared with local groups and went to Broadway to appear in a new musical, The Fig Leaves Are Falling.

It was a flop.

He returned to Hollywood to gain parts in episodes of Ironside, Bonanza, Marcus Welby and The FBI.

The public was starting to notice him.

David Bruce Cassidy was ready. When he was signed to star as the oldest boy (16) in the singing Partridge Family, the teen magazines were hovering over him like vultures.

What is David Cassidy really like?

In an interview, David didn't seem very happy about having to spend his break with a member of the press again. He swept back the long, brown hair which enshrines the delicate, fine-boned face. Even gross makeup failed to disguise the perfect, boyish features which have stopped millions of girlish hearts.

David, reported to be a quiet and shy person, is obviously becoming an expert interviewee. Very warm and friendly, he is 21 but looks 16 and talks more like 30.

I asked him outright how it feels to be the heartbrob of millions.

"Unique," he answered bluntly. "I think it's an experience every American male should have. There's nothing like it.

"The timing was right for me. I was in a couple of shows and The Partridge Family did the rest. The teen magazines were ready for me."

"I'm just someone they think about but can never really touch. They can't imagine meeting me. It's almost like I'm not even real.

"Oh, I write a few things for them, but most of the stuff they steal from each other. I was interested in them at first, but I don't even look at them anymore."

Growing restless, David got up from the lounge and walked to the chair by the door, almost like he was signaling that the interview was over. But he sat down again, threw one leg over the arm of the chair and began to talk.

"Most of the girls are 14 and 15 so they'll grow out of it pretty quick. I expect I'm good for two or three years."

David thinks The Partridge Family will make it for seven or eight years on TV but doesn't believe he will stay around that long.

"It's the kind of show that will always be interesting and timely, but I want to do different things."

An excellent actor, David is branching out as a singer and musician. His concert appearances have not met with critical success, but he is learning.

"My desire to sing has been with me since age three, when I was a soloist with the church choir," he said. "I like singing almost as well as acting. They're both very exciting and satisfying to me."

The Partridge Family recording of I Think I Love You, featuring David, was a big hit and since has been recorded by many major performers.

David said he doesn't know where his career will take him but is interested in every aspect of show business.

"I don't want to leave any door closed."

David's camaraderie on the set is evident, laughing and joking with the cast and crew members. Apparently, he is very popular, but he's the star, isn't he?

He has shown extraordinary ability as an actor, and who knows where his singing may lead to?

How he survives this critical point of his life may be very important to his future.

But there is always someone to help put things in perspective, namely his half-brothers, Shaun, 12, Patrick, nine, and Ryan, five.

"My brother Pat visited me on the set and the first day of shooting," David said, "and told me: 'G'wan outside so I can see the girls chase you.'"

David laughed, then looked away.

Hope Touring Vietnam Bases

SAIGON (UPI) — Bob Hope will make his seventh Christmas tour of Vietnam this month.

The comedian will be under the usual tight security regulations, and a military spokesman refused to say how many shows Hope will give in Vietnam, or where they will be.
